MEMBERS OF THE CREW SAY SHE WILL BE A TOTAL LOSS.
Firemen and Coal-Passers Driven From Their Posts by the Water.
Arrival of the Corwin With Some of the Crew of the Wrecked Whaler Hidalgo.

The fate of the stranded steamer Umatilla seems to be in doubt. She is beached and fast on the beach, but the officers and crew seem to differ as to the practicability of getting her off. Captain C. Miner Goodall and Captain Bennett say the steamer can be floated, but the thirty-three men who came down on the Walls Walla say she cannot. Every one of them is from the engineer's department and they say that five minutes after the Umatilla went over the rock they had to rush out of the fire hole or be drowned like rats. Chief Engineer Lacy, who was at his post and as cool and collected as though in his own room, saved the steam remaining in the boilers until the vessel was run ashore.

The men say the rush of water was something terrible. It seemed to flood the engine-room in a few moments, and before the men knew what was the matter they were up to their waists in water and the fires under the boilers were out. Then the rush for the upper deck began, but the chief barred the way. The steamer did not strike, but the men allowed the men to pass and went below to view the situation. He came to the conclusion that it was neck or nothing. With a sinking ship and engine-room full of water, the men say the Captain Hunter and Chief Engineer Lacy were the two coolest men aboard the ship. Had they not kept their heads the Umatilla would have gone down in deep water.

"The Umatilla did not strike," said Mike Powers yesterday. "She went over a submerged rock and it only stopped her way for a moment. Then the engines forced her along and the plates that let in the water like a millrace were torn out. The water almost flat bottomed and as she lies now the holes cannot be reached. Heavy swells from the ocean are now due and should they set in the Umatilla will go to pieces inside of a week. When we of the same opinion and says the steamer will be running again inside of two months.

On the 11th inst. the steamer Mexico, that has been recently overhauled and made into one of the best vessels in the fleet, will go out in place of the Umatilla. Captain Jensen will go out on her as master. He has been for years on the southern route, and with Hall and Alexander shares the honors of being one of the most popular and successful captains that have been on the run. As a careful navigator he cannot be beat. Captain Jensen's place on the Eureka will be taken by Captain onway of the Boston and the latter will be succeeded by Captain Andrew Hall, brother of the popular master of the Corwin.

Harvey Jacobs of Santa Barbara and George Neidner of Monterey, two of the best sailing men in the fleet, are on the coast, are going out on a strange cruise. They got in here on the Hermann, and have invested $1500 in the venture. They were paid off at the rate of $10 a skin, and as soon as the steamer is ready to start went to Kneass, the boat-builder, and had two other-hunting boats built to their order. They are non-sinkable and fitted for heavy weather.

The Point Arena wharf has purchased supplies for three months and will pack along a tent as well as two boat-pullers. From here they will go to Monterey overland and from that point will work the entire coast, and the boats will be ready to meet with success and fill the boats with skins a run for a shipping port will be made. If not the run will be continued right down to South America. The boats will be thoroughly equipped and ready to start at any time. The wharf will be beached and the men will camp ashore. They fully expect to take over 100 skins inside of three months, and that means at the least $3000.

The Point Arena arrived yesterday with a full cargo of lumber instead of general merchandise. It will be loaded into the Mary C. Russ and will go to Central America for use on one of the railroads now being constructed there. The American of the sea-scoopers had a narrow escape yesterday morning. Captain Alexander of the steamer Santa Rosa was feeling his way in in the fog when he suddenly discovered the snow right in the fairway. He at once ordered the engine reversed and headed the Santa Rosa inshore. He got into the tight between Meigs wharf and Black Point, and had enough steam-ways on to stop the vessel before bottom was struck. It was a clever piece of seamanship.

SONNTAG STEPS DOWN AND OUT
And Keeps Himself Within the Republican Fold.

Henry P. Sonntag has earned for himself the gratitude and respect of all Republicans by withdrawing from the contest for mayorality on the ticket of the Kelly-Mahoney faction. That he has retired in favor of the regular nominee, C. L. Taylor, emphasizes the fact that although Republicans may quarrel among themselves for a while, they will always be found in solid phalanx on the eve of election.

Mr. Sonntag's action breathes the spirit of true patriotism and self-sacrifice in the interest of harmony.
Mr. Sonntag's letter was made public yesterday. It is as follows:
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., October 1, 1896.
Alfred J. Morgenstern, Esq., Secretary of the Regular Republican Municipal Convention—Dear Sir: In considering the nomination for the office of Mayor of San Francisco, tendered to me by the Republican Convention of which you are secretary, an honor which I highly appreciate, I have concluded, in view of the existing circumstances and against the protest of my friends, to decline the same. Unhappily there is a division in the ranks of the Republicans at the present time in this city relative to local nominations.

Every effort, consistent with self-respect, has been made by the convention of which you are the secretary and of which I am the chairman to harmonize the conflicting elements and to unite the party in this city, so that one ticket might be placed in the field in the interest of good government. That we have failed is of great strength, and is entitled to receive the support of the citizens of San Francisco. In the event, however, of the adoption of the new charter at the coming election and its approval by the Legislature, that instrument would probably go into effect this coming year.

The Mayor under that charter would be vested with great power and responsibilities, and would have the appointment of many public officials. The election of a Mayor in that event would be of great importance to the Republican party of this city, and so, after full consideration, I feel that I should not do anything that might possibly jeopardize the election of a Republican to that office, which two Republican candidates in the field might do, and I leave, therefore, decided to step aside in the interest of party unity, and to subscribe, as I believe, the best interest of this city by assuring the election of a Republican to that office.

Colonel C. L. Taylor, an old and respected citizen, who has filled many positions of public trust with honor and fidelity, has been nominated by one or more conventions of citizens for that office. He is a Republican, and, in my opinion, would make a conscientious and able Mayor. I feel satisfied that if the gentlemen of the convention who so recently showed their good will toward and confidence in me would nominate Colonel Taylor in my place his election would be sure to follow. I hope my wish in this respect will be gratified. I desire through you to thank the gentlemen of the convention for the honor of the nomination, and, wishing success to the Republican ticket, I am, very truly yours,
HENRY P. SONNTAG.

WRIT OF MANDATE.
Mr. Farnsworth Asks the Supreme Court for an Order.
Late yesterday afternoon D. L. Farnsworth, candidate for Superintendent of Streets on the Kelly-Mahoney ticket, filed with the clerk of the Supreme Court a petition for a writ of mandate to compel Registrar Hinton to show cause why he should continue to refuse to place the Kelly-Mahoney nominations on the official ballot. A. Ruef is his attorney.

The contention of the petitioner is that the National Committee is the supreme and only authority in ward politics. The date for hearing the matter will be set today.
James B. Brown, candidate of the same party for Senator from the Seventeenth Senatorial District, filed a petition for a writ of mandate to have himself placed on the official ballot.

DEAR SIR: I noticed in the DAILY CALL under date of September 29, 1896, that I had been nominated by the Citizens' Independent Committee for Assemblyman from the Thirty-fourth Assembly District.
In the absence of any other notification, and assuming that the publication referred to states the fact in the case, I desire at this time to advise the Citizens' Independent Committee, through you, of my withdrawal from the contest, for the reason that the nomination was not sought or desired on my part, and being a Republican, my interest in the success of that party prompts me in concluding that so far as lies in my power my duty is to remove every obstacle that tends in any way to interfere with it. Very respectfully,
S. L. LENT.

A Missouri Democrat, He Will Vote for McKinley This Time.
Ned Foster, sport and theatrical man, formerly proprietor of the Bella Union in this city, has come out for McKinley and protection.
Mr. Foster is a native of Missouri and had been a stalwart Democrat since birth. Last Thursday he was in the Buckley headquarters, and when asked to support McDonald, one of the Democratic nominees for Street Superintendent, replied that the Umatilla did not strike, but for the Republican ticket.
"If free silver win in this election the country will go to hell," he said. "If we had another Grover Cleveland in the White House we'd go there anyhow. Another reason I'm for McKinley is because he is the brainiest man. Bryan pumps too much wind to suit me."

While Mr. Foster was explaining his change of heart very late last Thursday evening in a saloon on the corner of Mason and Eddy streets an enthusiastic Democrat whipped out a revolver, and with the remark that he liked a man who spoke his mind sent a bullet whizzing through the pump of the Umatilla. Mr. Foster informed him that some joker had exploded a Chinese bomb.

CANDIDATES INDORSED.
United Labor Party Convention Approves Republican Nominees.
Stirring Addresses Were Made in Favor of Good Municipal Government for the City.

A convention of the United Labor party was held last evening at Smiley's Hall, 111 Valencia street, there being delegates present from each Assembly district, the representation being upon the basis of four delegates from each district. W. P. Grace was elected chairman.
Mr. Grace made an address in which he defined the purpose of the convention to be to indorse only the best men for office on the City and County ticket.
S. M. Williams, a well-known Republican, was unanimously elected secretary.
The convention indorsed C. L. Taylor for Mayor, and also Cord Wetjen, George W. Elder, Justice Groesinger, Carroll Cook, James A. Campbell and T. C. Spelling as candidates for the positions for which they were nominated by the regular Republican convention which was held in the Auditorium.
Leon Jones, who was nominated at the Auditorium convention for the Assembly, was indorsed as the candidate for Assemblyman from the Thirty-ninth District.
Messrs. Wetjen and Elder addressed the convention, setting forth that San Francisco needed a good government, and pledging themselves to do all that they could to secure it, if elected.

FEAST OF THE ROSARY
The Great Festival to Be Celebrated To-Morrow at St. Dominic's.
To-morrow at St. Dominic's Church, in this city, will be an occasion of unusual interest to Catholic people. It is the annual commemoration of the wonderful victory of Lepanto gained by Christian arms over the Turks in 1571, which is credited to the prayers of the rosary. It is likewise a day of thanksgiving for the many favors obtained for society and individuals through this great Dominican devotion.
The order of solemn services commences at 10 A. M. with the blessing and distribution of roses, followed by solemn high mass, at which there will be a sermon delivered by Rev. Father O'Connor, O. P. After the mass will take place the rosary procession around the church block. This day is remarkable principally for the many favors obtained for society and individuals through this great Dominican devotion.

In China the "Rules for War" which even now are used in governing the troops in the field are some 3000 years old. One of these rules curiously enjoins the Celestial soldier to "spread in the camp of the enemy volupituous musical airs, so as to soften his heart."

SHOT DOWN BY AN ANGRY BOATMAN
Philip Reilly Is Mortally Wounded by William H. Brittan.

Philip Reilly, a young man employed as a carpenter by the State Harbor Commissioners, was shot and fatally wounded by William H. Brittan, a boatman, in George Callaghan's saloon, Bay and Powell streets, at 7 o'clock last evening.
The shooting was the result of an old feud. Brittan and his victim met in the saloon, and from the first it was evident that the former was looking for trouble.
Reilly, accompanied by a friend, was standing by the bar when Brittan walked over and without warning struck at Reilly. The blow was without effect, however, and the two men clinched and fell on the floor. Brittan regained his feet and started for the door, apparently for the purpose of making his escape, out on reaching the street he turned and fired a shot point blank at Reilly, who staggered and fell to the floor mortally wounded.
Brittan then ran up Bay street, but encountered Harbor Policeman Ferguson, whom he surrendered himself. Ferguson turned the prisoner over to Officer Amos Williams, who took him to the Central station to await the result of Reilly's injury.
Brittan, with a spattering of Reilly's blood on his left cheek, was surly and disagreeable.
"I don't want to talk about this thing to any one just now. It will be time enough by and by," were the only words he would utter.
Reilly was removed to the Receiving Hospital. Dr. Rice attended the wounded man. The bullet had entered the upper part above the heart under the collarbone, the left lung being pierced.
Shortly after reaching the hospital, and while he was being worked upon, Reilly became unconscious and his ante-mortem systems were not obtained.
James Cunningham, a friend of Reilly's, was present when the shooting occurred. "Phil Reilly," said Mr. Cunningham, "was returning from his work on the Harbor Commissioners' repairing gang. I met him at Francisco and Powell streets, within one block of his home, and we stopped in at George Callaghan's place to get a drink.
"While we were there in conversation, in came William H. Brittan. He walked over to where we were, and Reilly turned round as if to greet him. He put out his hand with a word of welcome, and Brittan, instead of accepting the friendly greeting, made a pass with his right fist, trying to knock Reilly down.
"Reilly grabbed him, saying: 'Now, Brittan, you know you can't hit me.' The two scuffled a few minutes and both fell to the floor. Reilly on top.
"Brittan begged to be let up, and shouted: 'Don't hit a fellow when he's down!'
"Of course I won't hit you, Brittan," said Reilly, "get up, old man, but don't try to hit me again."
"With that he rose from off Brittan and we both backed out to the sidewalk. Brittan followed us closely and in the most cold-blooded manner possible he pulled his pistol and fired.
"Reilly staggered and almost fell on me, saying: 'I'm shot, Jimmy, I'm gone.'
"I helped him to the nearest patrol box while Brittan started off on a run toward Bay street.
"It was a cold-blooded murder of an inoffensive, good-natured man.
"Brittan, to my knowledge, has been looking to get Reilly for at least a year. I was with Reilly at the time I allude to. Brittan was lying in wait for him in a doorway, and as we came along the street he jumped out at Reilly, trying to plunge a knife into him.
"Reilly managed to avoid the blow and as Brittan was being disarmed of his knife he drew a pistol and tried to fire that. It was also taken from him."

INDIA NEEDS MORE WHEAT
Threatened Famine Owing to the Light Crop of Last Year.
McNear and Eppinger & Company Have Chartered "Tramp" Vessels.
PRICES IN WHEAT GOING UP.

As Russia's Last Crop was Quite Light, This Country Will Reap a Vast Benefit.

Shipping wheat to India sounds very much like carting gold to California, but what is what is now being shipped to India from San Francisco.
George W. McNear and Eppinger & Co. have lately chartered two "tramp" steamers, which will be loaded shortly and sent either to England or India, presumably to the latter place. The steamers are the Gieness and the Hermann Wedel Jarlsberg. The first has been chartered by McNear and the latter by Eppinger & Co.
The cause of this shipment of wheat to India is plain. The last crop was very scarce and the supply is now running out and the last wheat crop of Russia is very light. This explains the pinch the United States seems in a fair way to have as regards the shipping of wheat both to England and California.

The Gieness will be loaded first. As soon as both vessels are loaded there is no doubt but that they will sail directly for California.
Both the firms mentioned say that the ships will either go to England or California, but they profess no certain knowledge on the subject. If they go to England, George W. McNear Jr. states they will stop at St. Vincent, a port in the Cape Verde Islands, where all vessels bound for Europe receive instructions where to unload their cargoes.
The two vessels, the Gieness and the Jarlsberg, are of the kind known as "tramps," which have been cutting the rates in regular vessels of traffic pretty severely.
A junior member of the firm of Eppinger & Co. admitted yesterday that in all probability the ships will both be loaded for California. Thus it seems that there is a fortune for shippers that get the bulk of the Indian orders.

Prices in wheat are now high. They were lower yesterday, however, than the day before. This is caused on account of the demand in England and on the Continent in general. Some dealers admit that there is a good prospect of a famine in India. This means that United States

The Corporation Yard Will Soon Be in New Quarters.
The Judiciary Committee of the Board of Supervisors decided yesterday that the increasing needs of the Fire Department for a larger corporation yard made it necessary that the same should be furnished at once.
The application of the department for the use of a lot on Harrison and Eleventh streets was considered in this connection and it was finally decided to deny several applications for the lease of the lot and turn it over to the Fire Department for immediate use. The removing of the corporation yard will begin at an early date.
