CRUSHED UNDER A MAST
James Groves, a Rigger, Met Sudden Death on the John N. Ingalls.

WATCHES A COMRADE AT WORK
The Stays Gave Way and the Stick Fell, Making a General Havoc of Things.

Through somebody's carelessness one life was sacrificed on the schooner John N.

The Schooner John N. Ingalls, Whose Mast Fell Yesterday and Crushed James Groves to Death.

Ingalis yesterday and two men were injured. The foremast was old and rotten and an attempt was made to inspect it. When the stays were loosened it fell and crushed the life of James Groves, a rigger, who lived on Vicksburg street, near Twenty-fourth.

The accident was a peculiar one and was due in a great measure to the rottenness of the mast. J. J. Hairside, who had charge of the work, had the shears with which the spar was to be stepped erected early in the day. The task was considered a risky one, but very little precaution was taken to guard against an accident.

When everything was ready Gus Maltrus, employed by Hairside as a rigger, was sent aloft to adjust the stays in order that the mast might be loosened at the bottom. He made his way rapidly up the mast while a crowd on the wharf and several people on the vessel's deck watched his progress. Among the people on the deck was Groves.

When Maltrus was almost at the end of his climb the stays gave way and the mast fell with a crash. The rigger realized his danger in an instant and sprang from the foremast into the rigging of the mainmast. He lost his hold, however, and fell to the deck, sustaining a severe contusion of the side and an abrasion of the leg. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital and treated, after which he went to his home in East Berkeley.

Groves saw the mast coming and tried to get away, but was pinned to the beam where he could make his escape. His back and both legs were broken and he died a few minutes after having been extricated. His body was taken to the Morgue.

In its course the mast smashed one of the boats into splinters and crashed through the after deckhouse. Mate A. B. Anderson was in the cabin and had a narrow escape. He had resigned his position and was packing his belongings preparatory to going ashore. He had just put on his hat when the mast crashed through the cabin and knocked it off his head and gave him a severe scalp wound. He was attended to at an adjoining drugstore, and after getting his things ashore went away congratulating himself on his narrow escape.

The Ingalls seems to have been in very bad luck of late. It is not long ago that she arrived here from Mexican ports very short of provisions. When off the Farallones all that there was left aboard was some flour and brackish water, and on the 21st of last month she was wrecked on a rock. A search was made and several empty flasks were found hidden under the mattresses in the beds of the "trusties." Several more were found in a cell where buckets and other utensils were kept.

Suspicion fell upon Veso, who supplied meals to prisoners able to pay for them, and yesterday morning, when he entered the prison with his tray, he was searched and a flask of whisky was found in his pocket. He confessed that he had been supplying the "trusties" with the liquor. He charged them a liberal commission, sometimes 100 per cent. He will not be permitted to supply meals to prisoners any more.

"TRUSTIES" GET DRUNK.
V. Veso, a Restaurant Waiter, Arrested for Carrying Liquor Into the City Prison.

V. Veso, waiter in a restaurant on McAllister street, opposite the City Hall, was arrested yesterday morning by Captain Robinson and booked on the charge of carrying whisky into the prison. He was released on $300 bonds.

Captain Robinson had been noticing for some days that the "trusties" in the prison were in a condition of semi-intoxication, and one of them was so drunk on Wednesday that he had to be locked up in a cell. A search was made and several empty flasks were found hidden under the mattresses in the beds of the "trusties." Several more were found in a cell where buckets and other utensils were kept.

Mrs. Susan Coon, 927 Howard street, who in July last was sentenced in the Police Court to six months' imprisonment for cruelty to Elmer Johnston, a boy living with her, has given the officers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children considerable trouble.

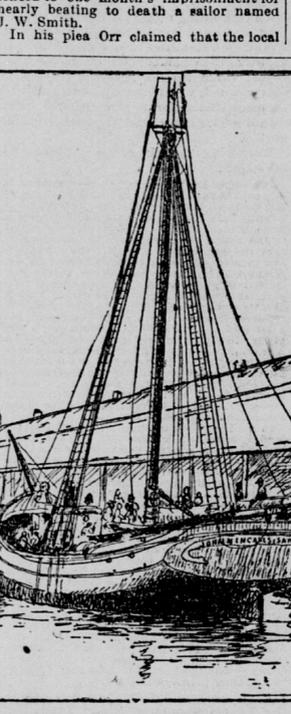

She appealed to the Superior Court from the sentence, and on February 10 the judgment of the lower court was affirmed. She was out on appeal bonds, and when in South San Francisco. It will be an unpretentious but pretty building, resembling in general outlines the chapel at Cypress Lawn.

For several years past efforts have been made by different denominations to arouse enough popular interest in the spiritual needs of the town to result in a church being built, but Rev. George Wallace of St. Margaret's School, San Mateo, is the clergyman who has finally succeeded in getting together the funds and making arrangements for erecting the first church building within the limits of the town of South San Francisco.

Some months ago Mr. Wallace was appointed by Bishop Nichols to carry on a mission in South San Francisco. Services were held in Pioneer Hall, and before long

JEWELER SCHMIDT GONE.
Locks Up His Store, at 1034 Market Street, and Departs Secretly.

His Liabilities Are About $18,000, Half of Which Is Due Local Creditors.

Peter P. Schmidt, a jeweler who has been doing business at 1034 Market street for several years, is missing, or, rather, is absent, for there is no mystery regarding the reason of his departure.

Creditors holding bills amounting to about $15,000 or $18,000 would like to know more regarding his affairs.

It is not known just the date of Schmidt's departure, but it is thought that he locked up his store and left about the first of last week. For some time his affairs have been unsatisfactory to his creditors.

Efforts were made to get some kind of a settlement, but no action was taken till last Friday, when a Deputy Sheriff came down on the place with a writ of attachment. Then he found that the jeweler had plumed himself for flight and went loaded with the contents of the establishment. The store was literally emptied of everything of any great value. Diamonds, watches and a large number of other costly articles that were known to have been in stock had disappeared with the disappearing proprietor.

It is not yet known how much Schmidt's liabilities are, but it is known that his debts to local firms will reach $9000 and that he owes Eastern jewelry firms an equal sum. His principal creditors here are: Carran & Green, A. Green, A. Eisenberg & Co., A. I. Hall & Son, E. Hirschfeld & Co., Nordmann Bros., Armer & Weinschenk, California Optical Company, L. A. Gioielli, George Greenberg & Co.

A member of the firm of Carran & Green, 220 Sutter street, stated yesterday that Schmidt's failure and flight amounted to downright felony, as he carried away all the valuable stock in his store. Warrants will be sworn out for his arrest, and he will be charged with defrauding his creditors.

Attorney A. Heynemann, who represents the Eastern firms, stated yesterday that it has been known for some time that Schmidt's affairs were not in a good condition, but it was not expected that he would get away with the plunder and so smoothly.

"Take it all together it is considered a remarkably successful clean-up, and it is thought that the creditors will realize little or nothing in the settlement."

SATURDAY'S GAME.
The Interest Still Growing in the Boys' Brigade Football Contest.

The game to be played at Central Park on Saturday afternoon between the Boys' Brigade Second and Fifth Regiment teams promises to be one of much interest. The teams have been practicing daily, and a close contest is expected by the supporters of both regiments. Many of the professionals about the bay will watch the result with interest.

Bob Plater, fullback on the Stanford team, says of Bishop and Davidson, half-back of the Fifth: "By the time they reach college they will make varsity men in their first year." This speaks well for the Fifth's boys.

Midleman's playing guard in the Olympics will act as umpire, and W. B. Hughton, who played tackle on the Marietta College team, will be the referee. The colors of the Second Regiment are blue and gold, and of the Fifth Regiment red and gold. The First Brigade band, B. B. C., has been hard at work preparing for the occasion, and the grand concert at 2:30 will be worth hearing. Among the number of pieces selected for the concert is the famous "King Cotton March." At the Oakland Exposition this band was highly praised by the management, and especially for the perfect manner in which it rendered "King Cotton," it being encored twice on this piece. Rain or shine a large and enthusiastic crowd is expected.

The Second Regiment team and the band will arrive at the foot of Market street at 2 p. m.

Communications to Corps Commanders of the Salvation Army.

SYMPATHY FROM CANADA.
Eva Booth Says Her Heart Is Broken Over the Recent Trouble and Calls for Prayers.

The Salvation Army officers are in frequent receipt of communications from National headquarters calculated to confirm them in their loyalty to the flag. The captains of the several stations yesterday received the following circular letter from Commissioner Eva Booth:

THE SALVATION ARMY NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS, 120-124 N. FOURTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY, February 26, 1896.

My Dear Comrade: Now that the general has appointed me to the command of the United States division of the army, I, as a commissioner, I hasten to place myself in your hands in this season of deep and heart-rending sorrow to be of what service God can enable me to push forward the salvation of souls.

It has given me untold comfort in this terrible storm to receive assurances of loyalty from the brigadiers, divisional and field staff. Every hour brings me from all parts of the field testimonies of the loyalty of the officers and of unwavering loyalty on the other. I will therefore confine my first letter to you to expressing a few heartfelt feelings suggested by the circumstances of the hour.

1. Do not be influenced to a final decision on the whole case until the general's return to England has taken place. Do not fully consider and decide upon the issues involved.

2. Remember that heavy and bitter as is the blow that has fallen upon you, which I fear would have shielded you from had it been possible, it cannot be as painful as for those of us who have not been so directly and personally affected. Do not let your hearts be laid down their lives to avert the disaster.

3. Let me ask you to fix your mind upon the principles at stake. Should the general make one thing or another? Should he apply one law to his son and another to his brigadiers and field officers? These questions lie at the root of the present distress, and to preserve the unity of the whole army that the general has felt it right to decide and act as he has done.

4. Be true to your pledges. The gaze of the whole world is fixed upon America, and upon you, and upon the principles which you believe in. I believe it because of your past faithfulness and devotion, because of struggles through which you have long and hard because of the victories won for the cause in the past, and because you know the power as well as the grace of obedience.

5. Stand by the army. It is world-wide in its unity, benevolence and purpose.

6. Be careful to avoid encouraging any party or personal feeling in your own mind, or in the mind of others. We are all of one love, speak evil of and think evil of no one.

7. Have faith in God. We shall overcome. But we must only do so by fighting in the confidence that our principles are divine.

8. Give me your trust. I am alone. My heart is broken. This is a terrible trial, and I am sure you will not ask me to continue to remain before the throne our beloved general—the father of our movement. His spirit will be torn to shreds, and he will be unable to love and sustain him.

I pray that the God of all grace and peace will give us the wisdom and strength to stand by the Holy Ghost give you courage and desperate faith, and while the waters of this grief beat rudely around us, unity and peace shall be the shadow of the cross and the wave of the Salvation Army flag.

Rely upon me as your sister and comrade in this hour of our common trial.

EVA C. BOOTH, Commissioner.

The following, also, conveying the sympathy of the army of Canada, signed by seventy-eight officers, was received:

THE SALVATION ARMY, TERRITORIAL HEADQUARTERS, 120-124 N. FOURTEENTH STREET, TORONTO, Ontario, February 25, 1896.

To Our Comrade Officers of the United States—Dear Sirs: We have just received your letter, with the profoundest sorrow, of the resignation from the army of Commander and Mrs. Baldwin Booth, who, until a few weeks ago, were your loved and successful leaders.

With the difficulties leading up to this we have no heart to know anything about. We pray for you as only those can pray whose hearts have been welded together in the fires of affection and persecution. Be not dismayed if we are not able to show the same sort of difficulties. We have had the press and the enemies of union arrayed against us. We have had to combat the evil influences of the world, standing and misrepresentation, but God has ever and always come to our assistance and indicated us before the world.

We are now more than ever thankful that in those hours of distress we stood by the old flag and fought our own principles. We feel sure you will do the same. We are bound together by ties of brotherly love and comradeship which the world knows nothing about. We pray for you as only those can pray whose hearts have been welded together in the fires of affection and persecution. Be not dismayed if we are not able to show the same sort of difficulties. We have had the press and the enemies of union arrayed against us. We have had to combat the evil influences of the world, standing and misrepresentation, but God has ever and always come to our assistance and indicated us before the world.

SPARROW NOT A GYPSY.
The Mantle of Authority Falls Upon the Shoulders of His Son.

The Dead Chief Forsook Country and Friends for His Gypsy Bride.

The little gypsy camp on Fifteenth street is mourning.

Romany staidism is not proof against the loss of the patriarch and leading spirit of the tribe, who lies on a sable bier in the most pretentious tent of the settlement. Even George Sparrow, next to the eldest son of the dead chief, to whom all turn for counsel, could not restrain his tears as he talked of the dead man.

It is understood that unless the oldest member of the family, Richard Sparrow, who lives in New York, consents to come West and assume those duties the mantle of authority will fall upon the shoulders of George.

Thus far all efforts to communicate with Richard have been fruitless.

Mrs. Sparrow, the widow, went to Oakland yesterday to make such business arrangements as were necessary for the funeral. Friends and relatives watched with the dead.

It was a romantic story that Mrs. Bathsheba Warton of San Jose, a daughter of the dead chief, tells of her father's life.

"My father was not a gypsy," she said between her sobs. "He was an educated man, and at several times in his life was wealthy. He was mate on an English vessel running between Liverpool and New York, and on one of the voyages he met
