

MRS. CORBETT'S CASE

All the Testimony of the Fair Plaintiff Presented.

JIM'S NEGLIGENCE SHOWN.

One Member of the Pugilist's Troop Told of the Attention to Vera.

DEFENSE WAS NOT OFFERED.

In Another Day the Curtain Will Fall on the Little Drama of Divorce.

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 26.—The curtain rose to-day on the third act of Manager-Referee Edward Jacobs' merry comedy in four acts, "Is Marriage a Failure?"

Mrs. Ollie doesn't like Jim's "philanderings" and has said so time and time again. Finding her influence over her athletic and talkative husband nil the lady finally decided to ask the court to release her from a man who, combined with his frequent and lengthy absences from home, had the deplorably bad taste to ardently admire other women, and particularly one woman.

Mr. Hummel produced a pleasing young lady, Miss Blanche Howard or Marie King, according to the reader's fancy, who told relations existing between Corbett and a certain Vera Stanwood or Stanley.

It was 11 o'clock this morning when Referee Jacobs signified his readiness to proceed with the hearing. Mrs. Corbett, Miss King, Mr. Hummel, Mr. Sullivan and a Mr. Wilson were in the room. Mrs. Corbett could very well have been cast for the part of Innocence, but she really looked more like the frequently pictured, but rarely seen summer girl.

Lawyer Hummel, probably in deference to the costume of his principal, was adorned with a spotless white four-in-hand tied with the lawyer's usual dexterity. Miss King had on a dark skirt, with a blue-striped shirt waist, black tie, white sailor hat and gray gloves.

How long have you known Mrs. Corbett? For three years, and her husband about the same length of time. By whom were you originally introduced to Mrs. Corbett? By Mr. Corbett.

Where did you see her? In the defendant's company. Was she in the custom of visiting at the theaters? She used to come to the performance with him.

room while he was dressing? Yes, while changing his costume. Was Vera known in the hotel as the wife of James J. Corbett? Yes, by the clerks and manager.

"That is the plaintiff's case, may it please your Honor, announced Mr. Hummel. "I have no cross-examination," said Mr. Sullivan.

"I would like to have until to-morrow to determine whether I will put any defense," said Mr. Sullivan. "Any defense would be made merely for the purpose of justifying the defendant. I do not put in any defense I will ask that the motion I have made be considered as having been made at the end of the case."

"Yes, I know that," replied Mr. Sullivan. "I will deny your application for the present," continued Mr. Jacobs, "and give you an exception."

HORRORS OF HOLMES.

Gathering of Evidence Against the Murderous Swindler.

WIVES PUT TO DEATH.

The Father of One Victim Tells the Story of a Terrible Killing.

FIRST SMOTHERED BY GAS.

Then the Unfortunate Woman's Body Was Cut to Pieces and Burned.

CHICAGO, ILL., July 25.—Holmes is at least guiltless of the murder of little 11-year-old Cora Quinlan, whatever his other crimes may be. Cora is the daughter of Patrick Quinlan, one of Holmes' henchmen, and the police feared for her safety.

LAKEOTA, MICH., July 26.—Cora Quinlan is at Johnson's, and has been here for two weeks. N. S. TAYLOR, Justice of the Peace. The Johnsons referred to are the grandparents of the little girl. Mrs. Quinlan, who has always maintained an air of crafty reserve, was forced to admit to-day that she had lied to the officers on at least one point, and this had the effect of weakening her story.

Joe Owens was brought in to refute one of Mrs. Quinlan's statements, and he told her flatly that she had lied. Owens will probably be released to-morrow. Mrs. Quinlan was forced to admit during the course of the examination that she had impersonated a dead woman, representing herself as the beneficiary of a fire insurance company in order to gain the money, which, of course, went into Holmes' pocket.

Little of a startling nature was found by the workmen in the old house at Sixty-third and Wallace streets. A stained table, which the detectives at once jumped to the conclusion was discolored by blood, was unearthed. They think it may have been used for the gruesome purpose of cutting up victims on. Two or three more bones, pronounced by competent authorities to be those of human beings, were also dug up.

William Capes of Fort Worth, Tex., is here to-day looking after the interests of the Williams heirs. He believes that the deeds to the property were forged. He tells the following story:

"The two Williams girls were left property by their uncle, Dr. Williams. While both were in possession of it, Minnie was the real owner. Both girls were well educated, well behaved and virtuous so far as is known. It is scarcely possible they could have been corrupted by Holmes in so short a time as has been stated. Minnie, after she became of age, started to organize a theatrical company and sunk $15,000 in the project. She shortly after that came to Chicago and there met Holmes. In June, 1893, she wrote to her sister to come up and visit her; that she was very wealthy and was going to marry Harry Gordon and take a trip to Europe. After her sister came Annie wrote a letter to forward her trunks, which were sent on in June, but were never called for. The trunks were finally returned to her aunt in Mississippi. The deed to the property was purported to have been made to one A. Bond in April, 1893. I believe there is no such person. The property is worth $50,000. This deed purports to have been acknowledged before Holmes as notary in May, 1893.

"An investigation shows that he did possess this qualification. The deed was not sent to Texas until June, 1894. It was not properly acknowledged, and was returned by the clerk so that it might be made to conform to the Texas laws. Shortly after this Holmes and Pielzel appeared in Fort Worth under the aliases of Lyman and Pratt. They came to sell part of the property, which they got $1500 for. On the rest of it they built a house, which is almost exactly like the one in Chicago, evidently made for selling purposes only.

"Quinlan was with them in Texas. Holmes and Pielzel got in debt to nearly everybody in town, and then left the city. I don't think there is the slightest question that Holmes killed the Williams girls. His story of one killing the other with a chair is too absurd to be believed for an instant."

Several other witnesses were examined, but none made any startling revelations. Leo X. Badenoch said at the conclusion of the day's work: "I don't believe I ever saw a case where we made such slow progress. Most of the evidence we have had is utterly worthless, and out of this great mass of chaff we are obliged to sift the wheat, and it is very thin that."

The missing girl whose name the police have been keeping from the press is Miss Wild, a Chicago girl, who has not been seen or heard from for two years. She was employed as a clerk for Holmes about two months before her disappearance. She was 16 years old then, in the spring of 1893, and left her home to go to work as usual, and never returned. She was pretty, and Holmes affected to be surprised when told of her disappearance.

Colonel Jonathan L. Belknap, an uncle of the father of the Wilmette wife of Holmes who resided for many years in Big Foot Prairie, L. L. has made a startling statement to the police regarding the death of Mrs. Julia L. Conner. According to his statement Mrs. Conner was killed by Holmes in the Englewood building four and a half years ago. He believes she was asphyxiated in her room while she slept. Her room was a small dark one adjoining the dark bathroom.

Mr. Belknap's theory is that the murderer entered the woman's room by the secret door from the bathroom, when he killed her by turning on the gas, carried her body to the bathtub, cut it to pieces and fed the parts to a furnace-like fire in the stove.

When the process of cremating was complete, Holmes carried the bones and ashes to the cellar and buried them in quicklime. Colonel Belknap, who served in the Union army, was one of the men whom Holmes tried to victimize. He became acquainted with Holmes through his nephew's relation to him. When Holmes learned that "Uncle" Belknap had a comfortable fortune he tried to swindle him out of it, and did get a loan of $1000, which was never repaid. After escaping from Holmes' clutches Mr. Belknap went to reside at Westons Mills, Cattaraugus County, N. Y., where he is now. The police have letters written by him to friends here which show that he and his wife spent Christmas with Holmes and Mrs. Conner, that he helped Holmes carry the stove through the secret door into the bathroom adjoining Mrs. Conner's room, and that the same night Mrs. Conner disappeared, going to Omaha, it was said.

MINNIE WILLIAMS' CAREER.

In Denver She Was Known as a Very Nice Girl. DENVER, COLO., July 26.—The unfortunate girl Minnie Williams, whose life went to pay for her affection for the monster Holmes, was known to a considerable number of Denver people, and is yet remembered with sad interest by them.

Miss Williams, her brother and sister came to Denver from Texas in the early part of 1892-93. She and her brother were seekers after health. They took rooms at 1425 Devonshire, an apartment-house at 1425 Logan avenue, and very soon became very popular with the guests of the house.

They lived in a considerable degree of style, and gave evidence, unostentatiously, of having means. Minnie was about 25 or 26 years of age, and besides being apparently well educated was an accomplished elocutionist. She had studied elocution in Boston. She appeared, in fact, for three weeks on the stage of the old Fifteenth-street Theater, a stock company then engaged there giving her the opportunity. The quality of her efforts is not very clear to those who remember her as a reciter, though she seems to have made a vivid impression.

She was quite pretty. Women who knew her then describe her now as "a sweet and lovely girl." They affirm of her character that it was gentle and not weak, and that her feeling for Holmes, whom she knew as Harry Gordon at that time, whatever it was, was no headlong infatuation for a romantic hero. The brother died in the latter part of the winter, and the sisters took the body home to Texas. The three were orphans. They had inherited money from their uncle. The impression prevails among those here who knew the girl that she met Holmes, whom she knew only as Gordon, in Chicago. Her fortune, though not very large, apparently was large enough to attract Holmes and to prove her own undoing. She married him as Gordon, with what result is but too well known.

He appeared in Denver some time after the World's Fair and told various friends of the girl that she had married and had gone to India with her husband. Whether this was before or after the marriage she girl cannot be learned. Holmes married the girl in Chicago, where she seems to have known him while studying there before coming to this city.

NOT VERY PROBABLE.

Minnie Williams of San Francisco Hardly Holmes' Victim. PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 26.—William A. Shoemaker, counsel for H. H. Holmes, the alleged multi-murderer, said that the Minnie Williams who was murdered in San Francisco last April was about the same age as the Minnie Williams mentioned as a possible victim of Holmes. He also pointed out that the girl murdered in San Francisco had no relatives and was, practically unknown. These facts lead him to suggest that the Minnie Williams of Philadelphia might be the girl whom he (Minnie Williams, who was murdered in Emmanuel Baptist Church, had a stepfather who had failed to support her. She was compelled to earn her living as a domestic.

PILOT CHART OF THE PACIFIC.

Reported Discovery of a Derelict Dangerous to Navigation. WASHINGTON, D. C., July 26.—The August pilot chart for the Pacific Ocean, published by the Hydrographic Office of Navy Department, notes the appearance July 21, 1895, of a derelict large wooden ship at about 50 deg. north latitude and 150 west longitude, mast and wreckage adrift; also a large log observed June 28 at 35 deg. north and 138 west. The following information is also printed on the chart:

Currents in the North Pacific during the summer months of June, July and August are indicated on the pilot chart for this month. First time, the compilation having just been completed at the Hydrographic Office. The data upon which predictions as to currents are based extend to 1894. The Hydrographic Office being considered. Special attention in reporting currents is requested of all observers cruising in the North Pacific.

Although the most favorable point for sailing vessels to visit is San Francisco, a current might be found by inspection of the pilot charts for the corresponding month of the previous year, the office will publish hereafter a table of currents in the North Pacific for the year 1895. This table will include a table of crossings in both the Atlantic and Pacific for certain months of the year, and information will be extended as data is accumulated.

SATOLLI PROMOTED.

A Rumor That He Has Been Attached to Leo's Staff. NEW YORK, N. Y., July 26.—The news has come by of Baltimore from Rome—and as Cardinal Gibbons is abroad there seems no doubt that the announcement is semi-official—that Mgr. Satolli, Papal Legation in Rome, is to be transferred to Rome to be made a Cardinal and to be attached to the personal staff of Leo XIII. This is a promotion and an important one, and it is said to be the personal act of Leo XIII. Mgr. Satolli is much impressed by the ability and diplomacy that Satolli has displayed since he has been in America. Satolli is virtually a pupil of the Pope. He graduated from the college of Cardinals in 1870, and was later, and where he was once Archbishop, and was personally a subordinate of the present Pope.

Brutal Treatment of a Minister.

LEAVENWORTH, KANS., July 26.—T. S. Rooks, the Baptist minister at Westmoreland, the county seat of Pottawatomie County, was tarred and feathered last night by four masked men who came to his house in a carriage and took him to the woods. Rooks was severely injured, and insisted on going. The minister is now at a farmhouse in a critical condition. The White Caps accuse him of assaulting a girl, and say he will be shot if he returns to the city. The men who tarred and feathered him are both sides. Mrs. Rooks says she knows the men and will get warrants for them.

SAN QUENTIN HANGING

Murderer Fredericks Executed His Crime on the Gallows.

WAS FIRM TO THE LAST.

Made a Parting Speech Before the Fatal Spring Was Touched.

HERRICK'S DEATH AVENGED.

Story of the Bold Killing for Which the Law Took Fredericks' Life.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, CAL., July 26. William Fredericks was hanged here this morning for the murder of W. A. Herrick, cashier of the branch bank of the San Francisco Savings Union. The doomed man made a short address from the scaffold, but otherwise the execution differed not at all from the ordinary and had scarcely an incident worthy of record. The crime of which it was the expiation was committed on March 23, 1894.

Fredericks' last night on earth was a very comfortable one. He retired at 9 o'clock, requesting Death Watch Aldrats to call him an hour after midnight. His sleep was sound, and when roused at the hour appointed he found his couch too comfortable to leave, and requesting that he be called again at 3 o'clock he rolled over and was asleep in an instant. At no time during the night was his sleep troubled nor did he exhibit restlessness.

At 3 o'clock Fredericks was awakened. He rose and dressed and passed an hour with his prayer-book. At 4:30 o'clock he returned to bed and slept again, the death watch having to awaken him for breakfast. The morning hours were spent with the prayer-book, the condemned man ceasing the perusal of its pages only to listen to the exhortations of the priests, who arrived from San Rafael about 9 o'clock.

At 9:55 o'clock Warden Hale entered the condemned man's cell. He announced the hour of execution, and Fredericks remarking "I am ready," leaned against the wall while the death warrant was read. Now that the hour of execution had arrived matters proceeded with awful celerity. Four minutes from the time that the warden entered the condemned cell Fredericks walked into the death chamber. The Warden and the prison chaplain headed the procession and two priests followed.

Fredericks himself was very pale, and Captain Lunt held him by one arm in case he should need support. His step, however, was firm and he glanced curiously upward at the rope as he ascended the gallows. As he stepped on the trap Warden Hale said:

"Gentlemen, Mr. Fredericks wishes to say four or five words. Please keep as quiet as possible."

The condemned man then spoke his prepared "last words," as printed in the CALL this morning. He had, however, imperfectly memorized the words, and faltered and stammered over the performance like an embarrassed schoolboy. Once he had to be prompted by Father Lagan, but he carried it off well, and except for a scarcely perceptible tremor at the words "I die," his voice was as unconcerned as when the day before he had asked for a light for his cigar.

At the conclusion of his set speech Fredericks added:

"The One who is above all, blessed be his name forever, amen."

The "amen" was shot forth with an emphasis which showed considerable strain. When Captain Lunt dropped the noose over Fredericks' head the latter turned to him and said:

"Make it good and tight."

Lunt did so as the black cap was adjusted, then stepped back and raised his hand. The trap crashed and Fredericks dropped the length of the rope. Only three minutes had elapsed since he entered the chamber, and only seven since Warden Hale had approached the condemned cell. Life was declared extinct in twelve and a half minutes, and the body was cut down and placed in the cheap, black prison coffin.

Fredericks carried the secret of his crimes with him to his grave. A short time before his execution he indignantly denied a rumor that he had made a confession, and also asserted his innocence of the killing of Sheriff Pascoe of Nevada County. The three sons of Pascoe were among the hundred or more witnesses to the execution, and a statement was made that their presence was due to an oath that they had taken over their father's body to avenge his death or witness the execution of his murderer. R. H. E. Miller, a cousin of Herrick, the murdered cashier, was also present.

The crime for which Fredericks to-day paid the penalty was one of the boldest in the criminal annals of this State. In broad daylight he entered the branch bank of the San Francisco Savings Union, near the corner of Fell and Market streets, approached the desk of Cashier Herrick and demanded money, enforcing his demand by presenting a loaded revolver. Herrick hesitated, and Fredericks pulled the trigger. The cartridge failed to explode, and Herrick reached for a revolver. Several shots were exchanged, and finally the cashier fell dead. Fredericks fled, but was speedily captured.

After conviction Fredericks essayed to escape the gallows by feigning insanity. He refused food, butted his head against the wall, and even set fire to his cell. When taken to San Francisco recently for sentence he created an uproar in the courtroom; but since he realized that his attempted deception did not deceive he abandoned all efforts in that direction.

There remain in the condemned cells three men under sentence of death. They are: Freeman Smith, who will die on the 9th prox. for the murder of two fishermen in Colusa County; Marshall, the Riverside assassin, and Miller, who killed an old pawnbroker in Marysville. Before the execution Smith joked about the event, but after the drop fell he joined in a request by the condemned that no one be admitted to see them.

GATLING GUNS FOR ROYALISTS.

Arms for the Hawaiians Said to Be En Route From the East. TACOMA, WASH., July 26.—Six Gatling guns, intended for the use of the Hawaiian royalists, are said to be en route to Puget Sound from one of the Eastern States. The Hawaiian Government learned that they had been ordered, and recently sent a secret service agent here to intercept them.

This agent arrived last week and gives his name as H. H. Allan. He bears credentials signed by high officials of the republic. He told the Northern Pacific officials that he did not think they should carry contraband articles over their road. They smiled and said the road would haul all freight offered.

If the guns arrive Allan will notify the customs authorities and ask them to stop their shipment. His belief is that they will be loaded aboard some lumber schooner and shipped to Hawaii. He has employed a Seattle detective to watch the Great Northern there. Railroad men say they have no knowledge of the guns. Allan thinks the royalists are planning for a demonstration next September.

MUST TAKE THE OATH.

Governor Budd's Manifesto Regarding Foreign Military Societies.

Allegiance to the United States a Requisite to Their Organization.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., July 26.—After the close of the late session of the Legislature considerable comment and anxiety became prevalent among the members of foreign military organizations in the State as to the action which would be taken in amendment of section 1942 of the Political Code, making it unlawful for bodies other than the regular organized National Guard of this State and the troops of the United States to band together as a military organization, or to drill or parade with arms, in this State without the license of the Governor, which license may at any time be revoked and amended. A new section (734) to the Penal Code to the same effect was approved March 26. This afternoon the following manifesto in reference to the law was issued from the Governor's office:

Many applications having been made to me by various military organizations in this State, coming within the scope of said law, requesting permission to parade and drill with arms, I have, therefore, in accordance with the power and authority vested in me by said law, James H. Budd, Governor of the State of California, will permit the National Guard companies or organizations to parade and drill with arms only on the following conditions, to-wit: First—That the oath of allegiance to the United States and the State of California be taken by each member of such military company or organization so drilling or parading. Second—That said oaths be filed in the office of the adjutant-general of California, with an affidavit by said company or organization, and all times, when called upon to defend the Government or uphold the laws of the United States, or in any state of California, or in case of emergency, such military company or organization will place itself and its arms and equipments under the authority and control of the executive power of the United States or of the commander-in-chief of the State. Third—That a copy of the constitution and by-laws of such military company or organization, asking such a license, be first filed with, and approved by, the Governor. Fourth—That no flag or insignia, except our National or State flags shall be carried in the ranks of said military company or organization while so drilling or parading. Fifth—That such companies or organizations desiring a license to drill or parade with arms are requested to file their applications, together with an affidavit to agree to comply with section 4, before such leave will be issued. JAMES H. BUDD, Governor of California.

ZIEGLER WON ONE RACE.

The California Demon Kept Up His Record by Speed. NEWARK, OHIO, July 26.—The honors of Newark's race meeting of the National circuit given by the Newark Cycling Association, at the fair grounds track, belonged to Murphy of Brooklyn, N. Y., the veteran, who has been on the path longer than any other American racing man, and Ziegler, the little California "demon." Murphy won the mile open, Ziegler the half-mile open, both of them defeating Bald and Gardner.

The most surprising race of the day was Murphy's win of the mile open in 2:40.34. The track was fast, but a strong wind blew up the back stretch and retarded the men somewhat. Ziegler gave indication to-day of return to the wonderful speed he displayed at Denver last season. He defeated Bald, Gardner, Murphy, L. C. Johnson and Jenny, which ran in the order named, all close together, Ziegler winning by a length. Lee Richardson of Chicago broke his half-mile record, and wheel backward, doing the trick in 1:43.3-5, ten seconds below his former record.

express-car, awaken the messenger, and tell him to come out. I did as requested, and the messenger was equally obedient. "The smaller robber, who seemed to be quite nervous and ashamed of himself, then entered the express-car, while we all stood outside, covered by the tall man. After the express-car had been looted, a tour of the passenger coaches was made; the small man searched the passengers and dropped their coin and valuables into the sack they carried. As we entered the smoking-car I noticed a man crouched between two seats on his knees, and immediately recognized Sheriff Bogard of Tehama County. He whispered to me these words, "How many?" I replied "Two."

"The next minute I observed him taking aim at the tall robber, resting his hands and pistol over the back of one of the seats. At the report of his pistol the tall robber sank to the floor. The other then shot twice at Bogard, who walked backward about ten feet and fell on his stomach over a seat. The poor fellow died in a few minutes. The small robber then backed out of the car, the while advising us to remain in our respective positions. That is just how it all happened."

The pursuit of Brady was never relinquished. Officers have been constantly upon his trail and he has been pursued from one hiding place to another.
