

COMING OF THE KING OF FANNING ISLAND.

His Majesty Is Here, Strictly on Business Bent.

AUSTRALASIAN CABLE.

His Kingdom Occupies the Position of Key of the Situation.

TO MEET SIR ASHLEY COOT.

Incidentally the Insular Potentate Tells of a Present of a Cargo of Copra.

George B. Greig, the "King of Fanning and Washington Islands," arrived in San Francisco last Sunday. His visit is purely a business one, and he does not look for any diplomatic recognition from the United States.

Prince George is a bright lad of ten, but he does not take kindly to the idea of life in California. When the schooner was leaving Fanning Island he refused to go aboard and it took two sailors to carry him up the gangplank. He yelled for his mother and brothers and sisters, but his father was obdurate and to San Francisco he came, willy-nilly. Captain Hansen of the schooner says that the inhabitants of the island are prosperous and happy. The guano on Washington Island pays handsomely for the handling, but the copra trade has not been good this year. Many of the coconut trees had the blight and had to be destroyed. In consequence very few nuts were gathered and as a result there was no copra. The Mary Dodge only brought up 245 tons, but the natives were hard at work preparing a big cargo for the bark Onyx. That consignment will be a present from the "King of the Islands" to his sister, Mrs. Captain Reid.

THE TICKET AGENTS.

States. The young heir-apparent accompanies his father and will go to school in California for several years, and later on will finish his education at Yale or Harvard.

The education of his son is not the only thing that brought "the King" to San Francisco, however. He is deeply interested in the proposed cable between Australasia and America, as a cable station is to be built on Fanning Island. The British commissioner who traversed the South seas in search of resting places for the cable arrived here on the steamer Alameda, but after remaining a few days proceeded to British Columbia and Canada to complete arrangements with the Canadian Government. On his return he will meet Mr. Greig, and arrangements for leasing a portion of Fanning Island will be consummated.

Mr. Greig arrived here on the schooner Mary Dodge, and brought enough copra with him to pay all his expenses while he remains in this city. He is tall and very good looking, showing only slight traces of the South Sea Island native blood that is in his veins. His wife is a native Princess and very wealthy in her own right, but the son takes more after his father than his mother in appearance.

The original "King" of Fanning and Washington islands died in San Francisco about two years ago. He was a Scotchman who left home to seek a fortune, and finally took possession of his island kingdom in the name of the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland. He prospered, and during a visit to the United States purchased the big Geo. H. Douglas. He loaded her with provisions and "trade," but died before the sailing date arrived. His remains were placed in a lead coffin and carried to his island home, where a splendid mausoleum has been erected over them. His son then took up the reins of government, and is proving himself a wise and considerate ruler. While his subjects are not many, they are enough to keep him busy. Fanning Island, his home, has only about twenty-five inhabitants, while there are over 200 on Washington Island.

When seen aboard the schooner Mary Dodge yesterday the "King's" first question was, "Tell me what you know about Sir Audley Coot and if he succeeded in making arrangements for the landing of a Pacific cable on the Hawaiian Islands?" When informed that the engineer had gone to Canada he remarked, "Well, I will see him on his return."

"Will the cable company purchase ground for a cable on Fanning Island?" was asked, and the answer was prompt: "No, sir, they will not. A portion of the island may be leased, but I'm not selling an inch of ground to any one. Any cable from Australia to America will have to pass over Fanning or Washington islands, and while I will be glad to see a station there, nevertheless, facilities will be granted unless they are paid for. According to what the engineer told me, the cable will start at Sydney, New South Wales, and, crossing the continent, will traverse New Zealand. From Auckland it will go to Levuka, Fiji, and from there to Apia, Samoa.

"His next resting place will be Fanning Island, and there I hold sway. From Fanning Island the line was to have been laid to one of the Hawaiian group, but whether a landing was secured or not I don't know. One thing is certain the cable will be laid whether Hawaii is touched or not.

"The only little excitement we had on the islands for a year past was the arrival of my brother-in-law, Captain Reid, and his family. They came over on the British bark, Onyx, from Newcastle, N. S. W. The vessel went on to Honolulu with a load of coal, and returning will load copra at Washington Island for Sydney. My sister and her husband will return on the ship. As soon as my business is settled here I will make for home at once. I may go to Honolulu, and take a sailing vessel from there, or I may charter a Atlantic and Pacific says that though he was not able to substantiate the charges of cutting rates made against the Southern Pacific, the Union Pacific and the Chicago and Northwestern lines, the end is not yet. There is a general dissatisfaction," he said yesterday, "except among those companies who are selling tickets by subterfuge under cover of the agreements entered into with the Passenger Agents' Association. It is hard to say where the matter will end unless the agents keep to their promises. There will be serious trouble, though, more serious than the sale of a ticket or two will warrant a company's assuming."

Hitchcock of the Union Pacific declared that there was no cause for any perturbation. He thought that there would be no trouble. There was no danger of a rate war without the acquiescence of the agents' principals, he said. Besides he doubted if any of the "disgruntled" agents were strong enough to draw out of and fight the Agents' Association. No new meeting has been called yet.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH BAZAAR

A Two Weeks' Fair Opened in the Church Hall Last Night.

Judge Sullivan's Able Opening Address—It is Hoped to Clear Off a Debt of $5500.

The initial entertainment of the St. Paul's Bazaar, which is to continue two weeks, was held in St. Paul's Church, at the corner of Twenty-ninth and Church streets last night. Between eight hundred and a thousand persons were in attendance during the evening.

A debt of $5500 rests on the church, and the purpose of the bazaar is to lift that incubance and place a few dollars to the credit of the church, which the Rev. Father Connolly has made the center of one of the most popular Catholic parishes in the city. Extensive preparations had been made for the two weeks' fair, and the numerous booths and general artistic interior of the lower portion of the church were in evidence of the painstaking labor expended.

The programme was carried out as follows: Instrumental quartet, Fred and George Kauffman, James and Willie Dewey; chorus, "Torpedo and War," St. Paul's Young Men's and Boys' Choral Society; address, J. F. Sullivan; vocal solo, "Dear Heart," Mrs. McKee Wilk; chorus, "Beautiful Flag," St. Paul's Young Men's and Boys' Choral Society. The choral society includes forty boys and twenty young men, and their singing was of an exceptionally high order. Judge Sullivan's address was warmly received. He spoke at length of the objects of the bazaar, and gave Father M. D. Connolly the credit he deserves for the interest he awakened from the first and has ever since maintained in the church work of St. Paul's parish. He dealt with the moral and religious teachings of the church, and showed that all of its precepts were an incentive to higher living and better citizenship. It was a strong effort and well received.

Company A, League of the Cross Cadets, will give an exhibition drill this evening. Captain Frank S. Drady commanding. The company will contribute other features to the evening's entertainment. During the two weeks of the bazaar a daily journal called "St. Paul's Bazaar" will be issued, containing news of the fair and matters of interest concerning the church. The advertising patronage of the bazaar shows how popular are the church and its pastor. The promoters of the undertaking expect to clear off the church debt and have a handsome sum on the credit side of the treasurer's books.

A BURGLAR'S FEAT.

Went Through Nearly All the Back Rooms of the Royal House. Some burglar went through the Royal House at 126 Ellis street last night, and did a nice piece of work in his particular line. He started in at 8 o'clock, climbing up the rear fire-escape, and he managed to get into all the back rooms but one on the four floors, making a clean search of pockets and bureau drawers. When he got ready he took his departure over the roof and by way of the fire-escape. Just how much booty he acquired is not known. The fact of his visit was discovered when one of the lodgers entered his room and found his valise emptied and its contents scattered promiscuously around. The burglar was evidently after cash, jewelry and small articles of salable value.

FOR AN OUTING.

Success of One Excursion Leads to the Promise of Another.

The excursions given under the personal supervision of Colonel W. H. Menton of the Southern Pacific have acquired a popularity that is undoubted and ever-increasing. This is largely due to the excellent business management of the colonel and his uniform courtesy to all who come to his pleasant party.

The last expedition to Monterey was one of the most enjoyable of the season. It took twenty-eight cars to convey the throng of excursionists to the seaside. The destination was Pacific Grove, but many went on to the point of view of the State and ramble over the well-kept grounds. The trains returned on time, and every one expressed delight with the restful trip. So entirely successful was the outing that Colonel Menton has announced his intention of giving another excursion of a similar character on the 20th inst. Its destination will be Santa Cruz.

DEFENSE NEARLY ENDED.

Durrant Will in All Probability Tell His Story on Thursday Next.

Student Graham's Statement is Not Thought Much of by the Defense.

With to-day begins the eleventh week of the trial of William Henry Theodore Durrant, charged with the murder of Blanche Lamont. The defense is rapidly nearing its close, and it is thought that Thursday at latest Mr. Durrant will announce to the court the end of his client's defense.

The topic of absorbing interest at present is, Will Student Graham be able to satisfactorily substantiate his story in regard to the request of Durrant for a copy of his notes of Dr. Cheney's lecture on that most important of all days to the defendant—April 3?

The defense claim that he will not. They affirm that the details of his statement are a tissue of misrepresentations, not intentional perhaps, but none the less untrue. They refer confidently to the fact that Durrant's notes of that particular lecture have been in their possession nearly ever since their client's arrest, and that consequently Durrant could have had no object in asking Graham for them.

The prosecution, however, laugh at this sort of thing, but they go a little bit further than this. They affirm that not only will Dr. Graham repeat his story as already told in THE CALL, but he will be able to corroborate every word of it.

It may be remarked that one of the first revelations made in the now more famous case of the people vs. Theodore Durrant was a statement made by E. F. Glaser, a student at the Cooper College, that he furnished his notes to Durrant April 10, or just four days prior to his arrest for the Emmanuel Church murders. If Durrant had these notes it is apparent, it will be argued, that he had no use for those of Graham.

Dr. Glaser was a witness in the preliminary examination last May, and stated substantially these facts. Durrant said at the time he made the request that there were a few points he had failed to cover, though he gave no intimation, either direct or oblique, that he had in his possession of general information concerning Dr. Cheney's lecture of April 3.

Student Graham has not been seen in the City since he gave out the story that may prove the undoing of Durrant. Sunday it was stated by persons who claimed to know that Graham was out of the City, presumably to avoid the interviewers. It appears now, however, and this statement is made with the authority of J. S. Durrigan, the man who induced Graham to give his story to the public, that he was in hiding at some friend's house and only left the City yesterday morning. The object of his going was to meet his father, and the two are expected to arrive here either today or to-morrow.

Student Graham was summoned by the prosecution some months ago on information furnished by a CALL representative, but after his appearance on the stand for the defense last week was again served with a subpoena requesting his presence in court next Thursday morning.

It is expected that Durrant will recount the story of his movements on that fatal April 3, though his attorneys are not fully determined on that point. The defense closed, Mr. Barnes will introduce testimony in rebuttal, and with that comes the closing of the case. It will be followed by other evidence, which it is claimed by the prosecution will be more damaging than any yet introduced.

Nearly Scalped.

Joseph Linsley and Louis Fredericks, who live on Fourth and Bryant streets, got mixed up in a free fight on Eighth and Brannan last night. Some one used a knife on them. Linsley was cut on the forehead and cheek, and Fredericks was almost scalped. Linsley had his wounds attended to at the Receiving Hospital, but Fredericks went to his own physician.

Stabbed in the Wrist.

A Visitor From Stockton Gets Into Trouble on Second Street. Fred Blotte, a visitor from Stockton, was found at Second and Bryant streets at an early hour yesterday morning by Police-men on their rounds in poor condition. There was a deep wound in his left wrist and in answer to the officer's question as to how he received the wound he said that an unknown man had cut him with a knife. He had been drinking in different saloons and could not tell in which he was cut. Blotte was taken to the Receiving Hospital in the patrol wagon and Dr. Bunnell dressed and stitched the wound, which was filled with dust and gravel. Blotte said that after he was cut he was out of his wits, where he lay for some time. He staggered to his feet and was wandering around in a dazed condition when the police officer met him. The police are searching for his assailant with little chance of finding him.

THAT CHAMBLISS BOOK.

Society's Censor Has Not Realized the Success Expected.

THE FROST AS HE FOUND IT.

A Cold Reception by the San Francisco Public to the Society Volume.

"Nothing but leaves" is a society leader's criticism of the W. H. Chambliss book on "Society as I Found It." And that "dead cold frost" for which San Francisco is justly celebrated has turned those leaves into the untimely snow and yellow.

That is about the only turning the leaves have had. When Chambliss was in San Francisco and attempting to lead society by the ear, as it were, considerable interest was manifested in the contemplated work. People seemed pleased that he was going into literature, thinking probably it would keep him out of society.

Mr. Chambliss found a couple of young men in good standing and he knocked them down. That was regarded as an advertisement for the book, and it was prophesied that the book would be striking.

Next the author-expectant, who was likewise the author-militant, went into the police court. Every man on Chief Crowley's force expected a chapter on "The City Prison as I Found It," or "The Coppers as They Found Me," but in this there was disappointment. Trouble with the San Francisco publishers was a feature, but the printers are ignored in the social story.

Next Mr. Chambliss went to New York and promised to send the book from there. He carried out his promise and for a month or six weeks the book has been on sale. But for some reason the San Francisco people have not taken rapidly to the book. Dealers say that few copies have been sold and that few people ask to see the book.

One bookseller had a placard in his window announcing the publication. "So you have that book, have you?" remarked a man who entered the store. "Yes, we have it. If you—"

"Well, it's nothing to me personally, but I thought I'd tell you that a good many of our patrons might not like to see it here. Some of them might blow the top of your head off."

The book has not yet been given a place on the shelves of the City Library. According to Librarian George E. Clark this has not occasioned any inconvenience to the patrons of that institution, however.

"Is the book in town?" he asked. Then he said smilingly: "No, it is not yet in the library. But there has been a complaint of any delay, for I have not heard of any one asking for it. Were there any imperative demand for the volume I would know about it." And so it seems that the demand for the book is not imperative. The technical library is still without the book, and the librarian says that there have been only two or three inquiries about it. Mr. Greenway declines to discuss the book. He professes, however, to think that the fashionable set is saving the book for the coming of Lent, when penance will be in good form.

ARRESTED SOCIALISTS.

Their Friends Consider Their Treatment Unwarranted.

During the past week several socialist speakers have been arrested while addressing open-air meetings on the streets and charged with obstructing the sidewalks. Last Tuesday E. T. Kingsley of the American section was talking to a crowd at Seventh and Market streets and was locked up. On Saturday night Mrs. Ann F. Smith and a speaker named Zandt were also arrested.

In view of Judge Conlan's disposition of a similar case some time ago—that of a president, T. F. Burns of the Cigar-makers' Union—the socialists are inclined to the opinion that the police are stretching their authority and powers and going too far. Kingsley's case comes up on the 22d inst. and he has demanded a jury trial. Jury trials will be asked in every case. Judge Conlan held that the right of free speech, being guaranteed by the constitution, could not be legally interfered with by the police, and he therefore dismissed the obstructive charge against Burns.

It was Judge Conlan's opinion, too, that there could be no more reason for interfering with a speaker on economic questions than for the arrest of the lads and lasses of the Salvation Army.
