Meigs wharf was crowded all day yesterday with Sunday visitors, who watched for the arrival of the Swanhilda. Bishop Newman delivered the anniversary address at the Young Men's Christian Association yesterday afternoon. Funeral preparations of unusual magnitude are being made for the interment of Little Pete, the murdered Chinaman. The bark Snow & Burgess arrived last evening, a sixty-day voyage from Sydney, and brought no information of the Swanhilda. Chief Jailer Andrew Sattler and his command at the old Broadway jail will appear in new uniforms next Monday. School Director Waller reiterates that there must be a cut in teachers' salaries or the schools must close before the end of the school year. Rev. Victor M. Ruthven, who says he was once a priest, lectured on "Romanism and Liberty" at the Metropolitan Temple last night. J. C. Nealon and T. F. Bonnet defeated Coast Champion Kildoran and Amateur Champion Chandler at the San Francisco handball court yesterday. The life of King Oviang, the Chinese Vice Consul has been threatened by the "see Yup" henchmen, who are accused of the murder of Little Pete. In a family quarrel between the brothers and sisters of the late John C. Hall, at 219 Mission street, one brother cut the other in the arm with a knife. One of the burglars who entered the residence of J. D. Sullivan at 24 Washington avenue on New Year's eve has been identified as Albert Hughes. Last evening at 8 o'clock James Meehan, 16 years of age, fell from the third floor of a lodging-house at 444 1/2 Third street and was instantly killed. Eva M. Carlin, a teacher in the Oakland public schools, discussed "Child Labor" before the American branch of the Socialist Labor party last evening. The assassination of Little Pete has created consternation in Chinatown, where it is expected that a murderous war is likely to break out at any moment. Seven sportsmen went to Nicasio, Marin County, Saturday afternoon and returned last evening with a bag of forty-five ducks, mostly geese. The case in which Little Pete was accused of attempting to kill the prominent sportsman has been brought to light in a forcible manner by his recent murder. The four football clubs comprising the Gaelic Association are planning to select a team to meet the Coits of Chicago, who propose coming here next summer. At a meeting of the Ocean View Improvement Club yesterday the club decided to erect a 25-cent street car fare, fearing that the transfer privilege might be lost. Many prominent Catholic people signed the roll of membership and $500 was subscribed at the meeting. The widow of Little Pete presented a pitiable sight at the morgue yesterday, when she was handed the diamond ring taken from the finger of her late husband. She was seen to fall to the floor and wept most bitterly while her body was sought to offer his candid consideration. The Young Olympics were defeated by the Young Swins by a score of 16 to 9, at the Recreation grounds at Alameda. The pitcher for the Young Swins, struck out twelve men in seven innings. The winners would like to hear from the Young Swins. Address S. Friedlander, 1808 Scott street, City.

WATCHING WITH THE DETECTIVES

A Large Crowd of Sunday Visitors on Meigs Wharf.

The Dreamer Who Saw the Swanhilda in a Vision of the Night.

Genial Mike Fitzgerald Tells Weird Tales—Arrival of the Snow and Burgess.

A man walked down on Meigs wharf yesterday afternoon and looked long and absorbingly westward over the bay. There was such a manner of confident expectancy about him that a large crowd of the half thousand visitors on the wharf drifted around him. The wrecker White said with her derrick masts towering aloft was steaming out to sea. "That's her!" he said, almost breathlessly. "There she is! I knew she'd be in, for I saw her in a dream just as plain as can be. What? Don't tell me that isn't her; see those four masts. What do you know about the Swanhilda, anyway? Probably you're acquainted with Butler. I've seen the likes of you before. That's her, I tell you, and she'll be here in half an hour." Then he went over to the police station to tell the Italian detective, McHattie, to get his gun, while the boat with derrick masts towering aloft steamed out to sea after a tow. After the dreamer had gone to chase up another vision, the crowd found another sensation. The Perry's launch lay alongside of the wharf with steam up, and another alarmist confidentially told around about that the little vessel was in readiness to carry the squad of detectives out to receive Butler. The informer verified his statement by calling the crowd's attention to the letter "P" on the bow of the launch, which he said, with marked seriousness, could only be the initial letter of police. This was corroborated not to be gained, and the grateful little craft was the center of attraction until it took a seaward off to the rendezvous. Then a schooler was seen coming through the fog around Fort Point and through the fog directly on her until a puff of wind blew away the thin white veil and revealed her familiar lines. The report that a bark was sighted from Point Lobos put an edge upon the excitement until she was made out to be the Snow and Burgess, sixty-one days out from Sydney. Even a rockbarre towed out from Black Point was made to pose as the Swanhilda until some of the whelbarrows on the deck were made out. Between the acts an orchestra on board the Perry discoursed divine melody. The musicians were the cutter's bugler, third drummer and a manipulator. The sound it made was soul-harmonizing and set all the dogs on the wharf howling. But the musicians were industrious and kept to their programme until the captain of the cutter put a stop to it. Detective McHattie and his partner, Constable Conroy, came in for much attention as the men who would convey the colonial murderer back to the Australian gallow. The delay of the Swanhilda was explained fully and her absence was a mystery no longer. As the sun went down and the evening glow faded over the harbor about half of the number of visitors went home. The remainder lingered on the wharf and

MIKE FITZGERALD

TO CELEBRATE ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Representatives of Irish Societies Hold a Convention.

Great Enthusiasm Displayed by the Large Gathering of Irishmen.

John Mulhern Elected Permanent Chairman of the Body—Delegates Are Seated.

The large meeting-room of K. K. B. Hall, at Mason and O'Farrell streets, was crowded with representative Irishmen yesterday afternoon, when the St. Patrick's Day Convention assembled to make preparations for the celebration of the coming Irish national festival. Thomas R. Bannerman called the meeting to order. He said it afforded him great pleasure to see such a full representation of Irish societies present, as it showed that the true spirit was fresh and vigorous as ever. As the minutes of the last meeting in 1896 were not available, J. P. Henry, the financial secretary, read his report, showing a balance in the Hibernia Bank amounting to $379.72. The chairman expressed his grateful appreciation of the confidence and esteem of the 1896 convention, and his thanks for the honor conferred upon him. And he felt he spoke the truth when stating that last year's celebration of St. Patrick's day was a credit to the Irish element of San Francisco. A resolution was adopted thanking the chairman and officers and the convention adjourned sine die. R. J. Reilly, secretary of the 1896 convention, took the chair temporarily and called the 1897 convention to order. Several delegates were placed in nomination for the office of permanent chairman. Chief Sattler and his Squad Will Don the Gold and Blue. Chief Jailer Andrew Sattler at the old County Jail on Broadway is determined to have the officers under him put on a smart and neat appearance by donning a uniform. This innovation the chief considers necessary in order to have the jailers distinguished from trustees and visitors. "It often occurs," said he, "that strangers who desire to visit the jail are as likely to address their conversation to one of the trustees in asking for information as they are to one of the deputy sheriffs on duty. And this is all right, for the fact that uniforms command a respect and obedience not always accorded an officer in citizen's clothes." "Then again, the officers will look better and their positions will be more easily distinguished by all about the prison. This innovation, of course, meets with the full approval of Sheriff White and with that of every man about the jail in authority." The uniform to be worn by the jailers will consist of a sack coat with brass buttons, cap with gold device in front and the word "chief," or "captain," or whatever position the wearer may fill, is wrought in gold letters inside the device. The trousers will be of gold device in front and the word "chief," or "captain," or whatever position the wearer may fill, is wrought in gold letters inside the device. BUTLER AND THE BARK ALEXANDRA

Attempted to Beguile the Chief Officer From His Vessel.

Told Tales of Fabulous Wealth to Be Found in the Gold Mines.

Arrival of the Snow and Burgess That Sailed a Day After the Swanhilda.

The arrival of Murderer Butler is still the one subject discussed on the water front. When the American bark Snow and Burgess hove in sight off the Farallons every one began figuring on the chances of her being the Swanhilda. When the vessel was made out then there was a rush to find out the number of days she was out from Sydney and to compare her with that of the Swanhilda. The result showed that the Snow and Burgess sailed a day after the British ship, but has beaten her into port. The captain of the Snow and Burgess reports nothing unusual as having happened all on board. He told the Hawaiian Isles sailed several days before the Britisher. Chief Officer Blackstock of the British bark Alexandra has a story of his own to tell about Butler. His vessel came on her way to Australia, and will load there for the voyage to Australia. The Alexandra came here from Sydney, and it was only by the merest chance that Chief Officer Blackstock came on her. While the vessel was lying at Circular Quay, Lee Weller (Butler) put in an appearance and made the acquaintance of all on board. He told the Hawaiian Isles sailed several days before the Britisher. Many Attractions to-night. Events That Are Announced by the City Theatrical Managers. The attraction at the Baldwin Theater to-night will be the reappearance of Helena Modjeska, the Countess de Botska. She will appear in the title role in the play entitled "Magda," adapted from the German drama "Helmuth." Joseph Haworth will be the leading man. "The Devil's Auction" will continue at the Columbia Theater, and there will be offered an almost entire change of novelties. The several specialists have become great favorites with the large audiences that have seen this entertainment. That ever popular farce-comedy, "All the Comforts of Home," one of Gillette's best conceptions, will be offered at the Alcazar this evening. The company at this house ought to produce the side-splitting lines of the author in very good style—it has the talent. The patrons of the Grand Opera-house will have presented to them this evening a melodrama that is new to San Francisco. It is called "The Orphan of New York," and is said to be a most exciting and sensational production. Edward J. Heron will assume the part of hero. The sweet strains of Wallace's beautiful opera "Maritana" will be heard in the Tivoli Opera-house this evening. Yes, Benynton and Katherine Krug will alternate in the titular role and Rhy's thomas is to assume the character of Don Cesar. There are to be two new attractions at the Orpheum Music Hall to-night. One is Alce de Capitaine, an aerial artist who has won much fame in Vienna and other parts of Europe. Bessie Clayton, dancer and contortionist, will also appear, together with other specialists. At the People's Palace there will be a horse show this evening. Professor Bristol will appear in the ring to show his method of training and riding and he will introduce to the audience his educated horses, ponies and mules. Plea for the Little Ones. Nursery department of the Armitage Orphanage, 831 Polk street, is in need of mitsie's clothing and crib. Charitable persons are urged to donate cast-off or outgrown articles of their more fortunate children. Hypnotic Inst., 6 O'Farrell, teach, treat.

Naked Pills are fit only for naked savages. Clothes are the marks of civilization—in pills as well as people. A good coat does not make a good pill, any more than good clothes make a good man. But as sure as you'd look on a clothesless man as a mad one, you may look on a coatless pill as a bad one. After fifty years of test no pills stand higher than QUAIL ARE PLENTIFUL Seven Sportsmen Bag Over Forty-Five Dozen at Nicasio in a Few Hours. Birds are more than usually plentiful this season in Marin County if the experience of seven well-known sportsmen is to be taken as a criterion. M. McNeil, P. McIntyre, P. F. E. Steiner, R. S. Poiatir, P. Hansen, L. Carraine and J. Banks left for Nicasio by the 1:45 P. M. train Saturday. As soon as they put their traps at McNeil's hotel they hurried off to begin the sport, and kept it up until darkness set in. Yesterday morning they were up bright and early, and when they had time to catch the afternoon train for the return journey, they had bagged over forty-five dozen birds, mostly quail, being on an average six and a half dozen for each gun.
