

THE BAY DISTRICT RACES.

Chevalier's Ride on Tar and Tartar Was the Feature of the Day.

HE RECEIVED AN OVATION. Played for a "Good Thing," Mt. Air Downed Howard in a Nose-and-Nose Finish.

The usual ten bookmakers out yesterday. Charley Quinn thought Bobolink had a chance of finishing in the place and donated a few dollars to the ring.

Tar and Tartar's win was not a very productive one to his owner, Nick Hall, as Jockey Hinrichs, whose horse McFarlane finished second, bid the winner, entered to be sold for $100 up to $700, at which figure his owner retained him.

It was hinted in wise circles that Rinfax had undergone the canning process, one early bird had seen a huge tin can, bearing a red label (keep in a dark place, which is the request, "keep in a dark place," which he is positive was intended for the old chestnut.

It was stated some days ago that Dan Honig, of the St. Louis horsemanship, would shortly start for California with a string of racehorses. Possibly the wise Dan found transportation to the Golden West a bit too expensive, for he is still snugly stabled at St. Louis, one of his horses, Charm, having won a race at St. Louis on Monday.

Johnny Coleman of the Stuyvesant Club did not see where Mt. Air figured a chance in the last event of the day, and after the caller had made his announcement at the conclusion of the race, it was with difficulty the pencil could see the end of the line of the horse. Johnny forget that some of the horses at the track have copper on copper of days.

The horse Dr. Gardner ran away twice while at the post in the first race and acted so badly in general that he was set down as a "hypo." After the race Secretary Hooper of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, accompanied by a veterinary surgeon, made an examination of the horse in his stall, but could find no trace of his having been injected with any drug tending to stimulate the animal to undue exertion.

The clever coffee-colored lad from New Orleans, Chevalier, distinguished himself by winning the last three races on the card off the reel, and was the bright particular star before which all of the other incidents and events of the day sank into oblivion. The form he has been displaying in the saddle of late certainly surpassed that of any of the other boys, and for the time being he is the idol before whose shrine the public is worshipping. Certainly his ride on Tar and Tartar was a good exhibition of determination and grit, and he well-merited the liberal applause that was bestowed upon him by the crowd at the conclusion of the exciting contest.

Race-goers turned out in fair numbers, and the racing as a whole was above the average, even if some of the runs would not bear the strictest investigation. Starter Johnson was only in the ring for a few minutes of the delays at the post being very tiresome.

Three favorites, a second and one third choice were successful in drawing down the coin. The hard-shell "crabs" kept the crowd standing on pins and needles by their antics at the post in the opening race, a five and a half furlong run, Dr. Gardner being especially active, enlivening matters by running away twice and getting the bell. After a delay of thirty minutes, they were sent away with the 2 to 1 favorite, Red Idle, in front, and after letting Steadfast and Tuxedo pass him and run their heads in front, he came on in the stretch and won easily from Tuxedo, with Steadfast a tired third.

B. C. Holly's Ali Baba was the touted good thing in the second race, at the same price as the favorite. With a lead of 2 1/2 to 1, he was quickly backed from 2 1/2 to 1 to 8 to 5, and won easily from Dolly M, one of the second choices, in 1:08 3/4. Amigo finished third.

Five quite going five and a half furlongs on Friday last, but yesterday, starting second choice at 5 to 2 in the third race, a six and a half furlong run, she led from start to finish, winning cleverly at the length in front of Road Runner in 1:21 1/4. Sir Richard, the first choice, backed from 6 to 5 to 4 to 5, was just nosed out at the wire for the place.

The 2 to 1 chalked up against Tar and Tartar in the mile-and-a-half race, but the price at the time being even money. Commission was the only one considered likely to give him a race and was quoted at three, long odds being laid against the others.

When the flag fell young Ward on McFarlane, a 20 to 1 shot, with but eighty pounds up, skinned away in front, and at one time it looked as though his runaway tactics would prove successful. Turning into the stretch he had a head of fully four lengths, with Miss Buckley second and May Day third, the favorite a bad last. Instead of going on and tending to his business Ward could not resist the temptation to look back and make a few monkey grimaces at his field, and before long Mr. Ward was terrified to see the brown head of the favorite on which Chevalier had been working hard at his side.

There were but four starters in the last race, a short six-furlong dash, with penalties and allowances. Rinfax and Charmion opened early favorites in the betting at 6 to 5. At post time 9 to 5 and 2 to 1 was obtained against Charmion, and 10 to 1 received to 11 to 5 at one stage of the betting, was held to 8 to 5. A strong tip out on Mt. Air cut his price from 13 to 5 to 3 to 1.

Rinfax went on in front when the flag fell and led until something over a furlong from home, when he fell back, and Howard and Mt. Air fought it out to the wire, the latter getting there first by a nose in the fast time of 1:12. Charmion came strong and beat Rinfax for third money.

GUN, ROD AND TENNIS BAT.

Officers of the Pacific States Lawn Tennis Association.

Annual Shoot of the Country and Tamalpais Gun Clubs—Salmon Fishing.

The officers of the Pacific States Lawn Tennis Association, who will regulate matters connected with the championship tournament at San Rafael, are: Alex. B. Wilberforce, president; A. A. Dewing, vice-president; A. Starr Keeler, secretary; Samuel Hardy, Dr. John Spencer, A. J. Treat and A. E. Kaeser. The winner of the all-comers' tournament will be called upon to play Samuel Hardy, the present champion, for a trophy presented by the association, which will become the personal property of any player who wins it three times, but not necessarily in succession. All matches will be played three out of five sets.

The Country and Tamalpais clubs will have their annual pigeon-shooting match on Saturday next, at the Oakland Trotting Park. When the sportsmen of the two noted clubs meet in yearly competition the feathers are made to fly in all directions, and generally speaking the shooting done by the contestants is good.

At a race of twenty-five birds per man, and at each club will be represented by five of its best field shots, two hundred and fifty birds will be sprung from the traps. If the day is good for trap shooting, it is safe to say that two hundred pigeons will meet a quick death. The Country Club will be represented by R. H. Sprague, F. W. Tallant, F. R. Webster, E. Donohoe and A. C. Tubbs, with R. B. Woodward and W. Kittle as substitutes. The Tamalpais Club will send to the feathered field of War T. R. Barney, C. M. Osborn, W. C. Brown, F. Butler Jr. and John Berge; the substitutes have not been named. The consideration is a dinner.

Henry Skinner received a telegram from Mr. Chase of Santa Cruz yesterday which states that a great quantity of quinnat salmon is now in Santa Cruz Bay, and that anglers are enjoying excellent sport. Two gentlemen caught sixteen salmon last Sunday morning, two of which weighed respectively forty-three and thirty-eight pounds. The salmon are preserved in rock salt and to be successful an angler must have his tackle properly mounted, so that the minnow will spin nicely and make an attractive appearance in the water. Minnows that have been preserved in rock salt and will not work off the hook while trolling are the most killing of lures. The fresh minnow is undoubtedly an excellent bait, but it easily separates from the hook and the angler will troll for quite a length of time before he makes the discovery that his hook is minus a bait. The spoon occasionally does good service, but the great secret in trolling for salmon is in knowing the proper depth. Delegates from the spoon or minnow and having an oarsman who understands his business and will row slow or fast, as the occasion demands. The Italians, who charge a small fortune for rowing anglers a few hours in the morning, are a lazy lot of fellows, who will not be advised by any person, and much good sport is lost on their account. The better and cheaper way to enjoy salmon-fishing in the Santa Cruz and Monterey bays is for two men to hire a boat and do their own rowing and fishing. Good, serviceable boats can be leased for a couple of dollars, and the anglers will better enjoy the sport than in the company of a fisherman.

A second meeting of sportsmen who are interested in the success of the Inanimate Target Association, which was recently organized, will be held on Saturday evening at the Olympic Club. Delegates from the different clubs that had representatives at the last meeting are expected to be on hand, as a permanent organization will be perfected. The new organization will be known as the Inanimate Target Association, and the scheme is to include all the organized gun clubs of the State if possible. It is the intention to hold an initial tournament in September, at which valuable prizes will be offered for team and individual competition.

THE FIRST BURNING.

J. H. Sichel's Body Incinerated Yesterday in the Odd Fellows' New Crematory.

The first cremation of a human body in San Francisco took place last evening in the new crematory of the Odd Fellows' Cemetery. A great deal of interest was taken in this event by people who regard incineration of human remains after death with favor, as the reduction to ashes was in the nature of a test, although the furnace and its hot chambers had been tried with success on some of the lower animals.

At the request of Dr. Davidson the remains of J. H. Sichel, who died recently, were cremated. The doctor was present and watched the process of cremation, and with him were Engineer Heinemann of the Fulton Iron Works, under whose supervision the furnaces were built, and George R. Fletcher, superintendent of the cemetery; Architect Cahill, who built the crematory; and Frank Gibson, president of the Alameda County crematory.

The body of Mr. Sichel was moved into the hot-air chamber at 4:45 p. m. It lay in a metallic casket, from which the mounting and was taken, and presently both casket and remains began to crumble. Owing to the fact that death had taken place some weeks before and the remains were decomposed they could not be removed from the casket, and a temperature of 290 degrees was produced in the hot-air chamber. In less than two hours only a little pile of ashes lay upon the glowing Dresden tiles.

England is known to foreign observers as the country of large families.

White Metal for the Angel. The City Hall Commissioners met yesterday morning and without once referring to the respective merits of the Marion Wells and other designs of dome angels adjourned. The architect presented a sample of white metal of a superior tensile strength to that proposed by Wells, and this will be subjected to a test with a possibility that it will be adopted if it proves to be what is claimed for it.

FOR THE CHALLENGE CUP.

Preparing for the Great Coast Yachting Regatta on the Bay.

ENCINALS IN FIRST PLACE. The Prize to Be Sent Across the Bay—A Big Midsummer Inter-club Race.

Considerable interest now prevails in yachting circles regarding the coast regatta for the San Francisco challenge cup. The scheme was first mentioned in the Call in the early part of the season when the design of the cup was decided upon. The idea of the race originated with Will Brooks, the well-known yachtsman, and it met immediately with the hearty indorsement of every amateur sailor on the bay. The proposition is that the cup shall be held as a perpetual challenge cup and be raced for once a year.

In order to start the racing it was necessary to make some club the trustee of the prize, and a few days ago it was decided to award to the Encinalis of Alameda this distinction. The cup will be delivered in the early part of next week at the Merchants' Exchange, or some other public place.

Justice of the Peace J. E. Barry yesterday decided a case of considerable interest to tailors who have been engaged in running suit clubs, and to persons who have paid money to them, taking chances on the scheme.

SURPRISES ARE PROMISED

America's New Cup Defender All Ready for the Water.

TO BE LAUNCHED SATURDAY. The Magnificent Yacht Has a Tremendous Spread of Sail and is Surely a Winner.

BRISTOL, R. I., June 25.—Saturday of this week is the day scheduled for the launching of the new America cup-racer—Defender. The self-imposed task of keeping secret the lines and method of construction of the Defender has been most successfully accomplished by the Herreshoffs, and many surprises are promised for yachtsmen when the hope of the Nation is cut free for the inspection of the people. The little fan-like structure with the slanting ruf in the south end of the Herreshoffs' yards, where the Defender has been fashioned and finished and where she now awaits only the hammer stroke to take her first plunge into her natural element, has been almost sacred ground, and none but the seventy or eighty ship-carpenters, joiners, metal-workers, sailmakers and others employed upon the vessel have been allowed admission.

Money and brains are represented in the new yacht to a greater extent than any other vessel of her size, class and make afloat. It is expected that she will prove a marvel. She is without doubt the most perfect and costliest sloop yacht ever built. She is original in every part. Her lead keel is unlike any other yet run. It is easy of curvature, has just enough round to her for a good sidewise grip and is sure to hold her well up to the wind. The length of the Defender is 124 feet over all. She has 24-foot beam and draws 18 feet of water.

Her lines show every easy curve and a beautiful round section at the bilge. She is narrower than Lord Dunraven's Valkyrie II, and although she draws more water she does the Vigilant, she has the same wetting surface. She has 72 steel frames placed 20 1/2 inches apart and is provided with aluminum bronze plates. The saving of weight by the use of these metal plates is something like seven tons. Her spars and blocks are made of Oregon pine, and are the strongest, lightest and most costly ever bent on any yacht. Her mainmast is 102 feet long, with a circumference of 35 inches at the heel. The boom is 102 feet, with 10 1/2 inches diameter at the jaws; gaff 64 feet, bowsprit 41 feet, spinnaker pole 42 feet, topmast 57 feet, and her club topmast pole 51 feet. Her spread of canvas is 19,000 feet, or 1000 more than that of the Valkyrie. Her mainsail measures 6500 feet, her topsail 1325 feet, the two jibs 2200 feet, club topmast 184 feet and her spinnaker 7128 feet, making her the heaviest-spurred single-sticker that ever touched the water. The displacement of the Defender is small, hardly up to 140 tons. Her sails do not differ materially, however, from the ordinary duck ones except that the cloth runs from leach to luff instead of up and down.

The greatest claim to consideration, however, that the Defender shows is in her saving of weight. This, to the initiated, is sufficient in itself, so it is claimed, to pull out a winner by many minutes over a boat of equally good, or even better design. All the balliards, it is understood, are led below through tubes in the deck, and worked by powerful winches, assuring much easier and more expeditious trimming of sheets than by the old hand and deck method. The channel on which the mid-diggers have been at work for some weeks is now deep enough to warrant the launch being made, and would float a boat drawing even more water than the Defender. The spars have been stepped, the fine American cotton sails fitted and the last rivet headed. All that now remains is to send her away, fit her out in a manner befitting her berth, and then show the Britishers a clear and beautifully designed and handsomely wrought stern in each and every race for which she is entered.

LAW FAVORS THE TAILORS.

Victims of Suit Clubs Come to Grief in the Justices' Court.

The Organizers Were Permitted to Keep Money for Which No Value Was Given.

Justice of the Peace J. E. Barry yesterday decided a case of considerable interest to tailors who have been engaged in running suit clubs, and to persons who have paid money to them, taking chances on the scheme.

M. E. Stanford had paid $11 into a suit club in eleven weekly installments, and G. E. Lawrence paid in like manner $23 into a club conducted by Hugh Forgie, when the operations of the club were stopped, being declared illegal by the United States Government. The tailors engaged in the business refused to return the money to their patrons, who had received no consideration, and Stanford and Lawrence assigned their claims against Forgie to J. J. Rauer for collection, and the judgment rendered yesterday was that of a test case upon which thousands of dollars which had been paid into these clubs depended.

The case was tried some weeks ago and has been under advisement since then. Rauer, represented by his attorney, Perry, claimed that the patrons who had paid their money in good faith were entitled to recover it from the tailor who had accepted it but who refused to give any value.

Wickliffe Matthews appeared as attorney for the tailors, and took the position that in running of a suit club was a lottery, and that the same was illegal, and that money paid into a lottery scheme could not be recovered.

Justice Barry in his opinion coincided with the view of the case and decided that the patrons of a suit club were not in any case entitled to recover their money for the reason that they were patronizing a lottery.

A large number of suit club members have been anxiously watching the case, many having been in attendance at the trial, with a view of beginning proceedings for recovery immediately if the judgment had been in their favor.

As it is, however, the tailors seem to have the best of it as far as it has gone, and the victims of the insinuating but self-righteous suit club will have to accept the situation or find some other mode of procedure.

SUED THE SUPERVISORS.

One Firm of Contractors Is Seeking to Hold Them Responsible.

Justice Groezinger Decides That They Have Only to Follow the Law as Laid Down.

One string of the infinite tangle which had financing been brought upon the City's affairs got into the Justice's court yesterday.

Malloy & Broeder, one firm of contractors, sought to recover $200 at the hands of Justice of the Peace Groezinger for goods which they had delivered to the Alameda for the sustenance of the old folks.

With the knowledge that a long train of very astute business men who had sold things to the City and because of certain clauses in the constitution had been prevented from recovering the money Frank Dillon, counsel for the contractors, took exception. He brought the suit against the individual members of the Board of Supervisors.

Now anybody might see at a glance how very interesting the office of Supervisor with a salary of $100 a month would be, once it became known that the man holding it became personally liable for the debts of the City, or even for those debts growing out of supplies furnished its institutions at their order, seeing that there are in the hands of the board of business men claims to the amount of several hundred thousand dollars.

City and County Attorney Creswell filed a demurrer to the complaint, declaring that the Supervisors were not liable for the debts of the City, and the argument took place yesterday afternoon, and Judge Groezinger sustained the demurrer, not to the tremendous relief of the members of the board, but they were not worried about the matter at all.

Judge Groezinger held that the law made the duties of the Supervisors clear. They were required to let contracts, and to provide for the sustenance of the several institutions from the public funds, and that so long as they did not go beyond the limits of these provisions of the law governing their conduct, they could not be held patently liable for their public acts.

It is altogether probable that the case will be appealed to the higher courts. City and County Attorney Creswell is entirely confident of his position, however.

Fought to a Draw. WHEELING, W. VA., June 25.—Johnny Van Heest of Milwaukee and Jerry Marshall of Australia fought thirty-one rounds to a draw at the Metropolitan Athletic Club house at Fulton, near this city, tonight. The honors were about even up to the twenty-fourth round, when both men weakened, and the contest was very tame from that to the end. The contest was for $500 a side and a purse.

Banger and Sims Suspended. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 25.—Chairman Gideon of the L. A. W. Racing Board yesterday admitted that he had suspended Walter Sawyer and F. Sims for receiving cash instead of a prize.

Byron's mother was an ill-tempered, passionate woman, very indiscreet in her language. She called him a "crippled brat." Her imprecation on him was as permanent as his was.

The cost of becoming a naturalized Englishman is about $30.

THE SAN FRANCISCO CALL, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 26, 1895.

Washingtons..... R. H. E. 8 11 2 Baltimore..... 8 16 2 Batteries—Morcer and McGuire; Esper, Hofer and Clarke—Empire—Emas and Murphy; Ehre, Staley and Fatin. Umpire—Keefe.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 25.—Anson's players downed the Pittsburg aggregation with ease. Despite the fact that Hart struck out eight men they won. Galvin's ideas of strikes and balls were quaint enough to provoke vigorous protests from both sides. Attendance 3100. Score: Chicago..... R. H. E. 10 10 3 Pittsburg..... 8 11 2 Batteries—Terry and Donohue, Hart and Merritt. Umpire—Galvin.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 25.—The Cincinnati team celebrated its return home after a disastrous Eastern trip by defeating the St. Louis Browns by a score of 10 to 6. The playing of the visitors was poor throughout. Attendance 2000. Score: Cincinnati..... R. H. E. 10 13 0 St. Louis..... 6 13 0 Batteries—Ruppel, Phinney and Murphy; Ehre, Staley and Fatin. Umpire—Keefe.

BOSTON, Mass., June 25.—Sexton pitched a great game to-day, while Clarke was hit very freely in the first three innings. Long's error in the first inning gave the visitors two runs, but they saw third base only once after this. Score: Boston..... R. H. E. 2 7 2 New York..... 2 7 2 Batteries—Sexton and Tenny, Clarke and Schriver. Umpire—Curry.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 25.—No game, rain.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 25.—The baseball season at Yale was closed this afternoon with a victory over Harvard. The game was one-sided throughout, Harvard getting only one man past first base. Score: Harvard..... R. H. E. 0 2 8 Yale..... 5 7 2 Batteries—Highland and Scammy; Carter, Tredean, Greenway and Wilcox. Umpire—O'Rourke.

LOS ANGELES, June 25.—The Los Angeles Driving Association held a meeting last evening and decided upon the following events for the afternoon of July 4: 2:30 trotting and pacing race, three-minute trotting and pacing race, 2:40 trotting and pacing race, quarter-mile and repeat running race, and half-mile saddle-horse dash.
