

AT THE GREAT SILVER CONVENTION.

Thomas V. Cator and Morris M. Estee on the Same Platform.

PREPARING THE PLANKS.

Timothy Guy Phelps Makes a Stirring Address to the Bimetallists.

ALL FOR THE WHITE METAL.

Phoebe Cousins Welcomed With Flowers and Enthusiasm—Frona Eunice Waite To-Day.

Shortly before the convention was called to order yesterday morning Secretary of State Howell of Nevada hoisted the silver banner presented to Eureka County four years ago by the Nevada Silver State, the silver organ of Winnemucca, edited by George W. Nixon. Eureka, in proportion to her population, polled the largest number of silver votes when the revolt began, and won the prize.

It was heavily adorned with a silver fringe and surmounted by a solid bullion eagle.

At 10 o'clock the Continental drum and fife band of our forefathers filed in and introduced the soul-stirring strains of "Yankee Doodle."

President Baker called the meeting to order, and the report of the committee on credentials was read and adopted. There were 647 delegates present, and on motion the roll was not called.

The following report of the committee on permanent organization and order of business was read by the secretary:

Your committee on permanent organization

The League for the State of California, and instructed to proceed without delay to organize bimetallic leagues throughout the State of California, in accordance with the instructions of the National committee of the American Bimetallic League; George W. Baker, Republican; Hon. Thomas J. Clunie, Democrat; Alexander Majors, Populist.

J. H. TIMONAN, Chairman. The report was adopted and in a brief speech George W. Baker thanked the convention for the honor of being made its chairman, saying:

"I have come into the fight to stay and will remain until its party is one of the successful parties of American politics." Timothy Guy Phelps of San Mateo County was announced by Chairman Baker and spoke of the issue of bimetallicism in the following strain:

"We have met to discover how the crime of 1873 can best be overcome; how our paralyzed industries can be revived; how American labor can best be elevated to the position it occupied years ago; how the vast army of tramps can be made industrious workmen with plenty of employment. There can be no doubt that a majority of our people favor bimetallicism. We will see that there is no chance for equivocation and that the issue is squarely met."

"We believe that the demonization of silver was class legislation and that it was for the creditor class and oppressed the debtor class."

"We have suffered all the loss and England has reaped the harvest. The American Nation knew nothing about the demonization measure that was pending before Congress, and our ablest men, Thurman, Morgan and others, did not know of it. Even the President when he signed the bill knew not what he was doing, so surreptitiously was it engineered through Congress."

"As soon as the American people knew what had been done they tried to right present conditions simply because the goldbugs wish to remain in the same place where they now find enjoyment and high rates. If the Latin Union and Germany will not remonetize silver let America do so, and they will be forced into it. Let the greatest Nation on earth, America, remonetize silver and set the pace. Let us have the metallic money of the world and we can then dispose of our surplus products.

and now they are howling about the tariff. "Mark you, I can go on naming such men as Hoke Smith and Ben Harrison and Cleveland and Sherman and Carlisle and Reed and a score of others who are combined to down free silver."

"The great mass of people are generally right in National matters, but they are not able to effect their reforms. They are never heard in a National convention, and when they do raise their voice it is immediately drowned by the moneyed interests and they are downed."

"Delegates of this convention, the entire United States from the East and North and South has its eyes turned upon you waiting for your action, and may do as

TIMOTHY GUY PHELPS. [Sketched by a "Call" artist.]

"Think of it: the chief officer of a Nation of 65,000,000 negotiating with the bankers of the United States to save the credit and honor of the United States. That's what they are doing, and it makes my blood feel uncomfortably hot."

"Oh, that we had a Jackson for President and a Walker as Secretary of the Treasury to rise up and say:

"By the eternal, this shall not be!"

"Three years ago 3 per cent bonds sold at a premium, and now 5 per cent bonds are hard to dispose of. Does it not show that gold is appreciating? What has become of the millions of gold that have been produced in California? They have been disposed of in paying interest and in meeting the demands of the arts. Up to 1892 we had produced $428,000,000 in gold in California, and of that but $192,000,000 was used in the arts, but this goes on in every country. Where is the rest?"

Mr. Phelps went into statistical details on the subject of a double standard and reverted to the purchasing power of a silver dollar and a gold dollar.

"What!" exclaimed Mr. Phelps. "Do the goldbugs want to reduce American labor to the wages of England, Japan, China, Germany and all Europe? I say let God forbid it!"

Mr. Phelps closed amid considerable applause and was followed by Robert M. Beatty of Nevada.

"What we are here for," began Mr. Beatty, "is to see what can be done in the matter of bringing about the free coinage of both silver and gold, at the ratio of 16 to 1 irrespective of any other Nation on earth. In Nevada we passed through two successive campaigns with the question of free coinage as the watchword. We were combined in leagues and would not support a man who was not with us on the question of free coinage. Remember why we supported James B. Weaver. He was the only candidate on the Presidential ticket who was for free coinage, and we carried the State for him. Remember, if you will, that consistency is a jewel, but do not forget, also, that consistency has pawned her jewels."

"There are a great many forces and influences combined against all of our silver champions and whenever a man dares to proclaim for the double standard he is hounded by the goldbugs of the East. The Democrats have had a chance to remonetize silver for the last four years. They have not done it."

"Up in Nevada, I am surprised to say, the people are carrying Cleveland badges, but they are upon the elbows of their coats and the seat of their pants. [Cheers.]

"There is no issue between the two great parties now, and all the old fads of both parties are gone. The bloody shirt has followed in the wake of the carpetbagger, they did when that God-inspired Declaration of Independence was created. 'Will they do it? Dare they do it?'"

"Later on the black man was made free from his wealthy master by the effective bullet, and now we 65,000,000 white slaves will free ourselves from the moneyed tyrants by the no less effective ballot."

"I want to be excused," said Mr. Hurley, "while I get my breath. I am a new convert to the gospel of free coinage."

"I was a goldbug, not because I was dishonest, but because I did not understand the silver question. There are a great many men who have convictions, and they do not care to admit that they are stupidly and bullheadedly ignorant."

"We are like the picked fishermen who were sent out from the shores of Galilee to get converts and haul them into the church. 'I feel that I can do more effective work in the Republican ranks than I can as a doricist issue. I can tell them that if they don't get into line and vote for free coinage they will be eternally damned. [Applause.]"

"I am picking up all the information I can on this question, and I want to see why it is that America shall not begin to establish its own financial policy."

"Let us not wait for the wrongdoers to right themselves, but let us set the example. Suppose a Bishop should wait for the devil to get respectable and then follow suit? Let all the prayer-meetings over free coinage be absolute revivals of right, and let them fight until the victory is ours."

"Now take a case in point. Suppose I have $10,000 in silver. We can, to be sure, pay our small bills with that money, but suppose it is in a vault and ere comes and melts both silver and gold? What is the result? The man with the silver has got metal left on his hands which is worth but 50 cents on the dollar, but I can go to the United States mint and get my gold coined back into money for a mere trifle. Why is this? Simply because that silver is without the stamp of the Government and through having been melted it has lost that stamp of approval, and is, as the goldbugs have made it, a mere commodity."

Mr. Hurley sprinkled interesting stories through his speech, and closed by leaving a very satisfied and pleased audience to applaud him.

Chairman Baker announced that all delegates who had resolutions to offer could do so at that juncture.

Resolutions were offered by Easton of Stockton and Majors of Alameda. The morning session then adjourned until 2 o'clock.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

Stirring Speeches Are Delivered by Thompson, Holladay and Cator. When Chairman Baker called to order

FIERCE BATTLES ON THE FRONTIER.

The afternoon session Delegate Cochran announced the arrival of Delegate L. A. Wright of San Diego and the latter's name went to the credentials committee.

Chairman Baker said the platform committee would report Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and that the intention was to devote that afternoon session to the discussion of its report. The programme of the present was then announced to consist of impromptu addresses by members from the floor.

This was done as an invitation for all who desired to speak. Delegate Thompson of Sacramento, who represented the colored men of his city, was the first to respond. He said the colored man had reached that stage of enlightenment now when he began to examine the political principles of this or that party which bid for his support before the support was accorded. As for himself, he should vote the ticket of that party which stood nearest the one great desideratum—bimetallicism. Whatever party should adopt the principles of free silver, that party would command his vote and his voice. He would vote only for the candidates that were pledged solemnly for financial reform, and for the privilege of voting for such men he would willingly go barefoot this winter. A great many of his colored brethren felt the same way about the matter. As for himself, Mr. Thompson declared that he would go out now and labor in the vineyard of financial ruin, striving his might and main to convert what sinners he could to the salvation of free silver.

When the long, silvered locks of S. W. Holladay of this city were reared above the seats and their owner made his way to the platform there was a hearty applause. "You can tell from my color that I am for free silver," he said. And he had favored free silver ever since he discovered "the great fraud that had been perpetrated on the people by the repeal of silver in 1873." He expressed himself as delighted with the numerical strength, the intelligence and the enthusiasm of the convention. It gave him great hope for the ultimate triumph of right and justice. He was not a delegate, but a friend who knew his sympathies for the movement had pinned a badge on his coat—and he was proud of that badge.

He said he considered the present convention as a great educational institution, and its lessons of patriotism and wisdom

Salvador Indians Defeated the Regular Troops of Guatemala.

COJUTEPECUENS RILED.

They Crossed into the La Paz Country and Fought Stubbornly.

MANY ON EACH SIDE KILLED.

Re-enforcements Hurred to the Scene of Conflict and Complications May Arise.

SANTA ANA, SALVADOR, Aug. 20.—Parties just arrived from the Salvador-Guatemala frontier say that 400 soldiers, formed of Cojutepecu Indians, the bravest fighters of Central America, reached Apuchapan on Friday afternoon, taking the station there and awaiting the arrival of the first command, which is to be distributed along the whole frontier along the La Paz River.

Saturday morning a number of Cojutepecuens got drunk and crossed into Guatemalan territory, where they committed many excesses and started to burn huts, when the Guatemalan picket, composed of forty-two men, under command of Lieutenant Ynocente Rodriguez, attempted to drive the Cojutepecuens by force, which the Indians resented. A fight lasting an hour and a half ensued, resulting in the death of seven Guatemalans and four Salvadorans. The wounded were twelve Guatemalans and six Salvadorans. The Indians numbered twenty-eight.

The Indians in the meantime sent for aid. When the Guatemalans saw the Cojutepecu re-enforcements coming they fled, closely pursued by the Indians for two miles. At 5 o'clock Saturday evening the Guatemalans, re-enforced to 150 men, under command of Venecalso Uribe, returned and attacked the Cojutepecuens, who were carousing, but who also had 140 men. The Indians attempted to retreat out of the country, when they were attacked and a fierce fight ensued, which only ended with darkness. Both parties then rested on their arms, burying their dead.

Early Sunday morning the fight was resumed. The Guatemalans were again forced to flee, leaving six dead, eleven wounded and twenty-one prisoners in the hands of the Cojutepecuens. At noon the Cojutepecuens recrossed the frontier.

The Indians had no officers with them and fought independently, and now threaten to go back and fight. Their officers are trying to restrain them. The Guatemalans now number 450 soldiers on La Paz River and will await further instructions. The regular Salvadoran troops are going to relieve the Cojutepecuens, who are likely to cause trouble between the two countries, as they cordially hate the Guatemalans. The Guatemalans near the frontier are assuming a threatening attitude. It will be difficult to avoid serious international complications.

The Government officials here denied the story at first, but now say it was unimportant and but a brawl among drunken Indians. It is reported that soldiers will leave here to-day for the scene of the fighting. Telegraphic orders have been sent that the Indians be withdrawn, and those on the march received orders to countermarch and proceed to San Sonate for the present. Troops from the capital, it is announced, will arrive here this afternoon. A telegram from a correspondent in San Salvador City says that the Government strenuously denies that any international difficulties will ensue.

The Government emphatically denies that Cojutepecu Indian soldiers violated Guatemala territory. A well-informed person told THE CALL correspondent that a few drunken Indians had a row with the soldiers, but that neither were an organized body.

It is known that an investigation has been ordered and more troops sent to the frontier. The Cojutepecu Indians are known to be rioting at Nahualcalco whither troops have been sent from Santa Ana. It is feared the riots will extend to Santa Tecla, where is stationed General Manuel Rivas, whom the Cojutepecu consider their chief.

GUATEMALA, Aug. 20.—A correspondent inquired this morning at the War Department whether any news of a conflict Sunday at Ahuachapan between Guatemalan troops and Cojutepecu Indians, and was informed that nothing was known officially, though rumors were current of a slight conflict in which were drunken Indians, who were arrested and sent across the frontier by soldiers.

Men who do that are the greatest criminals of this or any other age, he thought. He noted the silver men of the United States would not be hoodwinked by any such performance in the coming election. They must indorse only an open, plain-spoken declaration for free silver, with no double interpretation. We were always sure of the people, he thought, if they were not misled. Nothing short of a declaration for the coinage of silver in the ratio of 16 to 1 should be accepted.

Now what was to be the dogma of propaganda for the campaign? There must be one faith among all silver men. They must stand united on one or two simple fundamentals if they expected to win. Two things should, then, be laid at the foundation: First, what is wanted? Second, the ways and means of obtaining it. It was needless for him to discuss the first. Every delegate knew what was wanted, knew all about the silver question, or he was not fit to be a delegate.

As to how to obtain it? That was another matter. We must understand the needs of the people, consider their necessities and their temper. What was the matter with the body politic? he asked. The canker of usury was eating its heart out. The simple truth was that the nation could
