up to me. Not suspecting anything, I stopped at his request. He then drew a six-shooter on me and compelled me to climb down from the wagon. Holding his pistol in my face with one hand, with the other Fincher piled a blacksnake on me for a quarter of an hour. I had to stand still and take a terrible beating, as I was afraid that he would shoot me.

"Fincher then remounted his horse and started back to freedom. I immediately un hitched one of my horses and rode to a neighbor's and procured a pistol. At Herndon I found Fincher sitting beside the railroad track where a fence of the bridge. I rode up to him, and seeing that he had drawn his pistol, told him to commence. We fired at each other, and Fincher hit me in the thigh. The horse which was riding became excited, and my aim was poor.

"Fincher then dodged behind a wheel under a car. From this position he began firing again and hit me in the right shoulder. I emptied my pistol, and did not know how to reload it. I rode away and had just time to get a friend to flag the train, on which I came to Fresno.

"Price would give no further particulars as to the cause of the trouble, except that Fincher whipped him for hugging Mrs. Fincher.

REDDING SUFFRAGISTS.

The Town Fairly Captured by the Advocates of Equal Rights.

Eastern Capitalists Propose a Great Colonization Scheme.

Water to Be Conveyed From the Colorado River Into San Diego County.

SAN DIEGO, CAL., June 11.—Another colonization scheme on the Colorado River is said to be well started. The details of the project are given by A. B. Boswell of Los Angeles, who accidentally learned through a relative of a move which has been kept quiet.

"I don't know much about the scheme," said Mr. Boswell, "but I am willing to tell you what I have learned. A company of New York capitalists has been formed and connections established in the City of Mexico. I can't give you the names of these men. According to the information given me by my relative, who is interested in the project, and who will probably act as land agent for the company, they have purchased 350,000 acres of land from the Mexican Government, situated on the west side of the Colorado River in Lower California.

"The plan is to divert water from the Colorado River for the irrigation of these lands, which are to be made fertile and capable of raising the finest of tropical fruits. When the water system is in, the price of the land is to be fixed at $10 per acre, payable in ten years, according to the terms of the Mexican Government. Efforts will be made to colonize the district as fast as possible.

"The promoters of the scheme have visited the country several times," continued Boswell, "and they evidently mean business, as they have secured two parties of surveyors into the field preparatory to beginning the work of diverting the river. They are desirous of keeping the thing quiet, and I do not even care to name my relative, who gave me the information.

"The lands in question lie just below the international boundary line. They include the famous mud volcanoes and hot springs that abound in that section. The richer part of the country comprises the bottom land of the New River, which flows into the Colorado, or rather is an arm of the Colorado. The company proposes to build a canal thirty feet in width and having a total length of about fifty miles, taking in the best portion of these lands. The canal will cross the boundary line and furnish water for a good deal of Government land in San Diego County, which is equally rich and capable of giving homes to a great many people.

"I was told that the development of this so-called desert was to be hastened by a compact made with the Southern Pacific Company," added Mr. Boswell. "The company now has a long and profitable haul across the desert from Yuma to Los Angeles, and it has assured the promoters of this new colonization enterprise that if the country is developed by a canal and colonized with agricultural settlers to make the proposition beside the road worth a built from Yuma direct to San Diego, in order to open up the country and make business on the desert, which is now a lost cause for many people.

Mr. Boswell was reluctant to allow the use of his name in connection with the information he gave, but finally consented. The reason he gave was that possibly it might hurt the chances of his relative in securing the position he sought.

SAN JOSE'S WILL CONTEST.

Some of the Peculiarities of George H. Parker, Deceased.

He Did Not Speak to His Daughter-in-Law for More Than Twenty Years.

SAN JOSE, CAL., June 11.—The trial of the Parker will case progressed very slowly to-day. The reading of the deposition of Jane Pomeroy, which was begun on Wednesday afternoon, was not nearly concluded, on account of the time consumed in arguments and numerous objections.

Some very strong testimony was brought out in the deposition as to George H. Parker's vain attempts to learn the truth as to the career of his son's wife before her marriage. He finally came to the conclusion that she was untruthful, and after that time for twenty years to the day of his death, he kept to his determination not to have anything to do with her.

For the first time in the course of the trial the contestant did not appear in court yesterday.

The reading of the deposition of Jane Pomeroy was interrupted for a short time to take the testimony of D. G. Brewer. The witness said he had known George H. Parker since 1858. During much of this time the relations between the parties had been very intimate. They had frequent talks over business affairs. The witness expressed the opinion that in 1892 he had seen the testator as a man of sound mind and a good business man.

As regards his wife's relatives, the Pomeroy's, Witness Brewer never heard G. H. Parker say anything against them. He had often said that Marshal Pomeroy was an honest man and that he had confidence in him. This testimony was in contradiction to testimony given in behalf of the contestant to the effect that the testator had said that the Pomeroy's were hogs and that he did not want to have anything to do with them.

"Mr. Parker's statement that he had confidence in Marshal Pomeroy made an impression upon me," said the witness, "because I had the same opinion as he had in regard to Mr. Pomeroy being a good square man."

In the deposition of Jane Pomeroy read to-day, the deponent testified: "I have heard George H. Parker say that he would never leave Edward anything except in trust, so as to prevent his wife from getting anything. He did not want her to get a dollar of his money. I never tried to influence my brother against his son, Edward, as far as the provisions of the will were concerned. We always treated Edward kindly and as a son. He always came and went to and from our house the same as a son."

"Mr. Parker never showed me his will or referred to it in the remotest way in speaking to me. I never knew he made a codicil to his will at Hartford. I did not know I was interested in the will till after his death, and I was surprised that I was a legatee, as I had never expected to be such. I have often written to Edward's father and asked the latter to help his son. I never wrote to his father about Edward's faults, but rather tried to hide them from him. The father would come to Hartford and find out those things for himself."

The court adjourned till next Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock.
