

is extremely ornate. The groundwork is of bluish-pink silk, but it is almost entirely covered with lengthwise bands of embroidered guipure over white satin.

Of course the wedding at Trinity was lovely, for the bride, always a pretty bit of a woman, was simply radiant in her gown of glistening satin, and her maids were daintily gowned in white, with just the right touch of green.

At most of the "At Homes" this week the hostesses were gowned with more than usual taste and elegance. Indeed the prediction that we are to have a picturesque and expensive season promises to be verified.

Two of the sweetest and prettiest sisters in San Francisco will make their debut at their delightful home on Pacific avenue next Saturday between 4 and 7 o'clock.

The Wells-Livermore wedding, which took place in Boston last week, was remarkable for the artistic toilets worn by the bride and her attendant maidens.

Silk linings, so necessary for our gowns nowadays, can frequently be made out of red silk skirts, provided they are not shabby or cut.

Black taffeta linings with a narrow ruffle play for the most serviceable for our streets.

At charming dresses Mrs. Hoyt wears in "A Contented Woman." In the first act Grace Holme wears a lovely gown of palest blue with creamy white lace.

A recently designed half-mourning costume is thus described: Corset bodice, long-sleeved, and according to the latest named is cut en tablier quite flat.

On Monday evening at the Baldwin an exceedingly pretty coat-bisque was worn of light gray satin necked with black chiffon. A showy vest of chiffon adds much to its beauty.

1732 and one of the most perfect violins in the world. It is in an excellent state of preservation.

Our men are taking kindly to what is called "preservation." The Beauhairs have been making much over Henry Irving, many social attentions having been paid him.

An Eastern paper states that "coon hunts" are among the amusements of the Grand Duke of Oldenburg.

The Prince of Wales has been visiting Lord William and his bride, the former Duchess of Marlborough.

BAW'S VIEW OF LIFE.

Here's a New and Odd Occupation for Women. The Cheering-Up Business—Amusing Mrs. Crank, Madame Millionaire, the Snob and Little Mrs. Good Form.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 6, 1895.—It is just the time of the year when people yawn politely—that is, if there is such a thing as yawning politely—and wonder why they do not.

Another hat, of black velvet, has large bows of black and striped ribbon, apparently held in place with rhinestone ornaments, which continue in great vogue.

Lord William Beresford's wife is reported to be much stouter than formerly, but she still has an excellent figure, but depends always more on the make of her garments than on her material.

An English paper is quoted as publishing this statement, which considerably surprised me: "The latest instance of the useful pet is the case of the two apes, which have been trained to act as caddies in the new professional game of golf."

Next spring, under the auspices of the United States Golf Association, a ladies' championship competition will take place. The prize will be a challenge cup, and a very handsome one it will be, as it is valued at $100.

Chafing dishes are in more than usual demand, and many are the delightful after-theater suppers prepared on these useful arrangements.

A word of advice: Our bodices, if to be cut according to the latest mode, will boast of no other epaulettes than a narrow strip of artificial flowers or a band of jewels.

Stout men should never attempt to wear the short, half-sack, half-cumtaw coat which is made of either tweed or homespun.

Many long suits are being made of brown mixed goods; some have an almost invisible check, others have threads of red and green or green and purple through them.

Evening trousers this season have no crease in them, neither are they cut with any perceptible spring.

body says, is so sweetly frank, as she never hesitates about telling of her poverty. Bosh! That's just what it is. In time, her sweet frankness becomes a nuisance, and you realize, after you have known her a little while, that she is not better than as systematically as if she were blackmailing.

Some day you pay her a visit, taking with you a bunch of violets that you really can hardly afford to buy, if you thought she would like them, and you find her a charming apartment, well, indeed even luxuriously, furnished.

The other objectionable people? Well, there is the woman who says vile things about you, and who, when she meets you, asks you why you haven't taken time to see her, and insists upon kissing you.

Among the snobs there is, first of all, Mme. Millionaire, who is rich but not rare. In fact, to be a little slangy, she is rather overdone.

One of the little sisters of the rich for whom Mme. Millionaire has a sort of liking is little Mrs. Good Form.

Isn't that fine? And wouldn't it be a good thing if we could, in this childlike way, publish our opinions of our landlord?

Another young woman who wanted to know, inquired how often she should let her hair be done.

There is only one thing, she said to her dearest friend, "that makes me doubt Herbert's affection for me."

What is that? "That some of the snap-shot photographs has taken of me are good likenesses,"—Washington Star.

In most parts of Europe it is considered unbecomingly for a lady to cross the road in front of a traveler.

PACIFIC BANK IS SOLD.

The Building at Pine and Sansome Streets Changes Hands. FOR THE SUM OF $130,000. Bought by the Continental Insurance Company—Good for People's Home Depositors.

The Pacific Bank building at the northwest corner of Pine and Sansome streets has been purchased by the Continental Insurance Company of New York.

This will be pleasing news to the large number of depositors of the People's Home Bank, who have been anxiously waiting for more than a year for a dividend.

The sale was the result of negotiations conducted by W. S. Duval, Pacific Coast general manager of the Continental Fire Insurance Company.

At Thursday's meeting of the People's Home Bank directors the Continental Company's offer was accepted, and $10,000 cash deposited with Secretary John F. Sheehan.

State proceeded upon the plan of the miners of Montana and Idaho. The miners in those localities had the same trouble with the Northern Pacific Railroad Company.

Whenver the character of a parcel of land is in dispute the commissioners examine the land and pass judgment on the same. Idaho miners saw the advantage of having this commission, and obtained a similar commission.

Chairman Ford was directed to draft a bill similar to the Idaho-Montana act for the creation of a California commission to determine the character of lands within the land grant of the Central Pacific and other railroad companies in this State.

The bonds given in this case were declared by Jones & O'Donnell, the official bond collectors, as being entirely worthless.
