CITY NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Greeks hold merry Easter with the old-time pomp. There is a plant in Golden Gate Park that deprives people of speech.

The rain kept the rifle-shooters away from the beach yesterday. Pender broke the 100-shot coast record on blue rocks yesterday at the Oakland Park.

The sudden deaths of two aged men were reported at the Morgue yesterday afternoon. The American branch of socialists adopted a resolution of sympathy for the coal strikers.

Cornelius Vanderbilt and Chauncey M. Depew visited the Cliff and Sutro Baths yesterday. Chauncey M. Depew says that there is but one Cliff House and one Sutro Bath in the world.

Ben. Sly Boy and Comassie divided the bulk of the prizes at Ocean View coursing park yesterday. The bark Modoc, wrecked on the beach at Santa Rosalia, is reported by her captain to be a total loss.

The labor unions now on strike are again confronted by their old enemy, the profit-sharing system. The weather predictions for to-day are: Probably occasional showers; fresh to brisk southerly winds.

The Valentine Holt Revolution of the Children of the American Revolution held a patriotic meeting on Saturday. The trapeze artists were out in goodly numbers at the blue rock and live bird shoot at the Oakland Park yesterday.

George R. B. Hayes, the attorney, died at his home, 2513 Pacific avenue, yesterday from the effects of dropsy upon his heart. Splendid scores were registered yesterday at the annual spring regatta of the California Schuetzen Club at Schuetzen Park.

Dr. York delivered an interesting lecture on "The Science of Life and What We Live For" last evening at the Y. Vanderbilt and Depew attended service at Grace Church yesterday. The former's Easter offering was $100 and the latter's $40.

Contractor Bowers declares that Deputy City Engineer Comassie is working against him were actuated by personal motives. Lieutenant James H. Sears of the United States navy has located several rocks in Mission Bay that are a menace to navigation.

Plans for the quartermaster's new stables at the Presidio were recently prepared by Col. N. S. Kimball and forwarded to Washington.

Some changes were made which could not be completed owing to the lay-off of the men and surroundings and so modified plans were prepared. Last Saturday a message was received by wire from Washington that the modified plans had been approved.

Bids for building the stables will be invited without further delay. Contractors bidding on Government work at the Presidio are advised that the plans and specifications prepared at the office of the department quartermaster in this city, and approved by the quartermaster-general and Secretary of War, cannot be changed for the convenience of the contractor.

The kind of material to be used is clearly specified. The authorities here cannot allow any deviation from the contract or permit one kind of material to be substituted for another. Contractors who have been working for the City and State, and who have often had permission to make changes here and there when specified materials were not immediately accessible, complain of great hardships imposed by the Government.

As an example Contractor Hansen's experience in building double brick barracks Nos. 2 and 3 at the Presidio is cited. Colonel Kimball is of the opinion that Hansen, who received nearly $35,000 for one of the double buildings and a sum in excess of $35,000 for the other, should have cleared $5000 on the contract, yet it is acknowledged that he lost money. The engineer, Mr. Humphreys, is blamed for exacting too much from the contractor.

Colonel Kimball is of the opinion that the contractor wasted time and effort to procure material different from that specified. Again work was done contrary to the specifications and had to be taken out and done over again. A short time ago Colonel Kimball found that the contractor for supplying pipes and extending the water mains at the Presidio delivered six or seven wagon loads of pipe, and not half of the material had the hub-joints plainly required by the specifications.

Moreover the pipe was under weight and plainly marked so. The pipe, it is thought, was an underweight lot made at the Oregon penitentiary. When it was promptly rejected the contractor wanted to park it on the reservation, but was ordered to take it away and to stand the double expense of hauling the material to the ground and hauling it away.

In city and State work obliging inspectors permit contractors to put in the cheapest material and do work in the easiest manner, but the Government Inspector has no authority to allow departure from specifications. That can only be done by the Secretary of War. Some queer notions of advertising for public work have authority of law in Washington. For example, the advertisement for work now authorized at the Presidio—the filling in of marsh lands and the building of new stables—must be published in one paper at Portland, Oregon.

In line with the policy recently adopted by the Department of War for the concentration of troops and the commissary stations, the depot for purchasing and distributing commissary supplies at Los Angeles for the troops in Arizona and New Mexico will soon be abolished. The needed supplies will hereafter be purchased in San Francisco and St. Louis. Major W. A. Elderkin, commissary of subsistence at Los Angeles, has been ordered to report for duty at San Antonio, Texas. It is estimated that the Los Angeles purchases amount to $100,000 per annum.

It is now accepted as a fact that the First Infantry, which has been stationed in this harbor for ten years, will be relieved this summer by the Fourteenth Infantry. A report comes from Washington that an appropriation of $100,000 for the next fiscal year is available in July, two artillery regiments will change stations, the Third and Fifth. This is accepted as meaning that the Fifth, General Graham's regiment, will go south and the Third come to San Francisco. The six batteries of the Fifth regiment now stationed at the Presidio are occupying the best military quarters that the officers and enlisted men of the regiment ever saw.

Captain Frank Thorp's Light Battery D moved into Brick Barracks No. 3 last Thursday. The accommodations provided are modern and first-class. There are reading-rooms, offices, sleeping apartments, modern toilet appliances, spacious bath-tubs, kitchen range, dining-room, side halls, abundant light, spacious porch or veranda and views of sea, mountain and forest that are unsurpassed. Practice marches of artillery, cavalry and infantry will be the order in this department whether troops come or go under the transfer system. The four companies of the Fourth Cavalry, now on duty at the Presidio, have been ordered to the Government reservation of Sequoia and Yosemite on the trip the navy was represented by the first of July. Light artillery marches and practice occur in June and July.

Lieutenant McGraw, Fourth Cavalry, and Lieutenant Brown, Fourth Infantry, are in San Francisco before the examining board for promotion. Lieutenant Willoughby Walke, Fifth Artillery, has been granted six months' leave of absence on surgeon's certificate. Lieutenant J. B. Erwin, Fourth Cavalry, has been promoted to the rank of captain. Lieutenant G. H. Preston, Fourth Cavalry, has been transferred to Troop A, Ninth Cavalry, Fort Robinson, Neb.

The army officers that recently accompanied the trip the navy was represented by the first of July. Light artillery marches and practice occur in June and July. Lieutenant-Colonel David S. Gordon, Sixth United States Cavalry, who is well known in San Francisco and highly regarded in the army, is to be retired next month. A measure is pending in Congress to retire him with the rank of colonel.

GEORGE R. B. HAYES DEAD

The Distinguished Attorney Passes Away Suddenly at His Home. WAS PREPARING FOR CHURCH. He Had Been Suffering From Dropsy but the End Came When Least Expected.

George R. B. Hayes died yesterday morning at his residence, 2513 Pacific avenue. Although he had been ailing for some months past, his death was wholly unexpected and came with scarcely a premonition.

Mr. Hayes suffered for a long time from a dropsical affection. Recently Drs. Windell and Luke Robinson operated upon him and he seemed relieved, even when the physicians saw his case was a hopeless one. His condition remained the same, fluctuating from day to day. Saturday he complained of feeling unwell and stayed at home, but yesterday morning he was better, and made preparations to attend services in St. Mary's Cathedral. While dressing he lapsed into unconsciousness, and in a brief time he was dead. The immediate cause of death was pressure upon the heart caused by dropsy.

Mr. Hayes was a successful attorney, a member of the law firm of Stanley, Hayes & Bradley. He was also personal attorney for Archbishop Riordan. He was born in Belfast, Ireland, in 1847, and educated in the national schools and the Queen's College, Belfast. In 1865 he came to America and did not end his journey until he arrived in San Francisco, where he entered the law office of his uncle and completed his legal studies. After having been admitted to the bar he became associated with the firms of Stanley & Hayes, which then became known as Hayes, Stanley & Hayes. Three years later Judge Stanley withdrew to act as County Judge, and Mr. Hayes and his uncle continued together for several years. For a time he practiced his profession alone, and in 1879 a new firm, Stanley, Stoney & Hayes, was established. The three lawyers forming this firm rose to the front ranks of the legal profession in San Francisco, and eventually Judge Stoney was succeeded by Mr. Bradley.

Mr. Hayes made a reputation for himself in the Colton case, in which he was the workhorse, and led his colleagues in many features of the great conflict. His last forensic appearance was as counsel for Father Nugent in the Gallagher suit over an estate, and his last effort in politics was made before the Democratic State Central Committee in the California Hotel three weeks ago last Saturday, when he protested against interference of the State in the party issue of San Francisco. He was a strong Democrat, and has been a delegate for many years to the City, State and National conventions. When quite a young man he was elected to the State Legislature.

He was well known intimately speak of him as a man generous to the last degree, of kindly disposition and popular among his conferees. He enjoyed an abundance of ready wit, was quick in action, aggressive and possessed of unusual ability and talent. He married about five years ago, and leaves a widow. The funeral will take place Tuesday morning.

They Celebrate Their Holiday With All the Pomp of Ancient Days. It is only about twice in a decade that the Greek Easter comes on the same day as that of the Catholics, and yesterday when this event occurred the Hellenic Mutual Benevolent Society made it a point to celebrate the event with all the ancient pomp and modern side issues they could throw in.

The religious ceremonies of the usual order took place, beginning early in the evening of Saturday at the Greek church on Powell street, near Filbert. They closed after midnight, and under ordinary circumstances the entire congregation would have celebrated the day with a trip into the green fields and by pelting each other with eggs, colored and otherwise, but emptied of their meat so as not to be hurtful.

The crowd went to the Sparta, where M. D. Vanvales presided over the repeat and D. S. Camarinos, founder of the Hellenic Society, saw that the wave of the silk was well done in the "Czar's" dance. Among those present were: G. G. Camarinos, M. D. Vanvales, C. Demetarak, G. Fundas, A. George, P. Carvounos, E. Stathopoulos, N. Apollodimos, A. Simopoulos, C. Capillos, C. Catechi, N. PROGRESS OF THE STRIKE.

An Aggressive Move to Be Pursued Upon the Parrott Block Tie-Up. Labor Unions Again Confronted by Their Old Enemy, the Profit-Sharing System.

The Building Trades Council's grievance committee and business agents have determined to pursue an aggressive policy relative to the strike now on hand, and particularly upon the strike on the Parrott building. In the latter case extra efforts will be made to induce Brusckhe and Kuss' workmen to leave their work and join the unions of their calling. From now on the job will be picketed, and every means except violence will be used by the union men to accomplish their end.

These extra efforts will be made in consequence of information received at headquarters that both contractors are endeavoring to bind their men to their respective shops by the introduction of the profit-sharing system. It is said that the system is or has been in vogue in Kuss' shop. A union workman who recently worked in Brusckhe's shop stated that the latter, since the strike began, has been endeavoring to induce all of his non-union men to sign a sort of co-partnership agreement based on the principles of the profit-sharing system. The union men recognize the fact that once a workman enters into such a contract it will be impossible to ever induce the man to leave the shop in which he believes he has an interest. The profit-sharing business is regarded as most antagonistic to the unionist, and the Democratic State Central Committee in the California Hotel three weeks ago last Saturday, when he protested against interference of the State in the party issue of San Francisco.

THE TOLNA MAY BE LOST

No Tidings of Count Festic's Yacht for Six Long Months. FRIENDS BECOMING ALARMED. The Crew May Have Mutinied or the Vessel May Have Been Caught by Cannibals.

Many of the friends of Count and Countess Festic are becoming alarmed because no tidings of the yacht Tolna have been received for six months. Last October the little schooner left Sydney, N. S. W., and the Count and Countess sent word to friends in this city to forward all mail to Japan. They stated that it was their intention to sail there as rapidly as they could, and then proceed on their voyage around the world.

Mail and merchandise from this city reached Japan all right, but evidently the Tolna did not, and from all reports the packages are still waiting claimants. Whether they will ever come or not is now beginning to look doubtful. From all that can be learned nothing has been seen or heard of the Tolna since she left Sydney. Several seamen who have lately been in that part of the globe over which the vessel would have to pass had not heard a thing about her. At the different headquarters where seamen meet and talk over things nobody can be found who has heard anything about the missing vessel.

A number of seamen are of the opinion that the Tolna is not so very long overdue considering the fact that she is a slow vessel and in charge of a man who is not a practical navigator. Several old salts who know every shoal and current in the Pacific express the opinion that the vessel will not be heard from for a year yet. They say that unless a man thoroughly understands the trade winds he is likely to get among some of the islands and stay there becalmed for months. Such things have happened before and may happen again.

Captain Festic is said to be a good navigator, but he knows very little about handling a sailing vessel and still less about commanding a crew. Nor does he know anything about the islands he would be compelled to sail near. Many of them are inhabited by people who are not far from savages and a captain who knows his business would not go near them. There are many other dangers to be calculated on besides the dangers of the sea.

Ever since the Tolna has been in charge of Count Festic she has been in trouble of some kind. She was attached for many bills before she left, they put over two years ago, and numbers of the crew deserted because they were not being properly fed. When she did get away she was poorly manned, although the sailing-master was a man who knew his business. It took her nearly two months to reach Honolulu and then all her good men left and a crew of natives were shipped. The Count assuming full command.

There was trouble between captain and crew most of the time, and at Sydney it was almost impossible to obtain a crew of even the poorest men. Captain Festic is said to be very overbearing toward the crew, and it is not without the realm of possibility that a mutiny broke out in some deserted part of the ocean and the end of the cruise will never be told. Old seamen are inclined to believe that this is the cause of the delay of the Tolna, rather than any peril of navigation.

One of the four new attractions offered at the Orpheum this evening is Mlle. Elena Leila, known in Europe as the "Singing Doll." She is said to have a remarkable voice. Another attraction is Rosie Rendel, a transformation dance artiste from one of the English theaters.

At the Macdonough Theater in Oakland, Anna Eva Fay will give her farewell performance, and in appearing for the last time this season, will mystify the Oaklander with her powers in the cabinet and in so-called mind-reading.

BROWN MAY GO NORTH.

The Pastor of the First Church Would Not Decline a Call. Has Not Yet Received Official Notification From Tacoma—Easter Service and Classes.

The Easter decorations of the First Congregational Church were not nearly so elaborate as those offered to the pastor on the occasion of his return to the pulpit the Sunday following his conviction by the ecclesiastical council.

Dr. Brown appeared in excellent voice. "Christ the First Fruits" was the theme on which he dwelt at considerable length. The order of the morning service was elaborate.

At the conclusion of this exercise Dr. Brown proceeded to organize what is known as the Pastor's Bible class. Nearly 100 of his friends came forward and expressed a desire to become members of the new organization. This means that Mrs. Cooper's Bible class is forever done away with, so far as the pastor or the First Congregational Church is concerned.

At the evening service Dr. Brown took for his subject, "Resurrections in This Life." A full choral programme was rendered.

Mrs. Cooper's Bible class met as usual in Native Sons' Hall yesterday at 12:45 p. m. In spite of the extremely disagreeable climatic conditions 153 people were present.

At 6:30 o'clock the Christian Endeavorers met in the same room, 110 members being present. "I am not prepared to dispute the story published in THE CALL this morning," said Pastor Brown, "concerning my recall by the First Church of Tacoma, and I know absolutely nothing about it."

"The public is to understand then that there is no truth in the statement," suggested the reporter. "Not by any means," was the unexpected answer. "I want to say that I have no official notification of such action. As a matter of fact, I would not be surprised if such a thing had been done, but if so I have not been informed. Before my acquittal a prominent member of the Tacoma church said if I was not satisfied with the verdict I could go back there. I have heard nothing more from him since that time."

Would you accept a call from the Tacoma church?" was then asked. "I do not care to say at this time," the pastor replied evasively. "A little later I may have something to say on this subject."
