Hegerty Talks.

Mrs. Nettie Craven is apparently not the least disturbed over the order issued by Judge Slack on Saturday requiring her to bring into court at 7:30 o'clock to-night all papers and writings in her possession executed in part or whole by the late James G. Fair.

Accompanied by her daughter Margaret, Mrs. Craven spent the best portion of yesterday driving about the City, to the Park and other places of interest.

It is not by any means certain that the lady of penciled wills and deeds will respond to the summons of Judge Slack. She claims to have no official knowledge that her presence is desired in court, though if her attorneys think best to acknowledge the order as published in THE CALL, she will comply.

claimants to see just what she has. It will put her on record. She will either have to produce all the documents she has claimed to have, comprising deeds to the most valuable portions of the Fair property, including the Lick House, or admit that she has no further claims of any kind against the estate.

"Should she refuse to appear or produce the documents described she will be in contempt of court and liable to arrest and punishment.

"In my judgment the deeds will not be produced. I will be very much surprised if Mrs. Craven produces them in any court or before any Judge. The manner in which they were recorded was a plan to place on record a semblance of deeds, and then to get rid of them and so put a cloud on the property and open the way for a compromise with the Fair children.

"Those deeds should properly have been filed with Judge Slack, the same as we were aware of its existence. Judge Slack Monday night it is proposed to take the deposition of Mrs. Craven in reference to all matters pertaining to her connection with Fair and the Fair estate. The subpoena was legally served and binds Mrs. Craven to appear.

There was a rumor current yesterday that John G. Barker, by request of Mrs. Craven, took the Craven deed before Notary Public J. J. Cooney.

It was further hinted that Senator Fair was not present at the time the deed was acknowledged, only Barker being present.

Mr. Cooney said last night to a CALL reporter: "I cannot remember whether Mr. Barker was present at the time I attested the deed or not. It is so long ago that the circumstances of the matter have passed from my memory."

"Yes, I remember that I attested the deed," said he in reply to a question.

"As to that I cannot say. I know that he was occupying an office to the rear of mine at the time."

"Was Senator Fair present when you attested the document?"

"I cannot answer that question, but the presumption is strong that Senator Fair was present at the fact that I acknowledged the deed."

The entire matter, Mr. Cooney says, has passed from his mind, except the fact that he attested the deed and the surety in his mind; that he has a presumption in his mind that Senator Fair was present at the time; beyond this he declines to talk about the matter.

John T. Barker was seen at his residence, the Colonial, last night and expressed extreme surprise to hear that he was connected with the matter at all. "The first that I heard of the deed," said he, "was when I read it in the morning papers. I did occupy an office near Mr. Cooney at the time when that deed is said to have been attested, but I had no connection whatever with it. I, in fact, never had any dealings with Mrs. Craven. I know absolutely nothing about it. Had I been present at the time the deed was acknowledged I would surely remember it."

WILLIAMS CAUTIOUS.

Mrs. Craven's Attorney Confident of His Client's Title to the Deeded Property.

OAKLAND, Cal., June 21.—Attorney George R. Williams was seen at his residence in Oakland last night regarding the order of Judge Slack's, and said he would obey it or any other made by the court, but when his Honor came to getting anything he was likely to find it extremely dry.

"The Fair heirs have known of the existence of this pencil deed," said he, "for some time past, but have refused to believe that it amounted to anything, but now they appear to give it considerable credit from the fuss they are making over it."

"The property is legally Mrs. Craven's and she will claim it and enforce her claim by securing possession of every bit of it. I have no idea of the amount of revenue the property brings in monthly, but she is entitled to every bit of it from the date of the deed. Why has she not collected it? I don't know anything about that; you will have to see her for her reasons."

"Will she appear in court Monday?"

"I am sure I don't know. I do not know whether she has been served with a subpoena or not. If she is ordered to no doubt she will."

"Do you know Mr. Williams, of the existence of, or have you seen the contract of marriage that Mrs. Craven has virtually admitted existed between her and Fair?"

"Has she admitted such a contract?"

"That is my understanding of the situation."

"I couldn't tell you anything about that."

"Will you produce the pencil deeds in court Monday?"

"Why, who has those pencil deeds? I have never said I had them."

"But you have them, have you not?"

"I can't tell you anything about the deeds."

After some further talk Mr. Williams said the papers in the case had all been copyrighted so as to prevent them from being overhauled by those who only had curiosity as a reason for seeing them and to keep the papers from reproducing them.

BOHEMIA WAS VISITED.

Five Hundred Ladies and Gentlemen Enjoy an Ideal Sunday Trip.

Under the Personal Direction of J. E. Locke They Invade the Redwoods Near Guerneville.

The special train to Bohemia Grove yesterday, chartered by J. E. Locke, took one of the finest excursion parties ever organized in this City. There were about five hundred ladies and gentlemen in the party, composed mostly of gentlemen and their wives, while conspicuous among the number were a number of small private parties of ladies, who were accompanied by gentlemen escorts. Everything ran as smoothly as a private home party, reflecting great credit both upon the manager of the excursion as well as on the officials of the San Francisco and North Pacific Coast Railway, over which company's line the excursion was run.

At Tiburon the excursionists found a train of standard coaches, all lettered and numbered in the same manner as seats are designated at the theaters, headed by two of the company's best engines. Each coach was in charge of a gentleman who inspected the tickets and saw that the seats were occupied in the same manner as the Russian River, below Guerneville, where the Bohemian Club annually holds its high jinks and where the great redwoods rear their majestic spires skyward and the ferns grow in such profusion that the very eye of one of the visitors secured great bunches of them to bring home as reminders of one of the most pleasant outings which it was their pleasure to experience. It was a model train, in every respect, and in a practical manner what the railroad company could do when the public demand required.

At Bohemia the company took possession of favorable situations for lunch and basket provisions were dispatched in a manner that indicated appetites had been whetted by the delightful ride, the fresh air and the charming surroundings.

After a stay of nearly five hours in the grove the train started on its homeward journey, reaching this City about 7:30 in the evening. Mr. Locke received many congratulations on his success in getting together such a select party, composed as it largely was of physicians, lawyers and business men and their families. In fact people marveled that it was possible to get together such a large party for a Sunday outing that was free from disturbing elements, and there was an urgent inquiry as to when another such event would be offered. The reserved-seat accommodations came in for a large share of praise and what Mr. Locke calls his "modern excursion" was voted a pronounced success.

James Locke announced that he would give a number of similar events in the near future, offering similar attractions, which he would not only personally conduct, but for which tickets could only be obtained upon personal application at his office in this City, no tickets being sold at the offices of the railroad company.

THE "CALL" SPEAKS FOR AND TO ALL.

How It Distanced All Competitors Last Week.

IT LED EVERYWHERE.

Covered the Views of Both Conventions Like a Tent.

AND DISTRIBUTED IT, TOO.

Special Trains Conveyed the Paper to Breakfast Tables in Distant Cities.

THE CALL speaks for all. Is there any body left who questions it? THE CALL has earned the right to remodel this that has long been a household saying throughout California. It may properly be made to read, "THE CALL speaks for all and to all."

When big things happen then the newspaper is put to the test. The week that closed yesterday witnessed the birth and death of the St. Louis convention—one of the most important happenings in the recent history of the country. Concurrent with it the Democratic State Convention was holding its sessions and declaring the principles for which the opposing party is to make its fight in November. At the same time the city of Santa Cruz was celebrating its great annual carnival.

Either one of these events occurring separately would have employed the full resources of the ordinary newspaper.

With a corps of trained newspaper men at Santa Cruz and at Sacramento, an amplification of its mechanical equipments to meet the demand on type and presses, with the distributing forces more than doubled, the engagement of special trains north and south, THE CALL not only covered the City long, but met the unexampled demand throughout the State which the news created.

Nor while these greater things—the making of the history of the time—was being so fully recorded, the minor happenings of the day less fully reported than at any other time. The local department went about its business as serenely as though St. Louis and Sacramento had no place on the map. All the news of these great days was covered like a tent.

Not only that, but on Friday, the day following the climax at St. Louis and the finish at Sacramento, THE CALL by special train, leaving the City long ahead of either of its competitors, and traveling at the terminus, carried to breakfast tables as far as Sacramento and Santa Cruz being so fully recorded, the minor happenings of the day less fully reported than at any other time. The local department went about its business as serenely as though St. Louis and Sacramento had no place on the map. All the news of these great days was covered like a tent.

The service of THE CALL from St. Louis has been the most complete and readable and comprehensive that has been furnished any paper in the country. There has been no syndicate matter among it.

John Paul Cosgrave, one of the best posted and most graceful writers in the West, was on the ground early, and with C. C. Carleton, THE CALL'S Washington correspondent, has told the general story with touches of local coloring that gave it an interest and these special news has covered itself with glory at St. Louis.

It has told all there was to tell, told it well and told it quickly—three very important features of newspaper service.

The Western Union Telegraph wires enabled THE CALL to place on its big bulletin canvas on Market street the running events of the convention within three minutes of the time they happened in the convention hall.

With the advantage of two hours that San Francisco has over St. Louis, the big presses in the basement of THE CALL building began to revolve before midnight every night this week with the complete story of the happenings of the day as well in the big convention as in the smaller convention at Sacramento, together with the brief record of the day round the world. Within two hours afterward carloads of papers were on the road to special trains, carrying the news at the speed of a rate that in one instance at least broke all records of speed on Western roads.

The twelve miles this side of Santa Clara were made in nine and a half minutes. During every day of the convention at Sacramento and every day of the carnival at Santa Cruz, THE CALL was carried to those cities hours ahead of every competitor and arrived in time for the earliest breakfast table. THE CALL got the news and placed before the people quickly, and it has triumphed under the greatest test that might be placed upon it as a newspaper.

But it has done more than this, too. It not only got the news, but it illustrated it. A corps of artists pictured both conventions. At St. Louis Joseph Kahler, the chief of the art department, told the story of the passing bit of history in black and white. The picture of McKinley that depicted the full glory of Friday's special edition was drawn by Kahler from life at the home of the nominee at Canton.

Mr. McKinley in giving a special sitting to the artist expressed his surprise
