

STORMY SESSION OF THE COUNCIL.

Dr. Brown Says the Moderator Has at Times Been Unfair.

DR. McLEAN'S FIRM STAND

The Excited Pastor Makes a Very Humble Apology and so Restores Peace.

NEW EVIDENCE IS INTRODUCED

Mrs. Thurston Tells Her Story—Archie McMillan Makes a Plea to Be Heard.

There was a stormy scene at last night's session of the ecclesiastical council which for a time threatened total disruption of that body, as well as a small-sized fistic carnival between the adherents of Dr. Brown and those opposed to him.

It all came about in the cross-examination of Mrs. Thurston. That lady had made very damaging statements relative to the alleged relations existing between the pastor and Miss Overman, during the recital of which Dr. Brown, his wife and Miss Overman appeared to be very much amused.

Dr. Brown asked Mrs. Thurston if it were not true that she had a great deal of trouble with her husband—in fact, if she were not extremely jealous of the attentions which he is alleged to have showered on his lady acquaintances. The judge-advocate objected to this sort of cross-examination, but said that if the council desired to hear it he would not oppose.

Dr. Brown, his face white and livid with rage, apparently, leaped to his feet and said:

"It is strange that objections continually come to the question asked by the defense, but no limit is put upon the prosecution. I wish to go on record here now as saying that the moderator and one or two members of the council have at times been unfair toward me."

Mr. McLean, smarting under the insinuation, rose to his feet, and making a step forward, asked if Dr. Brown meant to imply any wrongdoing to him.

The pastor said that he had nothing to take back, but to the contrary would insist that the moderator had been unfair. Then followed a wordy war, in which every member of the council participated.

The venerable moderator insisted that Dr. Brown answer his question and then called upon the council to institute an immediate investigation as to the truth or falsity of the insinuation. Resolutions and counter resolutions were offered, some sustaining Dr. McLean and others assuming a more conciliatory tone. In the general hubbub some one suggested that it would be rather a queer proceeding for an investigating council to investigate itself.

Mr. Dodge thought that a mere expression of confidence in the moderator from the council was sufficient proof that Dr. Brown's insinuations of unfairness were groundless. Any action, therefore, in the way of an investigation, might cause some people to think that Dr. Brown was at least partly right.

Dr. Brown attempted to make another speech when the Rev. Dr. Moar of Oakland interrupted him saying, "This man has taken up too much time of the council already. I move that we proceed with the investigation."

The excited pastor said he was not sure that he wanted the council to go on, but a few moments later somebody threw oil on the troubled waters and peace reigned again.

Dr. Brown hoped that the council would recollect the fact that he had been under a terrible strain for the past sixty days and was not altogether responsible for his words. He regretted very much the unpleasantness that had occurred and asked that all be forgotten and forgiven. He assured the moderator that he had the highest possible regard for him as a man who wanted to see only justice done and hoped that he would not treasure up the angry words which had escaped him.

Dr. McLean, evidently much relieved at the turn affairs had taken, said that he too regretted the unusual scene, and begged to assure the pastor of his personal regard and also his desire to act in all matters coming before the council justly and fairly.

During the discussion the friends and enemies cheered and hissed according to their several moods. In the midst of the exciting interchange of words Archie McMillan, whose name has been unpleasantly associated with that of Mrs. Stockton, sprang to the platform and in tones which could have been heard a block away declared that he had something to say about Dr. Brown's peculiar actions. The moderator, however, persuaded him to leave the room, assuring him that at the proper time he would be heard.

And so ended the most dramatic incident of the entire deliberation, not excepting Mrs. Blanchard's hysterical display last week.

By far the largest crowd of any gathered to hear the deliberations of the ecclesiastical council assembled in the lecture-room of the First Congregational Church yesterday, attracted probably by the announcement that Mrs. Mary A. Davidson, the pastor's chief accuser, and incidentally his alleged blackmailer, was to testify.

But the morbidly curious who had hoped to hear a racy exposition of an incident capable of the broadest criticism, if true, were doomed to disappointment.

Mrs. Davidson did not appear before the council, and what is more disappointing to some, probably never will. Walter Gallagher is no longer the legal adviser of the accused woman and this refusal to appear in court is credited to George Knight, who has undertaken to handle her cause before the Superior Court. There was a quiet rumor floating around the church to the effect that the pastor's friends had brought about this condition of things, but this is bitterly resented by them.

Judge Advocate Woodhams said that in view of Mrs. Davidson's non-appearance he was forced to do the next best thing, and that was to read the testimony given in Judge Campbell's court. Dr. Brown wished to know in the event Mrs. Davidson changed her mind concerning her appearance before the council if she would be allowed to do so. Woodhams said yes, but she would be questioned only on matters not named in the statement. Here followed a long and tiresome reading of the testimony given by Mrs. Davidson in the Police Court, after which Dr. Brown was permitted to offer in rebuttal the cross-examination taken at the same time.

ARCHIE McMILLAN WISHES TO BE HEARD BY THE COUNCIL.

Mrs. Thurston was the most interesting witness examined during the day. She told of humorous conversations with Miss Overman, in which the latter had practically admitted an undying affection for the pastor. Miss Overman told her that the doctor had squeezed her hand, and was at all times loving and kind in his demonstrations toward her.

"I told her to be careful," said Mrs. Thurston, whereupon she replied: "How smart of you to guess my secret!" Then Mrs. Thurston recited in a purely matter of fact though effective way of numerous confidential talks with Mrs. Tunnell concerning Mattie Overman and Dr. Brown. She told of the Tacoma trip, in which the much-wanted Mrs. Tunnell admitted that Dr. Brown was footing the bills, not only of herself, but of Miss Overman.

One of the strongest statements that have yet been made against the pastor is that of Mrs. Eaton of Oakland. She declares that on the Monday following the arrest of Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Tunnell came to her house at 1 o'clock in the morning very much bewildered and apparently laboring under intense excitement. She said that she was going away, when I asked her why.

"Dr. Brown and Mattie Overman told me," she said, "if I couldn't stand up for them to get out."

Dr. Brown has affidavits from all the lodging-house keepers on Sixth, Bryant and Howard streets to the effect that he was never there. This will be offered in rebuttal of Mrs. Davidson's statement alleging that he and Miss Overman were constant visitors to one of these places.

It is said that an attempt will be made to show that Mrs. Mary Davis is not a responsible person. Mrs. Cooper is said to have proof of this in her possession, but declines at this time to give any intimation as to its character.

The council will resume its deliberations at 2 o'clock to-day.

THE PROCEEDINGS.

Mrs. Davidson's Testimony in the Police Court Re-Read Before the Council.

Sensations were looked for in vain at yesterday afternoon's session of the council. At 2 o'clock the reverend body filed into the lecture-room. The Rev. Dr. Sank led in prayer, after which the proceedings opened with a statement by the judge-advocate to the effect that Mrs. Davidson would not testify, having been advised not to do so by her attorneys. This being the case, he suggested that her testimony given in the Police Court be read instead.

"I am much in favor of this suggestion," interposed Dr. Brown, "but at the same time I trust that in case Mrs. Davidson's presence is required she may be called to testify."

"I am unable to speak positively as to that matter," responded Mr. Woodhams; "though my personal opinion is that Mrs. Davidson's lawyers will not permit her to come to the council. However, she might be called if it were thought necessary."

"The chair would rule to that effect if need were," remarked Dr. McLean. Dr. Brown did not seem very well satisfied with this information, but made no reply. The judge-advocate then commenced reading the voluminous testimony of Dr. Brown's aged nemesis. Most of those present, including all but four members of the council, had read the testimony as published in the newspapers, and a long hum of conversation served as an accompaniment to Mr. Woodhams' clear, well-modulated tones. When he had finished a recess was ordered. The tired judge-advocate refreshed his hard-worn vocal chords by taking copious draughts of the brand of ale affected by our first father in paradise, while Dr. Williams fell to writing in a notebook at a great rate, using as a knee-desk the Bible upon which the witnesses are sworn.

Dr. Brown, as soon as the council reconvened, commenced the reading of Mrs. Davidson's cross-examination in the Police Court—that is, he thought he did, and the audience, to its great wonderment, listened for about fifteen minutes to a weird, wild tale of villainy, looking to Sacramento for its local coloring. People were beginning to listen to the rise and fall of his sympathetic voice when it transpired that, through an inadvertence of the stenographer's clerk, the records of another case had been sent along with Mrs. Davidson's. Mrs. Tunnell, who had been called to appear on record that the ancient corset-dealer had conspired with a criminal in an underground ginnill in the capital to steal a matter of $3000 from some source, had been ordered the testimony thus read by mistake to be expunged from the minutes.

The pastor then found the right place and resumed his reading. Mr. Woodhams reads well, but his work was gone through with in a rapid perfunctory manner, which showed that he was merely discharging a rather tiresome official duty. The audience, in fact, resigned itself to listen to the rise and fall of his sympathetic voice when it transpired that, through an inadvertence of the stenographer's clerk, the records of another case had been sent along with Mrs. Davidson's. Mrs. Tunnell, who had been called to appear on record that the ancient corset-dealer had conspired with a criminal in an underground ginnill in the capital to steal a matter of $3000 from some source, had been ordered the testimony thus read by mistake to be expunged from the minutes.

Judge Advocate—it seems to me that these quotations are entirely irrelevant, and I wish to appear as being opposed to them if the council think they should be admitted. Dr. Brown, laboring under intense excitement, rose and said:

It seems to me that every time an objection is made to some question asked by myself to the witnesses, the prosecution is allowed the latitude it wishes, yet I am restricted to the questions which I am permitted to ask. I want to say right here that I think the moderator has been extremely unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

Moderator—Does Dr. Brown mean to insinuate that the council is biased in any way toward him or prejudiced against him? Dr. Brown—I insinuate nothing, except that the moderator has been unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

Moderator—You are entirely irrelevant, and I wish to appear as being opposed to them if the council think they should be admitted. Dr. Brown, laboring under intense excitement, rose and said:

It seems to me that every time an objection is made to some question asked by myself to the witnesses, the prosecution is allowed the latitude it wishes, yet I am restricted to the questions which I am permitted to ask. I want to say right here that I think the moderator has been extremely unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

bers of the council, had read the testimony as published in the newspapers, and a long hum of conversation served as an accompaniment to Mr. Woodhams' clear, well-modulated tones. When he had finished a recess was ordered. The tired judge-advocate refreshed his hard-worn vocal chords by taking copious draughts of the brand of ale affected by our first father in paradise, while Dr. Williams fell to writing in a notebook at a great rate, using as a knee-desk the Bible upon which the witnesses are sworn.

Dr. Brown, as soon as the council reconvened, commenced the reading of Mrs. Davidson's cross-examination in the Police Court—that is, he thought he did, and the audience, to its great wonderment, listened for about fifteen minutes to a weird, wild tale of villainy, looking to Sacramento for its local coloring. People were beginning to listen to the rise and fall of his sympathetic voice when it transpired that, through an inadvertence of the stenographer's clerk, the records of another case had been sent along with Mrs. Davidson's. Mrs. Tunnell, who had been called to appear on record that the ancient corset-dealer had conspired with a criminal in an underground ginnill in the capital to steal a matter of $3000 from some source, had been ordered the testimony thus read by mistake to be expunged from the minutes.

The pastor then found the right place and resumed his reading. Mr. Woodhams reads well, but his work was gone through with in a rapid perfunctory manner, which showed that he was merely discharging a rather tiresome official duty. The audience, in fact, resigned itself to listen to the rise and fall of his sympathetic voice when it transpired that, through an inadvertence of the stenographer's clerk, the records of another case had been sent along with Mrs. Davidson's. Mrs. Tunnell, who had been called to appear on record that the ancient corset-dealer had conspired with a criminal in an underground ginnill in the capital to steal a matter of $3000 from some source, had been ordered the testimony thus read by mistake to be expunged from the minutes.

Judge Advocate—it seems to me that these quotations are entirely irrelevant, and I wish to appear as being opposed to them if the council think they should be admitted. Dr. Brown, laboring under intense excitement, rose and said:

It seems to me that every time an objection is made to some question asked by myself to the witnesses, the prosecution is allowed the latitude it wishes, yet I am restricted to the questions which I am permitted to ask. I want to say right here that I think the moderator has been extremely unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

Moderator—Does Dr. Brown mean to insinuate that the council is biased in any way toward him or prejudiced against him? Dr. Brown—I insinuate nothing, except that the moderator has been unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

Moderator—You are entirely irrelevant, and I wish to appear as being opposed to them if the council think they should be admitted. Dr. Brown, laboring under intense excitement, rose and said:

It seems to me that every time an objection is made to some question asked by myself to the witnesses, the prosecution is allowed the latitude it wishes, yet I am restricted to the questions which I am permitted to ask. I want to say right here that I think the moderator has been extremely unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

Moderator—Does Dr. Brown mean to insinuate that the council is biased in any way toward him or prejudiced against him? Dr. Brown—I insinuate nothing, except that the moderator has been unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

Moderator—You are entirely irrelevant, and I wish to appear as being opposed to them if the council think they should be admitted. Dr. Brown, laboring under intense excitement, rose and said:

It seems to me that every time an objection is made to some question asked by myself to the witnesses, the prosecution is allowed the latitude it wishes, yet I am restricted to the questions which I am permitted to ask. I want to say right here that I think the moderator has been extremely unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

Moderator—Does Dr. Brown mean to insinuate that the council is biased in any way toward him or prejudiced against him? Dr. Brown—I insinuate nothing, except that the moderator has been unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

Moderator—You are entirely irrelevant, and I wish to appear as being opposed to them if the council think they should be admitted. Dr. Brown, laboring under intense excitement, rose and said:

It seems to me that every time an objection is made to some question asked by myself to the witnesses, the prosecution is allowed the latitude it wishes, yet I am restricted to the questions which I am permitted to ask. I want to say right here that I think the moderator has been extremely unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

Moderator—Does Dr. Brown mean to insinuate that the council is biased in any way toward him or prejudiced against him? Dr. Brown—I insinuate nothing, except that the moderator has been unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

Moderator—You are entirely irrelevant, and I wish to appear as being opposed to them if the council think they should be admitted. Dr. Brown, laboring under intense excitement, rose and said:

It seems to me that every time an objection is made to some question asked by myself to the witnesses, the prosecution is allowed the latitude it wishes, yet I am restricted to the questions which I am permitted to ask. I want to say right here that I think the moderator has been extremely unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

"I told her to be careful," said Mrs. Thurston, whereupon she replied: "How smart of you to guess my secret!" Then Mrs. Thurston recited in a purely matter of fact though effective way of numerous confidential talks with Mrs. Tunnell concerning Mattie Overman and Dr. Brown. She told of the Tacoma trip, in which the much-wanted Mrs. Tunnell admitted that Dr. Brown was footing the bills, not only of herself, but of Miss Overman.

One of the strongest statements that have yet been made against the pastor is that of Mrs. Eaton of Oakland. She declares that on the Monday following the arrest of Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Tunnell came to her house at 1 o'clock in the morning very much bewildered and apparently laboring under intense excitement. She said that she was going away, when I asked her why.

"Dr. Brown and Mattie Overman told me," she said, "if I couldn't stand up for them to get out."

Dr. Brown has affidavits from all the lodging-house keepers on Sixth, Bryant and Howard streets to the effect that he was never there. This will be offered in rebuttal of Mrs. Davidson's statement alleging that he and Miss Overman were constant visitors to one of these places.

It is said that an attempt will be made to show that Mrs. Mary Davis is not a responsible person. Mrs. Cooper is said to have proof of this in her possession, but declines at this time to give any intimation as to its character.

The council will resume its deliberations at 2 o'clock to-day.

THE PROCEEDINGS.

Mrs. Davidson's Testimony in the Police Court Re-Read Before the Council.

Sensations were looked for in vain at yesterday afternoon's session of the council. At 2 o'clock the reverend body filed into the lecture-room. The Rev. Dr. Sank led in prayer, after which the proceedings opened with a statement by the judge-advocate to the effect that Mrs. Davidson would not testify, having been advised not to do so by her attorneys. This being the case, he suggested that her testimony given in the Police Court be read instead.

"I am much in favor of this suggestion," interposed Dr. Brown, "but at the same time I trust that in case Mrs. Davidson's presence is required she may be called to testify."

"I am unable to speak positively as to that matter," responded Mr. Woodhams; "though my personal opinion is that Mrs. Davidson's lawyers will not permit her to come to the council. However, she might be called if it were thought necessary."

"The chair would rule to that effect if need were," remarked Dr. McLean. Dr. Brown did not seem very well satisfied with this information, but made no reply. The judge-advocate then commenced reading the voluminous testimony of Dr. Brown's aged nemesis. Most of those present, including all but four members of the council, had read the testimony as published in the newspapers, and a long hum of conversation served as an accompaniment to Mr. Woodhams' clear, well-modulated tones. When he had finished a recess was ordered. The tired judge-advocate refreshed his hard-worn vocal chords by taking copious draughts of the brand of ale affected by our first father in paradise, while Dr. Williams fell to writing in a notebook at a great rate, using as a knee-desk the Bible upon which the witnesses are sworn.

Dr. Brown, as soon as the council reconvened, commenced the reading of Mrs. Davidson's cross-examination in the Police Court—that is, he thought he did, and the audience, to its great wonderment, listened for about fifteen minutes to a weird, wild tale of villainy, looking to Sacramento for its local coloring. People were beginning to listen to the rise and fall of his sympathetic voice when it transpired that, through an inadvertence of the stenographer's clerk, the records of another case had been sent along with Mrs. Davidson's. Mrs. Tunnell, who had been called to appear on record that the ancient corset-dealer had conspired with a criminal in an underground ginnill in the capital to steal a matter of $3000 from some source, had been ordered the testimony thus read by mistake to be expunged from the minutes.

The pastor then found the right place and resumed his reading. Mr. Woodhams reads well, but his work was gone through with in a rapid perfunctory manner, which showed that he was merely discharging a rather tiresome official duty. The audience, in fact, resigned itself to listen to the rise and fall of his sympathetic voice when it transpired that, through an inadvertence of the stenographer's clerk, the records of another case had been sent along with Mrs. Davidson's. Mrs. Tunnell, who had been called to appear on record that the ancient corset-dealer had conspired with a criminal in an underground ginnill in the capital to steal a matter of $3000 from some source, had been ordered the testimony thus read by mistake to be expunged from the minutes.

Judge Advocate—it seems to me that these quotations are entirely irrelevant, and I wish to appear as being opposed to them if the council think they should be admitted. Dr. Brown, laboring under intense excitement, rose and said:

It seems to me that every time an objection is made to some question asked by myself to the witnesses, the prosecution is allowed the latitude it wishes, yet I am restricted to the questions which I am permitted to ask. I want to say right here that I think the moderator has been extremely unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

Moderator—Does Dr. Brown mean to insinuate that the council is biased in any way toward him or prejudiced against him? Dr. Brown—I insinuate nothing, except that the moderator has been unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

Moderator—You are entirely irrelevant, and I wish to appear as being opposed to them if the council think they should be admitted. Dr. Brown, laboring under intense excitement, rose and said:

It seems to me that every time an objection is made to some question asked by myself to the witnesses, the prosecution is allowed the latitude it wishes, yet I am restricted to the questions which I am permitted to ask. I want to say right here that I think the moderator has been extremely unfair to me, not only as regards this particular case, but in others.

must remember the seriousness of these charges that have been made, and we must try in some way or other to get at the facts and report up to the brethren in the position we are in. We shall lose nothing by this attempt to make peace. Let us do it in the knowledge that the brethren in the interest of the church and in the interest of everybody.

Presently Dr. Brown saw in what the committee of three can throw any light on the matter. Let us retire and see if we cannot come to some determination. Parkins—Dr. Brown has not charged this council, but only the moderator. We have voted to sustain the moderator and we have nothing to investigate. It may have been in bad taste for Dr. Brown to have made this charge. I don't think that we have anything to investigate. Tenney—Let us remember that our moderator has asked for this.

The integrity of the council has been called into question. If it is only that of my own attitude has been impugned, I don't think it seems to me that the integrity of this council as an investigating body has been injured. It seems to me that it is well for the council to take a session with Dr. Brown, and let him show us where we are wrong. Tenney—I still prefer that we do not act here on this matter. We ought to talk this matter over with Dr. Brown, and look it over in all its aspects. I am sure that he is in error, I am sure he will take it back.

On a vote being taken on a motion to table the whole matter it was carried, and the announcement of the moderator, who said that the council would go on with the trial was received by the crowded audience with murmurs of relief and approval. Owing to the time lost in this debate the session continued till 10 P. M., half an hour beyond the time fixed.

While the motion on the extension was pending Dr. Brown took the floor and spoke as follows: "If I were allowed the opportunity to state in a few words wherein I think that private meeting did me injustice—"

He was interrupted by Dr. Moar, who said: "This is not the order. The committee occupies too much time in debating questions. We want to give him all the opportunity possible in the examination of this witness, but we do not want to have our attention taken up by remarks of this nature. We are going to proceed with the trial."

Dr. Brown attempted to go on, but was forced to take his seat by the failure of the moderator to recognize him. After remaining quiet for a moment only, however, he arose again and said: "Mr. Moderator, I am not sure that I want to go on with this council after the manifestation of its spirit here to-night, and particularly the manifestation of its spirit here to-night. The moderator—it is for Dr. Brown to decide. Dodge—Go on.

Tenney—If I put in another plea? The moderator—If the doctor wishes—Rader—I move that we adjourn. Dr. Williams—rise to a question of privilege. I have been called away to Calaveras County to attend a funeral and must leave to-morrow. I shall probably not get back before Saturday. I make this explanation that the council and others may know why I am absent.

Mrs. Thurston being asked if she preferred to go on in the afternoon she stated emphatically that she wanted to finish her testimony then as she had already appeared six or seven times before the council in the expectation of being called. The moderator then called Dr. Brown and Dr. Brown continued his cross-examination of the witness, showing that she had no personal knowledge of what she testified to. He also tried to show that she was not a responsible person, but in a measure biased by her dislike of regular ministers of the gospel, and showed some slight discrepancies in her direct statements.

Mrs. Stockton was called for cross-examination, but she was not present. Mrs. George Barton was then called, but she, too, was absent. The committee appointed to secure a statement from Mrs. Eaton to whose house Mrs. Tunnell said to have gone the night she left Dr. Brown's house, then made the report, stating that Mrs. Eaton, her niece and her mother were found to be unable to identify any of the witnesses. Their testimony was then given by the secretary of the committee as follows:

Testimony of Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Eaton before stated committee, as given by the secretary, Mrs. Eaton, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I have known Mrs. Tunnell about thirty years. She has visited here frequently. Her last visit was on the early morning of December 12, 1895. Before that time I had never seen her. She came to my house on the morning of December 12, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of December 19, and I did not see her until the morning of the 20th. She came to my house on the morning of the 20th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 27th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 28th. She came to my house on the morning of the 28th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 30th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 31st. She came to my house on the morning of the 31st, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 1st, and I did not see her until the morning of the 2nd. She came to my house on the morning of the 2nd, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 3rd, and I did not see her until the morning of the 4th. She came to my house on the morning of the 4th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 5th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 6th. She came to my house on the morning of the 6th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 7th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 8th. She came to my house on the morning of the 8th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 9th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 10th. She came to my house on the morning of the 10th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 11th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 12th. She came to my house on the morning of the 12th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 13th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 14th. She came to my house on the morning of the 14th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 15th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 16th. She came to my house on the morning of the 16th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 17th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 18th. She came to my house on the morning of the 18th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 19th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 20th. She came to my house on the morning of the 20th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 21st, and I did not see her until the morning of the 22nd. She came to my house on the morning of the 22nd, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 23rd, and I did not see her until the morning of the 24th. She came to my house on the morning of the 24th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 25th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 26th. She came to my house on the morning of the 26th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 27th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 28th. She came to my house on the morning of the 28th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 29th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 30th. She came to my house on the morning of the 30th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 31st, and I did not see her until the morning of the 1st. She came to my house on the morning of the 1st, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 2nd, and I did not see her until the morning of the 3rd. She came to my house on the morning of the 3rd, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 4th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 5th. She came to my house on the morning of the 5th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 6th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 7th. She came to my house on the morning of the 7th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 8th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 9th. She came to my house on the morning of the 9th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 10th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 11th. She came to my house on the morning of the 11th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 12th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 13th. She came to my house on the morning of the 13th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 14th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 15th. She came to my house on the morning of the 15th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 16th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 17th. She came to my house on the morning of the 17th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 18th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 19th. She came to my house on the morning of the 19th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 20th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 21st. She came to my house on the morning of the 21st, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 22nd, and I did not see her until the morning of the 23rd. She came to my house on the morning of the 23rd, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 24th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 25th. She came to my house on the morning of the 25th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 26th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 27th. She came to my house on the morning of the 27th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 28th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 29th. She came to my house on the morning of the 29th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 30th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 31st. She came to my house on the morning of the 31st, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 1st, and I did not see her until the morning of the 2nd. She came to my house on the morning of the 2nd, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 3rd, and I did not see her until the morning of the 4th. She came to my house on the morning of the 4th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 5th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 6th. She came to my house on the morning of the 6th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 7th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 8th. She came to my house on the morning of the 8th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 9th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 10th. She came to my house on the morning of the 10th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 11th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 12th. She came to my house on the morning of the 12th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 13th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 14th. She came to my house on the morning of the 14th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 15th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 16th. She came to my house on the morning of the 16th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 17th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 18th. She came to my house on the morning of the 18th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 19th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 20th. She came to my house on the morning of the 20th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 21st, and I did not see her until the morning of the 22nd. She came to my house on the morning of the 22nd, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 23rd, and I did not see her until the morning of the 24th. She came to my house on the morning of the 24th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 25th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 26th. She came to my house on the morning of the 26th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 27th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 28th. She came to my house on the morning of the 28th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 29th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 30th. She came to my house on the morning of the 30th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 31st, and I did not see her until the morning of the 1st. She came to my house on the morning of the 1st, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 2nd, and I did not see her until the morning of the 3rd. She came to my house on the morning of the 3rd, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 4th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 5th. She came to my house on the morning of the 5th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 6th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 7th. She came to my house on the morning of the 7th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 8th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 9th. She came to my house on the morning of the 9th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 10th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 11th. She came to my house on the morning of the 11th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 12th, and I did not see her until the morning of the 13th. She came to my house on the morning of the 13th, and remained about a week. She left on the morning of the 14th, and I did not see her until the