

THE STRIKE WILL BECOME GENERAL.

Building Trades to Fight for the Working-Card System.

THE PARROTT BUILDING Contractors Must Come to Terms or a Walkout Will Be Ordered.

DECISION OF THE COUNCIL.

Every Other Non-Union Job in the City Will Be Struck as Soon as Possible.

A general strike of the building trades of this city for a recognition of the principles of unionism is now on.

The heavy hand of organized labor will strike the first blow at the big Parrott building on Market street.

Such is the determination of the building trades unions through their representatives in the central body, the Building Trades Council.

There was but one actual mourner yesterday afternoon at the funeral of Mrs. Olga Deuss and her three asphyxiated babies.

There were nearly ten thousand people in attendance at and about the Sühr undertaking establishment and half that number about the public receiving vault in Old Fellows' Cemetery.

All the other people, or at least the great majority of those crowded about the dead ones, were there out of absolute morbid curiosity.

Mr. St. Denis and his partner, T. Macauley, made an agreement or contract that they had no intention of living up to longer than was absolutely necessary or suits their convenience.

The statement that the firm of J. St. Denis & Co. made an agreement with the union people that we do not intend to live up to was not in good faith.

hearse and Fredda and Carl were put in a white one.

The pallbearers were John Hauser, Charles Adams, Henry Bach and Joseph Stroeegen, representing the Mission Turn Verein, and P. Gell and C. Hahn, representing Mission Lodge of Hermann's Sons.

The funeral cortege reached Masonic Cemetery at 3:30 o'clock. Already thousands of people had gathered there. Among them were hundreds of school children with their books and slates correctly strapped and slung over their shoulders.

Emil Leiss, the German philosopher who is the head of the Free-thinkers' church in this city, delivered a short address. He was quite ill, and left his bed for the ceremony contrary to the advice of his physician.
