

GETS FIVE MILLIONS.

That Is the Dowry Bestowed Upon the Duke's Bride.

MARLBOROUGH HONORED

The "Ducal Emblem" Floated From the Flagpole of the Plaza Hotel.

NEW YORKERS MUCH AMUSED.

All the Preparations Completed for the Dazzling Vanderbilt Wedding.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 5.—William K. Vanderbilt, his daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, and the Duke of Marlborough met at the home of Mrs. Vanderbilt, at 24 West Seventy-second street, this morning, and signed the papers affecting the marriage settlements.

Mr. Vanderbilt drove to the house with his lawyer, J. Henry Anderson. A few minutes later the Duke arrived with his solicitor, Milward Harding. An hour was spent in going over the terms and finally the papers were signed by Miss Vanderbilt, her father and her prospective husband.

Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt will become the Duchess of Marlborough at noon tomorrow. The marriage will be celebrated at St. Thomas Church in the presence of 1500 invited guests.

The wedding without doubt will surpass in elaboration of details any previous wedding ever solemnized in this city.

A large force of police will be on hand to keep Fifth avenue and the adjoining streets clear and to hold the crowd back from the church entrances.

ALL NEW YORK LAUGHING.

Marlborough's Crest Flated on the Plaza Hotel Flagpole.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 5.—All New York is laughing in its sleeves at the management of the Plaza Hotel for hoisting on the hotel flagpole a ducal flag in honor of the Duke of Marlborough.

The marriage settlements were signed today at Mrs. Vanderbilt's residence. William K. Vanderbilt, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt and the Duke were present.

The church doors open at 10 a. m. and musical service lasts till noon, the hour of the wedding. One hundred and fifty men began at 6 o'clock to-night to complete the elaborate floral decorations.

THIS ONE WAS IN PARIS.

Marriage of Miss Marie Delphine Read to Count Max Foras.

PARIS, FRANCE, Nov. 5.—The religious ceremony of the marriage of Marie Delphine, daughter of General J. Meredith Read, formerly United States Minister to Greece, to Count Max Foras took place today in the Church of St. Philippe du Roule.

Big Shipbuilders' Lockout.

GLASGOW, SCOTLAND, Nov. 5.—The Clyde shipbuilders began their promised lockout today by paying off and suspending 25 per cent of their workmen.

The Ship Is Breaking Up.

LONDON, ENGLAND, Nov. 5.—The American ship Granite State, Captain Fulton, which struck on Rundestone Rocks near Penzance yesterday and was beached at Port Curo Bay to prevent her from foundering, is breaking up.

the church was decorated with palms and flowers. The service was full choral and orchestral.

The bride wore an ivory satin dress trimmed with Venice point lace—a family heirloom—and orange blossoms. The bridesmaids were all in pale pink and yellow, trimmed with silver and brown fur.

After the ceremony about 800 guests, the cream of Paris society, attended a reception given by Mrs. Read at her residence.

TO BE ARBITRATED.

But Venezuela Will Yield Many Points to England.

CARACAS, VENEZUELA, Nov. 5.—Important telegrams received by the Government from England and the United States yesterday resulted in President Crespo summoning a meeting of the Cabinet and the principal advisers, which lasted over three hours and was most secret.

TEWFIK PASHA'S MISSION.

Was Unable to Secure the Support of Germany for Turkey.

Then the Ambassador Departed Hurdled Without the Usual Official Courtesies.

BERLIN, GERMANY, Nov. 5.—The following story which has just leaked out has caused a great sensation in diplomatic circles in Berlin.

The following story which has just leaked out has caused a great sensation in diplomatic circles in Berlin. Tewfik Pasha, the Turkish Ambassador, last Saturday afternoon had a prolonged interview which he himself had especially requested with Chancellor von Hohenlohe.

A meeting of the Cabinet was hastily summoned on Sunday, over which Prince Hohenlohe presided. The meeting lasted several hours. It is reported that the Turkish Ambassador told Prince Hohenlohe that unless the pressure which England is exerting over Turkey was relaxed the Sultan's Government might become a victim to domestic revolution.

AMERICANS IN DANGER.

Missionaries at Bitlis Take Refuge in a Single House.

LONDON, ENGLAND, Nov. 5.—The Chronicle will tomorrow publish a dispatch from Constantinople saying that the Americans at Bitlis, after telegraphing to the American Minister for protection, again telegraphed that they were all living together.

Sentence of Smugglers.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Nov. 5.—Judge Conroy, a city Magistrate, delivered judgment today against five saloon-keepers involved in the smuggling scandals.

The Ram Katahdin.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 5.—Secretary Herbert will take no action on the failure of the Ammen ram Katahdin to attain the required speed until the report of the Trial Board has been considered.

First Conscription Contribution.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 5.—Internal Revenue Commissioner Miller today received a draft for $750. The draft was signed by a banking firm and it was forwarded through a New York bank.

Damaged by an Earthquake.

ROME, ITALY, Nov. 5.—The earthquake in this city on Friday last slightly damaged the dome of St. Peter's Church.

Recall of Tewfik Pasha.

COLOGNE, Nov. 5.—The Gazette publishes a dispatch from Berlin asserting that Tewfik Pasha, Turkish Ambassador to Germany, was recalled to Constantinople in order that he might be appointed to a high post in the Turkish capital.

NO HELP FOR MINERS.

Secretary Hoke Smith Favors the Southern Pacific in His Ruling.

DISMISSED A PROTEST.

At Present There Is Not the Slightest Check on the Railroad Grants.

EVIDENCE OF CORRUPTION.

An Official of the Land Office Resigned His Position to Assist the Corporation.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 5.—Secretary of the Interior Hoke Smith by a decision handed down today says plainly that California miners have nothing to hope for against the ravages of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Southern California miners filed a protest against the selection of mineral land by the railroad. This protest Secretary Smith today dismissed, saying that the present mode of railroad selections is all right in the absence of any other law and that only "occasionally" is the land selected mineral in character.

AS TO CANADA'S ACTION.

Justification for the Erection of Forts Along the Alaskan Boundary.

Troops Were Sent, Say Officials, Merely to Check the Lawless Element.

OTTAWA, ONTARIO, Nov. 5.—The dispatch from Tacoma alleging that Canadian forts are going up all along the Alaskan boundary in the Yukon gold region proves to have a foundation in fact.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

WILLIAM F. ELLIOTT DEAD.

Was a Well-Known Newspaper Writer of New York.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 5.—News has reached this city that William F. Elliott, who for many years had served the New York Times in positions of great responsibility, died from consumption last Sunday on the steamer on which he was returning from Jamaica, and which arrived at Boston this morning.

READ EVERY AD

Then, before you purchase, SEE OUR

Complete New Fall and Winter GARMENTS.

SUITS From $10 to $25.

OVERCOATS From $7.50 to $50.

TROUSERS From $2 to $11.

"THE HUB," CORNER Kearny and Sutter

No Branch Stores anywhere.

A LADIES' GRILL ROOM

Has been established in the Palace Hotel

ON ACCOUNT OF REPEATED DEMANDS made on the management, it takes the place of the city restaurant, with direct entrance from Market st. Ladies shopping will find this a most desirable place to lunch.

Brushes for barbers, bakers, bootblacks, bath brushes, billiard-tables, brooms, brookbinders, candy-makers, canners, journeymen, founders, laundries, paper-hangers, printers, painters, shoe factories, stable men, tailors, taxidors, etc.

BECHANAN BROS., Brush Manufacturers, 609 Sacramento St.

stated. The oldest clerks in the Internal Revenue Bureau say this is the first concrete contribution received at the bureau within their memories.

MUTINY THREATENED.

Demoralized Condition of the Spanish Army in Cuba.

BOSTON, MASS., Nov. 5.—A dispatch to a morning paper brings the following intelligence from Cuba. The information is from one of the largest sugar-planters and is regarded as an unbiased view of the struggle.

The Spanish army in Cuba is in a very demoralized condition. This demoralization is due to insufficiency of food and clothing and lack of pay. The soldiers are starving, in rags and barefooted, and many have not been paid since the revolution began.

The Madrid Government seems to be utterly heartless as regards the troops. Some time ago the soldiers sent a petition to Madrid asking that the families of those dying with yellow fever be granted the same pensions as those killed in battle.

This petition was approved by Campos, but the Madrid Government refused to grant it. The soldiers have been maddened by these things, and open mutiny is threatened.

It is reported in Havana that Campos has cabled Madrid that unless the soldiers be better treated Spain will soon have no army in Cuba. The soldiers and officers are so demoralized that suicides are occurring daily.

The Spanish planters say the island is lost to Spain and that they are getting out while they can. Every steamer leaving Havana for Europe is crowded with the refugees.

AMNESTY TO POLITICAL PRISONERS.

VIENNA, AUSTRIA, Nov. 5.—Emperor Francis Joseph has granted amnesty to all political prisoners in Bohemia.

AS TO CANADA'S ACTION.

Justification for the Erection of Forts Along the Alaskan Boundary.

Troops Were Sent, Say Officials, Merely to Check the Lawless Element.

OTTAWA, ONTARIO, Nov. 5.—The dispatch from Tacoma alleging that Canadian forts are going up all along the Alaskan boundary in the Yukon gold region proves to have a foundation in fact.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

EULOGIZED THE POET.

Tear-Stained Tribute Paid to the Memory of Eugene Field.

WITH COMMON IMPULSE.

Noted Writers and Editors of Chicago Express Their Sorrow at the Loss.

GLOWING WERE THE TRIBUTES.

All the Noble Talents of the Deceased Set Forth in Resolution and Speech.

CHICAGO, ILL., Nov. 5.—Novel writers and poets, ministers of the Gospel and men of business, editors and reporters of Chicago's daily and other journals and public officials mingled in the parlors of the Press Club during the noon hour today, making a representative gathering of friends and admirers of the late poet and journalist, Eugene Field.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

After the resolutions had been read, the chair was relinquished by President Packard in favor of Mayor Swift, who spoke briefly. Joseph Medill, in eulogizing the poet, said he was such a genius as Shakespeare was, holding up the mirror of child nature and immortalizing the prattle of innocent childhood as no man had ever done.

ability, died from consumption last Sunday on the steamer on which he was returning from Jamaica, and which arrived at Boston this morning.

ANOTHER LINK IN THE CHAIN.

Important Evidence Against the Kessler Train-Robbers Found Among Buried Papers.

LIGONIER, IND., Nov. 5.—Another link in the chain of evidence that one of the Kessler train-robbers has been captured was established yesterday by the digging up of papers that were stolen at the time of the robbery.

James Brown, who was arrested for the Chicago and West Michigan hold-up a few months ago and was brought to Albion last Saturday, gave conclusive evidence that he is one of the gang. He went with Sheriff Simon and Prosecutor Glatte to a spot on the farm of Lum Cain, about three miles east of the scene of the hold-up and one mile north of the railroad.

When near a spring he pointed to a log, where, he said, the papers would be found. About a foot below the surface at the spot indicated the package was found. They were express papers and some money orders. The canvas sack had rotted away, and the outer edges of the papers were decayed, but many parts of them were plainly legible.

Brown says it was at that place where he and the Smalleys stopped shortly after committing the robbery. At daylight they counted the money, about $16,000, and each took $500. Brown says Abe Smalley is in Montana. He is a thorough desperado, and his rule has always been never to be taken.

Man and Wife Murdered. BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 5.—Captain Frederick Lang and wife were found dead in bed at their home in Gardenville, a suburb of the city, this morning. Their skulls had been crushed and their house ransacked. Robbery was evidently the incentive of the double murder.

Captain Lang was interested in the oyster trade and owned a number of vessels. Aside from these evidences of his safety there has been none until the arrival of his cablegram last evening.

As the region which Dr. Smith has traversed is at the present time represented by a blank space on the map of Africa, the significance of the explorer's brief message will be realized immediately. He has undoubtedly made a great many discoveries of much value.

NEW TO-DAY.

NEW TO-DAY. "Thirty Years of Satisfaction" Stands Back of the Sullivan Shoe.

IT WEARS. Cork Soles. Dry Feet.

ITS COMING WINTER. You can't see it, but you can feel it. You need a warmer suit