Major Frank McLaughlin, chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee, yesterday evening announced his appointments of committees as given above. This perfects the State campaign machinery, which will start into vigorous activity immediately after the National Convention.

The announcement had been awaited with great interest by a great many party men throughout the State, and the list of names, as the head of the State campaign operations had placed them, was scanned with the analytical attention about the hot lobbies during the evening.

It turned out that McLaughlin had achieved the result of satisfying nearly everybody. Some spots could be seen redning of course, but they were little ones. The major's job had not been one that men would be apt to yearn for, but he accomplished it with skill and wisdom.

The chairman had used extreme care and had repeatedly changed the make-up of the committees during the ten days which he had given for their consideration. He considered first the fitness and availability of the men for the work and then the probabilities of the members of each committee working together in harmony.

He also considered, of course, as far as the best discretion permitted, the individual wishes of the respective members. The consent of each man to serve on the respective committees to which he was appointed was secured, and it was not until yesterday afternoon that the list was finally decided upon.

The most noticeable thing about the list as it stands is the fact that no chairmanships and comparatively few committee places have been given to the representatives of Southern California. This is wholly due to the fact that it has been arranged that an auxiliary committee, to manage campaign details south of Tehachapi, has been arranged for.

The southern members will create their own corresponding committees with their chairmen, all of which, however, will be subject to the general control of the whole executive committee. This arrangement suits well the southern members and will result in a more effective, more intelligently managed and more satisfactory State campaign.

The committees, as they stand, are regarded by leading Republicans as strong and able ones, with the right men in the right places, and as further assurances that the coming campaign will be in the hands of clean, able and competent men who will put life and vigor into the campaign, and win a victory that will be worthy of the party.

"Some people have been anxious for me to produce the committees before this," said the major last evening, "but it was impossible for me to do so. I had to consult with nearly every member of the committee to see if my contemplated placing of his name would be satisfactory to him, and to see if he would be satisfied to work with his committee associates. I made some changes on telegraphic information as late as this afternoon.

"The reason that no chairmanships have been given to Southern California is that an auxiliary committee will be created for that territory and those members will dispose of the chairmanships as they please."

The committees will not be apt to do anything until after the State Convention, when the campaign will break.

The Mechanics' Institute Prefers to Take No Definite Stand.

Preparing for Saturday's Reception to the Attaches of the Union Iron Works.

At last night's meeting of the board of trustees and officers of the Mechanics' Institute, the report of the committee on lectures and classes announced the closing of the classes at the same time that the City public schools close. It was also announced that Professor E. E. Farmer would take charge of the class in electricity at the opening of the next session.

Mr. Doolan, chairman of the special committee appointed to arrange for the reception to the proprietors and attaches of the Union Iron Works to take place on Saturday night at the Pavilion, reported the 5000 invitations had been issued. Messrs. Lewis and Cummings, who also signed the report, wished publicity to be given to the fact that no admission fee will be charged at the reception or at the ball which is to follow it. The program as at present arranged is as follows:

- 'La Fiesta' (Rocovier); 'American Overture' (Cattin), introducing 'Our Nations,' 'Red White and Blue,' 'Hall Columbia,' 'Washington's March,' 'America,' 'American Hymn,' 'The Land of Washington,' 'Star Spangled Banner,' 'Yankee Doodle' and 'The Star Spangled Banner.' Denicke, president of the Mechanics' Institute; Grand Nautical Medley 'Songs from the Sea,' introducing 'The Fair,' 'Farwell Waltz,' 'Dublin Bay,' 'By the Sad Sea Waves,' 'Life on the Ocean Wave,' 'The Star Spangled Banner,' 'Come Home to Me,' 'Sailing,' 'On Board the Oregon,' 'Docked in the Cradle of the Deep,' 'Blue and the Gray' (Ball); Knickerbocker Quartet, 'A Sailor's Life, Hurrah' (Coe); address, George W. Dickie, president of the Mechanics' Institute; address, George W. Dickie; music, 'March of the Roses' (Schleicher); dancing.

The president announced that he had been invited to attend a series of meetings having for their object the furthering of the proposed new charter. He had not accepted the invitation, as he was unwilling to appear as though acting for the institute.

This called for a vigorous anti-charter speech from Mr. Leggett, and it was decided that the institute as such had best preserve a neutral attitude toward the proposed public document.

The number of suicides among the deaf and dumb is said to be greater than among any other class of unfortunates.

After the Blumh Passed Up the Bay a Shot Was Fired and Captain Larsen at Once Made for the Fort to Give an Account of Himself. The Gracie S Stood On and Off and Came In Between Shots.

The Government steamer McDowell will be kept busy in moving the targets and making ready for the morning drill.

Yesterday the gunners at Fort Mason (Black Point) made an excellent showing. Their shot and shell went within a few hundred feet of the target on every occasion and once or twice the spray from a bursting shell broke clear over the buoy. The target was clear across the channel and in consequence the shots had to be timed in order to allow vessels passing in or out to clear the line of fire.

The schooner Dora Blumh from Eureka and the pilot-boat Gracie S both passed in about the same time. The Gracie S went into irons but the Blumh held on her way.

The men at the fort held their fire, but as soon as the schooner was out of danger the cannon was discharged. Captain Larsen thought the shot was intended for him and he at once lowered his mainsail and stood in for Meigs wharf. It was only when the Merchants' Exchange reporter explained the situation to him that he consented to stand on his way for the Mission mud flats. Between the next two shots the Gracie S passed in and came to an anchorage off Powell-street wharf.

President Colton of the Harbor Commission thought the shot was intended for him and he at once lowered his mainsail and stood in for Meigs wharf. It was only when the Merchants' Exchange reporter explained the situation to him that he consented to stand on his way for the Mission mud flats. Between the next two shots the Gracie S passed in and came to an anchorage off Powell-street wharf.

Superintendent of Construction Robertson will in future have to report to Architect Swain once a week. Commissioner Chadbourne thought that he should make a showing in regard to his work. President Colton thought no report was necessary as Robertson was really employed as a private detective. Chadbourne insisted, however, that a record of the work done by him should appear among the records of the commission, and he gained his point. In future his weekly report of work done and material accepted will be incorporated in the architect's statement.

H. Taylor asked for permission to advertise his navigation school on the building of one of the tugboat companies. His request was denied.

Manuel Drobaz had to pay a bill of $22 over which he and the collector at fishermen's wharf had several squabbles. Drobaz owns a fishing-boat and the captain failed to pay the State tolls. When they amounted to $6 a demand was made upon Drobaz for the amount. He refused to pay and pointed to the fact that he had told the collector to get his money every Saturday night. In the meantime the boat disappeared and the State was out $6. A few days ago the lugger turned up again and Drobaz reported the boat to the collector. Double wharfage and a fine of $10 was charged, and before Drobaz could get his boat he had to pay it. Yesterday he made an impassioned appeal to the Commissioners, but it availed him nothing, so suit, in which she was joined by her son Manuel, and when the case came to trial Judge Prewett made an order directing Philip to turn over all the property in his possession to Receiver Yates.

This morning, at an appointed hour, the Judge, receiver and all others interested met at the Safe Deposit Building and waited for Oppenheim, but, as stated, they waited in vain.

The defaulting trustee is the son of Raphael O. Oppenheim, a Sacramento capitalist who died in 1890, leaving an estate valued at $150,000. By his will he left everything to his widow, with whom he had not got along well for years, on condition that in whatever she did for the three children—Philip, Manuel and California—she should treat all alike.

Philip, however, persuaded his mother to turn over everything to him by a trust deed, by the terms of which Philip was to have control of all the property during his mother's lifetime.

Mrs. Oppenheim says she signed the deed while ignorant of its true significance. When she realized, however, what unlimited power she had given Philip, she endeavored in vain to regain possession of the property. Finally she instituted a suit, in which she was joined by her son Manuel, and when the case came to trial Judge Prewett made an order directing Philip to turn over all the property in his possession to Receiver Yates.

introduced his California-grown tobacco Brandt began the manufacture of the leaf into cigars, and the union discovered in a very short time that he was employing Chinese in their manufacture.

All efforts to have him change to white labor seem to have been of no avail and at last the union declared a boycott upon the product of Brandt's factory. Last evening at the meeting of the union it was decided to call upon the Building Trades Council and the labor organizations in the City to support the boycott. The committee will also visit all retail dealers who carry Brandt's stock and ask them to cease dealing with the manufacturer until such time as he discharges his Chinese cigar-makers and employs white cigar-makers in their stead.

Nominations were made last evening of the officers for the ensuing term. The election will be held at the next regular meeting.

OPPENHEIM IN CANADA.

With Him There Is Also Supposed to Be One Hundred Thousand Dollars.

Persuaded His Mother to Turn Her Property Over to Him by a Trust Deed.

Philip Oppenheim, who had been ordered by Judge Prewett of the Sacramento Superior Court to turn over yesterday to T. M. Yates as receiver some $100,000, which he held as trustee for his mother, has disappeared and is supposed now to be in Toronto, Canada.

The defaulting trustee is the son of Raphael O. Oppenheim, a Sacramento capitalist who died in 1890, leaving an estate valued at $150,000. By his will he left everything to his widow, with whom he had not got along well for years, on condition that in whatever she did for the three children—Philip, Manuel and California—she should treat all alike.
