Indoor Games Witnessed by Over Three Thousand People.

Prominent Men Fumble a Big Ball on a Very Small Diamond.

Athletic Association Wins at Football From the High School Eleven.

STOCKTON, CAL., Jan. 1.—Over 3000 people gathered in the Mc Agricultural Pavilion to witness the game of baseball and football that were played to-night for the benefit of the Old People's and Children's Home.

The football game was hotly contested. It was played by a team from the Stockton Athletic Association and the regular eleven from the Stockton High School.

The galleries were packed with people, and the sides of the pavilion were crowded with spectators.

The indoor baseball game was what the people came principally to see, and the crowd was kept in a state of laughter all evening.

After playing a while on the tankard, the men wore the pants between the bases so slippery that many amusing tumbles resulted from attempts at base stealing.

MILAN, THUR., Jan. 1.—Six negroes are under arrest for the brutal murder of Captain H. P. Miller, proprietor of the Southern Pacific Hotel, whose body was found yesterday in an unused barroom with his head beaten to a pulp.

At the end of the seventh inning Morley's team was ahead, but Kerrick's men glided on their armor and beat them out.

WALTER FOSTER MEETS DEFEAT

Beaten in the Professional Events on Pasadena's Track.

McFarland Hissed by Spectators and Disqualified in the Mile.

His Team Work With Stevens of Iowa Gave the Pair Two Victories.

PASADENA, CAL., Jan. 1.—The bicycle meet here to-day was the greatest gathering of racing men in Southern California since the close of the National circuit in December, 1895.

Foster, the coast champion, from San Francisco, was the only professional racer who succeeded in finishing third. Stevens, as well as McFarland, were penalized in their heats for beating the pistol, but in the mile final McFarland got a start of three yards and was not called back.

McFarland will appeal to the L. A. W. racing board, and will be supported by the other contestants.

THE FUNERAL OF ROSS JACKSON

Judge Hunt to Deliver the Oration at the Press Club.

A Number of Well-Known Newspaper Men to Make Informal Remarks.

Dan O'Connell Will Probably Read a Poem—A Large Attendance Expected at the Rooms.

The arrangements were about concluded yesterday afternoon for the funeral of the late J. Ross Jackson, which is to take place from the Press Club, 128 Kearny street, at 2 o'clock to-day.

The exercises will open with the hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," by the Press Club quartet, consisting of R. F. Tuton, Frank Coffin, S. E. Tucker and D. M. Ward.

Superior Judge Hunt will then deliver the formal address. It will probably be short, not lasting over ten or fifteen minutes, and will bear on the career of Mr. Jackson and his work, particularly as known throughout the City and State.

Dan O'Connell, long a friend of Mr. Jackson, has been asked to read a poem in commemoration of him. If the message which was sent to San Francisco has reached him it is believed he will comply.

Rhy Thomas will render a solo on the occasion, and the exercises will finally close at the rooms with the song by the Press Club, "Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping."

The pallbearers will consist of Superior Judge John Hunt, Superior Judge J. C. E. Hebbard, C. M. Coe, president of the Press Club; Arthur Barendt, representing the Bohemian Club; H. S. Hagan, Olympic Club; W. W. Naughton, Examiner; Wells Drury, Tax Collector; Peter Robinson, Caricaturist; Fremont Older, Bulletin; Hugh Hume, Post; T. W. Bonnet, Report, and Captain J. W. Lee.

The decorators will take charge of the rooms early in the day and will make them attractive by potted plants and flowers.

It is especially desired that as many as possible of the newspaper profession, including their wives, sisters and friends, attend the obsequies. Mr. Jackson was so well known and so highly regarded that there will probably be a large attendance.

It is desired to begin the exercises promptly at 2 o'clock. When the exercises are completed, the body will be taken to the mortuary chapel at the Old Fellows' cemetery, and there will be a large attendance.

WATER RICH IN COPPER

The Outflow From the Anaconda Mine Worth a Fortune.

One of the most interesting sights in the great mining town of Butte is the process by which copper is caught from the emerald-colored water that flows from the Anaconda and St. Lawrence mines, says the Anaconda Recorder.

It is estimated that this water, which for four or five years has been allowed to run into the Anaconda Company's $30,000 a month at a cost of about $1000 a month.

It is only within the present year that the company undertook to handle this water, and it was worked under an old German named Mueller who was the first man to save copper from the water.

He saved the last three years Thomas Ledford had a lease on the water. He paid a 25 per cent royalty to the company. It is claimed that he realized at least $100,000 a year from the water.

At the present time several acres of ground are covered with wooden vats. These are filled with all the old scrap iron that can be had. It is used for catching the iron completely within three weeks.

Whether the precipitation is effected the water is drawn off and the slimy copper is transferred to another tank, where the water is further drawn off. These latter vats hold about fifteen tons of the copper.

The product carries an average of 80 per cent pure copper. The iron remaining in it makes a fine flux and when mixed with other smelting ore it is used for the ore up to a value of about $300 a ton.—Montana Letter.

GOOD-BY TO MOLASSES Rapidly Disappearing as an Article of Commerce.

"The old-fashioned molasses is rapidly disappearing as an article of commerce," said a prominent grocer to a Washington Star reporter, "and in its place have come a number of syrups, which are more costly, and by no means as satisfactory, especially to the little-ones, who delight, as we did when we were young, in having 'lasses on their bread."

"Most of the molasses goes into the distilleries, where it is made into rum, for which, notwithstanding the efforts of temperance workers, the demand is constantly on the increase, especially in the New England States and for the export trade. The regular drinker of rum will take no other liquid in its place, he can help it. It seems to reach the spot more directly than any other drink."

The dark-brown sugar is more also disappearing, and they are never likely to return, owing to the methods of boiling and the manufacture. Granulated sugar is of the same composition, as far as saccharine qualities are concerned, as loaf, cut, cube and crushed, and differs from them only in that its crystals do not cohere. This is because it is constantly stirred during the process of crystallization. The lighter-brown sugar's taste sweeter than the white, for the reason that there is some molasses in them.

"Housewives have difficulty these days in finding coarse, dark sugar, which are always preferred for use in putting up sweet pickles, making cakes and similar uses. As they cannot get brown sugar any more, it may be well for them to remember that they can simulate brown sugar by adding a teaspoonful of molasses to each quart of a pound of the white granulated sugar. This combination does as well in all household receipts that call for brown sugar as the article itself, and, besides, it saves them a great deal of hunting for brown sugar, which, as said before, has disappeared from the market."

Washington Old-Time Card Customs. "What is a hardy an observance now of what was a time-honored custom once in the matter of Congressional calls," said an old employe of the Senate. "On the night of every session every Senator sent his personal card to every other Senator as well as to the Representatives of his own State, to the members of the Cabinet, to the Supreme Court, and the heads of the army and navy. So also Representatives sent their cards to every other Representative, and to the Senators from their own State. In this way they indicated that they were ready to receive callers. The custom, as far as general observance is concerned, died out about ten or fifteen years ago, and probably would have died out sooner had it not been for the persistent efforts of the late Major Ben Perley Peck, who, during every session, sent his card to every other Senator and Representative, who did all he could to have it kept up. After he passed away the custom died out, though probably a half dozen of the older Senators and Representatives remembered and observed it on Monday last."—Washington Star.

UNPARALLELED MARINE DISASTER

Steamer Moggie Sinks a Hundred Thousand Dollars' Postage.

Even in port it would have its links to run," says London Sketch. The steamer Moggie of Hartlepool has been peculiarly unlucky in her most recent voyage.

She was proceeding, in charge of a Finnish Government pilot, from Kemi, the most northern port in Finland, to Harparah, which is the most northern port in Sweden, when, on October 14, she struck on a sunken rock, the foremast falling overboard.

After jettisoning a portion of the cargo and with the help of the steamer the Moggie was floated into a safe position. A diver from the salvage steamer Helios temporarily repaired the unfortunate Moggie, which proceeded to Stockholm for repairs under the escort of the Helios.

During the voyage to Stockholm the weather became stormy and foggy and several times the vessel lost sight of each other. However, after three and a half days Stockholm was reached, and on October 27 the Moggie was placed on a pontoon, after the deck load had been discharged to lighten her weight.

You would have thought she was safe now. Not so. Just as she was clearing the water the pontoon suddenly fell over, throwing the ship upon the outer section of the pontoon and seriously injuring her bottom, so that she at once began to fill.

Many people on board the vessel fell overboard, and the vessel was obliged to be towed to a safe anchorage. The Moggie is now in a safe position, but the loss of the cargo is estimated at $100,000 and is only eight months old, is utterly derelict and lies sunk in fifteen fathoms of water. The incident is said to be unparalleled in shipping history. Its cause is quite unknown.

Hare Hunting. This branch of sport has a host of earnest supporters throughout the Northern States and Canada, and many fine dogs are kept for the sole purpose of driving the white-tailed hares. Some hunters use native foxhounds and crossbreds, such as are used to drive deer. Needless to say, the man who regularly hunts deer and hares will keep certain hounds for each kind of work. Hounds schooled to drive hares are a nuisance on a deer hunt, owing to their tendency to follow the hares, and when the grater is wanted. Smart hares are excellent for hares, but perhaps the best dogs for the purpose are good-sized beagles. These dogs are not so fast as the foxhounds, but they are comparatively slow. Moreover, their short underlining is not the best pattern for work in deep snow, in which the cream of the hunting is usually to be had. The very small beagle is a dear little dog, true game and interesting, but he shows to best advantage on the trail of the "coon" and "coon."

In China hares are kept busy hatching fish. The spawn is placed in egg-shells, hermetically sealed, and a heat is induced to sit on them. At the proper time the little fish are removed and put in carefully sealed ponds.

According to a German authority the lentil contains 54.78 per cent of starch and dextrin, 34.61 per cent of albumen, 13.51 per cent of water, 3.58 per cent of cellulose, 2.47 per cent of salt and 1.85 per cent of oil.
