TEACHERS WON'T CAUCUS

No Political or Sinister Purpose in the Poposed Council.

Director Murdock Explains That It Will Bring Schools in Touch With the Executive.

The measure formulated by School Dictor C. A. Murdock, which is now before the Board of Education for consideration, is one for bringing about better educational results in the department, and is not for political or sinister motives, as might be construed by those who have not given the matter sufficient thought.

The plan laid down by the originator of the idea is that for every ten teachers one delegate shall be elected to the council. In schools where there are less than ten classes that school will affiliate with one having more than ten or less, as the case may be, making the representation one to ten, and giving the entire department a body of seventy-five delegates. Of these an advisory board of five shall be formed. The qualification of delegates is that he or she must be a class teacher, but for the advisory board there are other lines drawn which must be observed. These are that one delegate must represent the High School, one the grammar grade and one the primary. The other two can be selected from the body irrespective of which grade they may come from.

The duties of the advisory board shall be to hear from the delegates in council such ideas as may tend to advance the pupils in their studies, as also such other matters as give the directors assistance in the

As it is now each school or, for that matter, each individual teacher, in order to bring anything to the notice of the board, must go in person to each director and explain the object and necessity of what is required. This is a loss of time, both to teacher and directors.

If the council and advisory board ful-fil the objects for which Mr. Murdock in-tends it this will all be obviated, because the teacher can represent to the delegate from that school the wants which to her are necessary, and the delegate in turn will bring the subject before the council, and from the latter it will go to the advi-sory board; and, if found to have merit, will then be laid before the entire board and receive from that body due considera-

directors, as can be seen by the provisions

The council shall adopt its own by-laws and rules conferring such powers on its advisory board as it sees fit and determining the freboard as it sees fit and determining quency of meetings.

It shall be the object of the council to promote in every way the welfare of the public schools and to stimulate and strengthen the efficiency of teaching. Through its advisory board it shall make such recommendations to the Board of Education as it deems desirable, making suggestions as to changes in the making suggestions as to changes in the suggestions as to change in the suggestions are suggestions as to change in the suggestion in the suggestion in the suggestion is a suggestion in the suggestion in the suggestion is a suggestion in the suggestion in the suggestion is a suggestion in the suggestion in the suggestion is a suggestion in the suggestion in the suggestion in the suggestion is a suggestion in the sug
