A Sea Captain Wants to Take a Ship to the Seat of War.

PERMISSION ASKED FOR A MASS-MEETING.

Interviews With Prominent Men Who Think That a Mass-Meeting Should Be Called.

Those who have interested themselves in the cause of Cuba libre are not complaining of a lack of appreciation of their efforts. In fact they have had so much encouragement that they have been compelled to change their headquarters and hire a room where all can hear of the progress of the movement.

President Jones reported last night that the large number of people who had called at the secretary's place of business to offer aid had seriously impeded his business suppressed. I am with Cuba and for the Cuban patriots with all my heart, as I am always with the under dog when he is right in any fight."

Mr. Barry was very severe in his criticism of Cleveland for his refusal to sanction the action of Congress in recognizing the belligerency of the Cubans long ago.

General J. H. Dickinson was very pronounced in his opinion that Congress should pass the Cameron resolution by such a majority as to leave Cleveland no alternative to sign it.

Joseph Leggett favored the movement. "Any people struggling for liberty should have the warm, sympathetic support of the people of the United States—of all other people," he said.

"I do believe war would result from the passage of the Cameron resolution even now, but if we had taken the step which we should have taken in the first place there would have been no fear of it.

G. H. Cabanis said: "My sympathies are strongly with Cuba, of course, but as a matter of international law I believe Olney was right about it. I do not think the time has come to recognize the Cubans as having belligerent rights or for us to declare their independence. In order for a people to gain the recognition of other people in these matters they must have a capital and establish some form of government. The Cubans have not done so.

Rabbi Voorsanger declares himself strongly in favor of American intervention in behalf of Cuba as against Spain in the terrible war of extermination going on in the island.

H. E. Collier, Spruells building, W. H. Chapman and S. C. Milligan, offices in the Mills building, all prominent attorneys, are in favor of recognizing the belligerent rights of the Cubans.

Mayor-elect Phelan said: "I have followed with interest the action of the President and of Congress in the matter of the Cuban question, but have formed no positive opinion as to the wisdom of the President's dictatorial action of the apparent eagerness of the Senate to put this country on record in declaring for the independence of Cuba.

The course for the races was around the ships Travancore and Pegasus, the schooner Hera and the ship Clonard. The duck races and other such events were all in the vicinity of the flagship.

The water front was lonely yesterday afternoon. Not a British ship captain could be found around "Lime Juice" corner and the offices of the stevedores, shipchandlers, grocers and butchers were deserted.

The occasion was the annual regatta given by the British ships in port. The flagship was the Glencassin, and she presented a pretty appearance as she lay, decked with flags, in Richardson's Bay.

There Were Several Accidents on the Bay During Friday Night's Fog, but None Were Serious.

The fog that came up in the bay in such a hurry last Friday night was the cause of several accidents. The Pacific Coast Steamship Company's Orizaba, while on her way from Port Costa, where she had been delivering a quantity of ore at Selby's smelting works, ran into Fisherman's wharf.
