WERE NATIVES OF IRELAND.

The Rev. Father Nugent of St. Rose's parish makes the following statement concerning the Gallaghers and the good uses to which their money was put toward the construction of his new church building:

"Thomas Gallagher, who earned the money, and Mrs. Ellen Gallagher who advanced it, in compliance with an explicit understanding with her husband, for building St. Rose's splendid new church, in course of erection on Brannan street, were natives of County Donegal, Ireland, and the families of both were acquainted. Mr. Gallagher learned the trade of blacksmith in his native country and worked some time in England before coming to America. He first got employment in Philadelphia, to which city his future wife had also emigrated. He next went or was sent to the State of Maine, where through his own ingenuity he erected new gas works, and he was afterward brought to this city under contract of the Donahue brothers (Peter and James) to superintend the laying of the gas mains.

"From this place he went to Stockton, where he built the gas works, and after a few years sold out, returned to San Francisco and invested what money he realized in property on Kearny street. It is the proceeds of the rents and sale of this property that is now building St. Rose's Church, which will be one of the finest churches on the coast and an ornament to the city.

"Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher were well met, being of a religious turn of mind, and having no children, they gave up the idea, over a quarter of a century ago, of making a fortune in California.

Another charge to be brought against Huntington on his arrival here.

In the light of developments made within the past twenty-four hours by members of the American Railway Union they are more than ever determined to prosecute C. P. Huntington on the charge of having violated the interstate commerce act in issuing a pass to Frank M. Stone.

They now claim to have evidence that the pass given to Stone by the Southern Pacific president has been used not only in an interstate journey but for a trip across the continent, and to have the most positive evidence of its use between Ogden and San Francisco.

In January, 1894, Stone went to New York for Dr. McDonald in reference to matters connected with the Pacific and People's banks, and some of the ex-strikers state that they can prove that the pass was used on this trip, for part of it to Ogden, if not clear across to the Atlantic.

It is not proposed to drop the pending case in which Stone used the pass to Redding, but a double use of the pass will be charged.

When Mr. Huntington arrives here a warrant will be sworn out for his arrest before Mayor Suro under a Federal statute creating Mayors Federal magistrates. The case will then be taken before the Federal Grand Jury and the United States Attorney general will probably be asked to appoint special counsel to prosecute the case.

A Legal Holiday May Postpone the Durran Case for Twenty-Four Hours.

It is possible that the opposing forces in the Durran case may assemble in court tomorrow only to take an adjournment for twenty-four hours.

Attorney Deuprey has learned that Monday is Labor day, and that Labor day was made a legal holiday by a recent act of Congress.

There is a question as to the bearing of the act of Congress, in that California is celebrating a Labor day of her own, but in case Judge Murphy rules adversely in the matter an exception will be taken and a point made whereon to hang an appeal to the Supreme Court.

The members of the District Attorney's office to whom Deuprey communicated his discovery hold the opinion that there is nothing in the point. Presiding Judge Sanderson believes, however, that in case an objection is raised, it would in a case of this importance be wise to allow it. But he will not as presiding judge issue any order affecting the other departments. Judge Murphy declines to discuss the matter till the objection is raised in his own court.

NEW POLITICAL MOVE.

Gunst and Rainey Said to Be Working for an Increased Police Force.

It was common talk yesterday that a determined effort will be made at the next meeting of the Board of Supervisors to revive the ordinance introduced some time ago in regard to adding seventy-five men to the police force.

The proposed increase found favor in the eyes of Supervisors King, Benjamin, Hughes, Dimond and Dunker, while the remainder of the board were opposed to anything not necessary, particularly when such action meant extra cost to the city.

It develops, however, that a large part of the opposition was the result of internal dissension over the question of patronage. One party wanted the Supervisors to have the naming of about twenty members, or five each, while the other thought that they could easily get along with two or three, leaving the balance to the Police Commissioners.

Sam Rainey and Moses A. Gunst have thrown themselves into the breach, as the story goes, and have secured the consent of the members, who stood out for five places each, to reduce their claim to three, or thirty-six for the entire board.

Rainey and Gunst are now using their influence with Supervisors Wagner and Morgan in the hope of inducing these gentlemen to vote with Messrs. King, Benjamin, Dimond, Hughes and Dunker.

Ned Lanigan, who is the strong personal friend and political fellow of Supervisor Wagner, has been heard of by a gentleman melting under the influence of either Rainey or Gunst; neither does he think it possible for sufficient influence to be brought to bear on any of the other Supervisors to cause them to change front.
