A HEAVY STORM ENCOUNTERED
 It Confined Purser Bendall to His Room for Nearly Twelve Hours.

The Oceanic Steamship Company's Monowai redeemed herself yesterday. Since she has been on the run between Sydney, N. S. W., and San Francisco she fore, be one of the largest vessels coming to this port.

 "The Union Steamship Company is branching out," said Chief Engineer McKaig yesterday. "It has bought a cargo boat and has a new one on the stocks. A twenty-knot boat is being built to run between Ouehema and Wellington, to carry our mails, and another fast boat is being constructed to run between Auckland and Sydney. Then there is the sightseeing boat for the San Francisco trade, so you see, the concern is holding its own. The Monowai is a splendid ship, but, unfortunately (with a sigh), we can't make time with her."
 Chief McKaig has been in the employ of the company for a great many years. When in latitude 11 51 south, longitude 170 50 west, the Monowai spoke the British ship Moralta. The latter left here for Melbourne on June 7 with a load of lumber, doors, iron, steel, nails, whale oil and general merchandise. She signaled her number and then hoisted the flags C. Q. V. S. On reference to the register these letters read: "Ship (or vessel indicated) is very cranky." The Moralta was loaded here by J. J. Moore & Co., and was considered safe and sound when she left port. The chief officer of the Monowai thinks there was a mistake made in the signalling and that the first flag should have been a red instead of a white one.
 Frank Burton, "the hustler" who is making his way round the world on what he can earn, is having a hard time of it in Sydney. The newspaper boys here got him a passage to Australia, but there was no glad hand for him in the colonies. He attempted to get away to China on the steamer Tai Yuan, but was put ashore and had to await another chance. Unless fortune favors him he has no chance of getting back to Chicago on schedule time.

About twelve other newsboys waited upon Captain Kelly, who represents the Market Street Cable Railway Company, and promised if Lefkovich was not punished they would not attempt to sell any more transfer tickets. They accompanied Kelly into court and repeated the promise to the Judge. Lefkovich pleaded guilty, and the Judge released him for thirty days on his own recognizance.
