[Special Correspondence of THE CALL.]

SAN ANDREAS, CAL., Sept. 25 .- Between San Andreas and Angels, a distance of twelve miles, the Thorpe mine is the only one actively and systematically at work on the mother lode. Prospecting is going on at several points, but in a haphazard portance and is being watched with great ing in the discovery of more bonanzas such as the Utica now has. All along the pockets, but often being the feeders and leaders of the larger pockets or chimneys, after these rich stringers and bunches have extended to the surface, have been traced to their source by following up the float rock and placer gold, and worked to the water level or to a depth where machinery became necessary for further development. At this point usually they were deserted for new and easier diggings, the shafts and tunnels left to cave and hide the real nature of the veins from future explorers, and the old sheds and buildings to go to decay and discourage the uninitiated by conveying the impression of a non-paying or worked-out mine.

Many evidences of this nature exist around San Andreas, and their effect seems to be to discourage exploration, when in reality it is a good sign and should encourage systematic and determined prospecting at greater depths. Many a good ledge has been condemned as a pocket vein, simply because above the water level the atmosphere has decomposed the iron and liberated the gold from the sulphurets, and the free gold and the sulpheret gold combined identification placed there for a purpose. have constituted a pocket, readily obtained | The Supreme Court held that they were by simple processes. It may have been simply a chimney of pay ore, of undetermined and possible great depth.

Prospectors have, heretofore, paid but little attention to sulphurets, probably in a majority of cases not even having an assay made to determine their value. Along the mother lode that sort of prospecting will no longer answer. The proportion and value of the sulphurets in ore has become an important considera-tion, in many cases the total net profit depending on that factor. The methods of saving and working sulphurets have been so perfected that in many cases old tailings where they were not separated pay better ways felmin distin. It is the explorer to indicate where gold exists, and for the exploiter to determine its extent and availability. The explorer is equipped with pick and pan and shovel. The would-be exploiter along the mother lode must recognize the fact from the beginning that only with machinery—and the latest and best machinery—is he suitably equipped to grapple with the problem that confronts him.

A hundred-foot shaft may show a good

A hundred-foot shaft may show a good prospect, but it may require a thousand-foot shaft to prove a good mine.
Good machinery and deep sinking require capital, and the man who owns the hundred-foot prospect should be the first to recognize this fact, and to encourage the advent of capital along the mother lode by reasonable prices and liberal concessions. Past experience seems to justify the belief that along the mother lode mines improve at depth.

The man who risks his capital by accepting and acting upon this theory is entitled to every encouragement from those who have no capital to risk, or having it, are afraid to make the venture.

The revival in mining has brought to the front hundreds of men owning claims which they are not able to work and are anxious to dispose of. Many of these claims have not had sufficient work done on them to indicate any value, and some of them have not even a vein in sight, but are possibly in line with a vein that crops at some more or less remote distance. The price asked for the claim "in the air" is sometimes higher than for a good pros-

I have run across several of this kind. Claim-holders make a great mistake in Their claims are worth now just what they would have been glad to accept for years past—$10, $20 or $30 an acre—and just what they would be glad to accept years hence. Some, from their location, have a reasonably enhanced speculative value; but sensible men, when they reflect how few of the many hundreds of claims will really become valuable mines, will be glad to get a fair price at the first oppor-

Another mistake which many miners make, and which is deserving of severe condemnation, is the habit of running down a neighbor's property in trying to dispose of their own. Such a course rarely accomplishes the desired object, and its only effect is generally to dispust the customers. only effect is generally to disgust the customer with the individual resorting to such methods. Most mines nowadays are bought upon the recommendation of scientific experts or men of large practical experience in mining, and such men are little influenced in their judgment by good or bad opinions expressed by anybody.

They pursue an established and methodant methods. they pursue an established and method-ical system of investigation which enables them usually to arrive at just conclusions, if they be competent and honorable men. Every men who has only a prospect lives in a glass nouse, and can't afford to throw stones. The blanks in the lottery of min-Ing are so many that no man and no com-munity can afford to discourage capital munity can afford to discourage capital seeking investment in that field by petty or selfish tattle or slander.

The Thorpe mine is one of the class spoken of as having been worked to the water level in early days and then deserted. The gulch leading up to it was rich in free gold, and when the big vein was encountered investigation proved it to be the source of the placer. A mill was a rected and the pay chute worked down 100 feet, when it was abandoned rather than incur the expense of pumping and other machinery. The mine laid idle until ast April, when the present company took ast April, when the present company took hold and has been vigorously at work ever

Machinery was ordered capable of sinking 1000 feet, the necessary buildings prected and work begun on the shaft. working without friction, the shaft is down 300 feet, and the first crosscut is being made at the 250-foot level. The Thorpe mine has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $500,000, in 200,000 with a capital stock of $500,000, in 200,000 shares at $2 50 par value. The stock has not been put upon the market, and will not be until developments warrant.

The principal stockholders and officers of the company are: F. H. Rosenbaum, president; F. Ewch, vice-president: G. A. Schuster, treasurer; A. F. Frey, secretary; L. Allgewahr, superintendent. The office of the company is at 567 Market street. San of the company is at 567 Market street, San Francisco. The company owns 450 acres of land, through which the mother lode runs for one mile.

Superintendent Allgewahr has had many Superintendent Allgewahr has had many years' experience mining in Idaho. He is a working superintendent, doing all his own assaying and personally superintending all the details about the mine. Mr. Allgewahr is very sanguine that the company has a big mine. He states that the crosscut on the 250 level has passed through sixty feet of quartz, with neither hanging nor foot wall in sight.

The vein will be crosscut to both walls and then drifted on both ways. The quartz in the vein is low grade, carrying a good percentage of sulphurets. Some of it will pay to mill, but none will be stoped until large resources are opened up. After this level is thoroughly opened up the shaft will be sunk 200 feet deeper, when Mr. Allgewahr expects a bonanza, as all the indications seem to point to continued improvement in depth.

All the machinery at the mine is the best to be had and gives great satisfaction.

The hoisting engine is thirty horsepower and the machinery at the machinery and the machinery are the machinery and the machinery and the machinery are the machinery are the machinery and the machinery are the ma and the pumping engine forty horsepower. The Cornish pump is able to raise 250,000 gallons of water in twenty-four hours. At present it is only working about a quarter of the time. Demarest & Fullen of the Altaville Foundry built most of the machinery and set it up, and their work is highly commended. Making a specialty of and superficial way. The work being done at the Thorpe mine is of the utmost imperfect go out of their shops, their reputation is extending throughout the mining counties of the State.

Should a chute of good ore be developed there it would encourage deep prospecting for miles on either side, ultimately resultcompany develop the bonanza it is looking for. The magnitude of the property is so mother lode, at irregular intervals and at varying depths, are chimneys of low-grade ore that will pay well to mill, alternating and blending with exceedingly rich bunches and stratas, usually termed pockets, but often being the feeders and general rejoicing, or where the result would be more important and far-reach-

Immediately north of the Thorpe is the ranch of A. H. Wells, the hotel-keeper at Fourth Crossing, comprising 550 acres and containing within its boundaries several quartz veins of the mother lode series, most of them unprospected. On the continuation of the Thorpe vein, which is supposed to be the Utica or east ledge, a prospect hole is being sunk at present which at a depth of eight feet shows good mill rock, with the probabilities of a very large and strong vein. The mining claim has already been bonded while the parties doing the work try to secure capital to develop it.

Trial at Santa Rosa for Murderous Assault on an Italian.

AS FUNNY AS A CIRCUS.

They Hail From Healdsburg and Are a Bad Lot of Red Men.

CUT OFF THEIR VICTIM'S EAR.

The Man Was Left for Dead, but Managed to Give the Alarm.

SANTA ROSA, CAL., Sept. 28.—Indians crowded the corridors of the Courthouse vesterday. There were more Indians about the big county building than had been seen for many days. They were dressed in true civilized Indian style. The ladies were profusely ornamented by bright new handkerchiefs, and a number of them showed evidence of recent familiarity with a comb and brush. Some of the red gentlemen looked neat, but the majority of them were uncombed.

They were all in good spirits, for there is nothing they enjoy more than attendance at court. To them it is the next thing in point of interest to a circus, and they watch the attorneys as they handle the witnesses as intently as they view the funny little encounters that take place between the jolly clowns inside the big tent. They seldom say anything while in the courtroom.

Occasionally they smile and nudge each other in the ribs, but that is all. They look and listen.

The case which brought them here was that of The People vs. Willis Dugan and Jim Frego, Healdsburg Indians, charged with making an assault with intent to commit murder on the person of P. Alberigo. The trouble is said to have occurred in a cabin near Healdsburg. It is claimed that the Indians went into Alberigo's cabin and made an assault upon him with knives, injuring him severely. Among the witnesses called for the prosecution are J. C. Ingalls, Charles Truett, C. A. Mason, L. A. Norton, Peter Alberigo, Dr. Ward and N. Gusti. The evidence so far would indicate that the two Indians were the worse for liquor when they went to the cabin door of the Italian, who refused to let them in.

They then proceeded to force the door with a mattock. Then they went for the Italian, who was unarmed and defenseless One of the Indians picked up a sharp hook used for cutting brush and while his companion held their victim inflicted twentyfour severe wounds on the poor Italian.

The poor man's head was literally scalped on one side. The right ear was cut off close to the skull. In holding up his right hand, as a man will do sometimes in defending himself, he had the middle finger cut clear through to the

As soon as the two Indians left the Italian managed to crawl to a neighbor's house, when the alarm was raised and the Indians were soon captured and placed in the calaboose at Healdsburg. How the Italian managed to escape being killed is a

The Convention of Sacramento Democrats Ended in a Tumult.

Delegates Left Their Seats and Refused to Listen to the Chairman.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., Sept. 29 .- The Democratic convention, which convened in Armory Hall this evening for the purpose of nominating candidates for city offices, was the hottest affair of its kind that has ever occurred in this city.

The first battle of the evening occurred over the election of temporary chairman, which consumed over two hours.

The candidates for the position were J. by the Steinman faction, and C. M. Harrison, nominated by the opposition. The vote was taken by rollcall, and was so close that for nearly two hours no decision was arrived at, and the hall became a scene of pandemonium.

The hoots and yells were deafening and

The hoots and yells were deatening and incessant; fights were of frequent occurrence, but were quickly quelled by the police who, although powerless to pre erve any semblance of order, prevented a riot which at times seemed imminent. Eventually Mr. Hughes was announced as having secured the honor by one vote. The total number cast was 219, Hughes receiving 110 and Harrison 109.

ing 110 and Harrison 109.

When the report of the committee on credentials stated that proxies would be allowed to be voted there was an amendment added that the report be changed so as not to allow the voting of proxies. A rollcall was demanded, and Chairman Hughes decided that proxies could be used to decide the question. There was an immediate uproar, members leaving their chairs and rushing up to the rostrum.

All the sergeants-at-arms were swept aside and the chairman declared he would entertain no motion until order was restored. The delegates retused to return to their seats and at 1 o'clock they were still singing "We won't go home till morning" at the top of their lungs, with no possibility of any nominations to-night.

STATE FAIR RETURNS.

Indebtedness of the Society Decreased Eight Thousand Dollars. SACRAMENTO, CAL., Sept. 28 .- The executive and finance committees of the State Board of Agriculture met yesterday to audit bills and adjust the finances of the and Emslie society for another year.

The indebtedness of the society when the fair opened aggregated nearly $24,000, and the management had hoped to lift one half or more of the debt, but the unseasonhalf or more of the debt, but the unseasonable rain proved a barrier to that result. As it was, they have succeeded in reducing it about $8000, which, in addition to the expenses of the year, is quite satisfactory to the directorate. The committee believes that the rains and delays of the parades cost the society fully $10,000. The park was leased for another year to Willard Gardner, the present lessee.

FRESNO, CAL., Sept. 28.—The petition f Achille Fournier, charged with arson at Madera, for a writ of habeas corpus was granted by Judge Carter to-day, and Fournier is now a free man. The case was an interesting one in many respects. Fournier was charged with start ing the big fire in Madera over two months ago. Fournier's buildings were burned, and it was alleged that he had applied the match to get the insurance. At his preliminary examination Fournier was bound over, and he has been in the Fresno County Jail ever since for safe After he had been held Fournier made an application before Judge Conley of Madera for a writ of habeas corpus, but the Judge refused to entertain a hearing.

Court, which ordered that the habeas corpus proceedings be heard in the Superior Court of this county.

In granting the petition Judge Carter said that the only evidence against Fournier was the confession of Andrew Anderson, who admitted that he had set the fire and had been paid $3 50 by Fournier to do it. But it was plain that Anderson had made this coniession under duress, and he had afterward denied the truth of it. He is now on trial in Madera on the charge of SACRAMENTO, CAL., Sept. 28. - An alarm of fire turned in this afternoon has developed the fact that there is a very precocious firebug in the city, whose name is given as Ray Gould, and whose age is stated to be but 6 years. The urchin seems by all reports to possess a decided penchant for incendiary pursuits, and it is not as yet fully known how many blazes he may be responsible

It is claimed that he has acknowledged being the author of the fires of to-day.

The first blaze occurred in the basement of M. Smith's livery stable, in which was stored a quantity of hay. As soon as this fire was extinguished the lad ran down a block, it is claimed, and set fire to a lot of hay in the livery stable of T. Camp-

The loss on the latter was in the neighborhood of $500, while Smith's loss was about $300, fully covered by insurance. The lad has been arrested and occupies a cell in the city prison.

The sweeping capture of the Vienna Mu nicipal Council by the Anti-Semites is treated everywhere as involving a great deal more than local politics. The foreign Embassadors at the Austrian court have notified their Governments of it as if it were of international importance.

The campaign of which it is the culmin ation offers many parallels to the memorable Boulangist epidemic in France. The victorious party is a coalition of a lot of restless elements, sweeping up together extreme clericals, the ultra-feudal aristocracy and all shades of the proletariat down to the labor agitators and socialists. The numerical and financial strength of the Jews in Vienna, as in most other cisleithan towns, makes hostility to them the most telling pretext for this crusade, but the real fruits of the victory will be all reaped by the clericals, who have already prepared plans for undoing the work of the Liberal school laws of 1868. Their leader Dr. Luger, who is to be First Burgomaster, enjoys a newspaper boom of extraordinary dimensions, and, being interviewed right and left, talks as if he were hardly second in importance to the Emperor himself.

It would be impossible in any case to keep this murrain entirely out of the imperial politics, but the accident that the new civil marriage law in Hungary comes into effect Tuesday links two things together, and they are certain between them to shape issues for the coming parliamenmonarch. Just as the Liberals are triumphing steadily in Hungary they are going to the wall in Austria, so that the eternal religious feud is growing rapidly into a racial struggle as well. It appears that the Avignon people seriously believe that when the Pope dies the French Government intends inviting the college of Cardinals to assemble in the ancient papal seat on the Rhone to elect a successor. This is in gratifying contrast to the prevalent spirit of a few years ago when any casual Finnerty or Ryan who needed a little cheap advertisement in his business could get quoted verbatim here and be placarded in the Tory press as an important and dangerous personage.

There are persistent rumors that Lord Salisbury has decided to push forward a comprehensive scheme for reforming the House of Lords, several different forecasts of his intentions being whispered about, but I believe that the matter has not vet got beyond the stage of speculative discus-Officers of the Hyacinthe and Thetis sion. It would be quite possible to rearrange the composition of the House of Peers so that it would be a much more effective Tory force than at present and still seem to satisfy the principal objections of the reformers, and very likely some such thing may be attempted before ball was given officers of her Majesty's ship this Parliament dies, but there is no need for hurry about it.

Public interest in the ministerial doings is concentrated, indeed, in the Foreign Office, which shrouds itself in profound bailroom were thronged with the elite of mystery, and even more on the prospects of San Diego and Coronado Beach society to a big fight between Chamberlain and Cecil do honor to the officers of the British and Rhodes. This ought by all rules to be a notable struggle.

Meanwhile there is no shadow of a sign of a break in the unexampled miningshare boom, which continues its exciting upward career and makes all other Stock Exchange business seem rather paltry and colorless by comparison. It was expected that this week's settlement would clean out a lot of weaker speculators who are known to be carrying much bigger burdens than they are fitted for, but they hung on, some paying as high as 30 per cent for the still plenty of vitality. Many quiet realizations are being made, however, and on every side one hears stories of great fortunes safely withdrawn. Florence O'Driscoll, the poor young engineer, who was in America in 1893 as a delegate to the exhibition and was a whip of the Irish party as well, went out to West Australia that winter as a salaried expert and has become a big figure in the market here. He is at the head of the Hyacinthe present: Dr. Ockley, Paymas- | Menzies properties, and it is supposed that he could retire to-day with two millions. This furore in London has naturally attracted a good deal of Continental money and Paris particularly has a heavy in-terest. The Paris Bourse has become frightened and decreed that no new min-ing stock is to be quoted for the remainder of the year, but this action has not at all checked French speculation here.

It is to cost about $8,000,000 and its navigation is to be free. The project has aroused so much jealousy in other provinces that the Government, which bears nearly three-fourths of the expenses, has also been compelled to undertake costly improvements for Antwerp, Ghent, Ostend and Brussels.
