

on the east side of Alice street, between Tenth and Eleventh.

The marshals and aids of the various divisions were: Second division—Marshal, C. B. White, Sheriff; aid, H. L. Weitzel, Third division—Marshal, A. White, Deputy Sheriff; aid, E. S. Wilkins. Fourth division—Marshal, J. Sands; aid, L. W. Carpenter. Fifth division—Marshal, Larson Campbell; aid, George H. Vose. Sixth division—Marshal, M. K. Miller; aid, A. F. Heise. Seventh division—Marshal, A. R. Wilson; aid, J. Munson. Eighth division—Marshal, J. C. Sweet; aid, R. E. Langworthy.

The side-decamp to Grand Marshal Henry R. Dalton were announced as follows: L. Gilham, Captain Ellis, Mrs. Captain Ellis, Mr. Simon, Mr. Bartlett, W. M. Gardner, L. M. Frick, Dr. E. E. Fall, J. James, George Remson, C. H. Haines, J. F. Francis, J. W. Dutton Jr., A. M. Manning, Miss Taggart, A. E. Madison, H. L. Weitzel, J. L. Lyon, H. P. Lyon, J. R. Eiley, N. W. Leitch, A. S. J. Woods. Officers Morrison and Keegan, mounted, went ahead of the parade to clear the streets of the throngs. The advance was led by Chief of Police Charles E. Lloyd, Sergeant Hodskins acting as chief aid and Officer Meyers as adjutant.

The patrolmen marched in platoons. Company A was commanded by Captain Fletcher, which consisted of Officers Peterson, Ernest, Schroeder, Curtis, McCarthy, Phillips, Sill, Scanlon, Murray, Leighton, Henderson, Murphy, Nedderman, Hammerton, McCloud and Kyte. Company B was under the command of Captain Wilson and consisted of Officers Andrews, Conney, Green, Moore, Cocker-ton, Powers, Stable, Kingsbury, Wood, Sherry, Quigley, Carson, Ely, Keefe, Jacobus and Clark.

During the last few months the police have been thoroughly drilled by Captain Fletcher, and on this, the first occasion when the two companies have appeared in public together, shone to the best advantage. Their uniforms were neatly brushed, their accoutrements brightly polished, and their marching done with great precision and fine effect.

The police were followed by the grand marshal and his aids, all mounted on blooded animals and cutting a dashing figure. After the grand marshals came Webb N. Pierce, chief of staff, and C. H. Miller, chairman of the parade committee. Next in order were the aids.

The aids were followed by the Fifth Infantry, which led the military contingent, in command of Major J. F. Hayes, commander proper of the Second Battalion, Fifth Infantry Regiment, N. G. C.

The grand marshals were in line: Company A, commanded by Captain C. T. Poulter; Company G, commanded by Captain W. M. Simpson, and Company F, Captain G. H. Wethers.

The second division consisted of Oakland's gallant fire fighters. Marshal White and his aids were followed by Chief W. H. Fair and Assistant Chief Fred Murdoch in a buggy decorated with the National colors.

Behind the Chief's buggy came chemical engine 1, driven by L. W. Calvert, and ridden by Foreman W. B. Smith and Steward John Fitzsimmons. The engine was artistically draped with flags and bunting and banked with white lilies and cypresses.

Hose truck 3, L. G. Walker driving and Steward James Galvin with him on the box, followed. The foreman and extra-men of the company, attired in their uniforms and carrying wicker looking fire axes, which gave them quite a bellicent appearance, marched in front of the truck. This was true of all the companies, each marching before the apparatus to which it belonged.

Next in turn was engine company 1, Stoker S. Towne driving the heavy horses which took the prize at the recent horse show and his delight at the honor conferred on him showed in his glowing countenance. The ribbons of the lighter hose wagon were handled by Louis Hoffman, the veteran driver. A gaudy Japanese parasol was spread above the engine and from it hung draperies of red, white and blue. The draperies and wheels was grouped to represent stars.

The hose wagon was loaded down with American flags and on it stood the silver trophy won by the department in San Francisco.

Hook and ladder company No. 1 followed the engine. E. D. Barnett was driver. He bobbed his head and nodded the huge black horses of the truck, and the apparatus was gay with bunting and streamers.

Division 2 was closed by engine 6, driven by Philip Reader, and his hose-car, over which was spread a Japanese umbrella. The engine was also artistically decorated.

The third division was in command of Marshal P. J. Keller and Aid E. P. Wilkins. Charles Corner, attired as Uncle Sam, came behind them. Corner, on account of his remarkable resemblance to the popular pictorial representation of that famous personification, has long been known in Oakland by the title of "the natural Uncle Sam."

He was guarded by Police Officer Rand, the oldest man on the force, who carried the old flintlock used by his grandfather in the Revolutionary War.

child is that, any way?" and other remarks indicative of admiration.

A gunboat with a howitzer which every now and then belched forth fire and smoke, closed the division.

The fourth division was led by John Sergeant and Company 11, First Regiment, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias. Colonel J. P. Abbott of the brigade staff, Colonel W. J. Kidd, Major P. J. O'Kane and Captain Kauffman of the regimental staff, were in line. Liberty Company was commanded by Captain Hussey, Lieutenant Dye and J. D. Moller.

Durant School, Principal Dunbar, had 120 boys in line, led by a drum corps of sixteen pieces.

Grant School, Miss Powell principal, had 80 children, led by a corps of six drums.

The Central School, P. M. Fisher principal, had seventy young men in line and a drum corps of eighteen pieces. The boys marched like soldiers and made a most effective showing.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of the whole procession was the company of Exempt Firemen. The men were in full uniform. Miss Doody was in command, with M. J. Hallahan and E. Barrett as assistants. Lee Murphy, Joe Doland and Lincoln Hallahan, as mascots, carried the colors. This company had in tow the old engine, "Vigilant 9," which came around the Horn in 1846.

Captain J. J. Harrow was the only uniformed representative of the Veterans' Fire Association of San Francisco in line. He is an Exempt of New York, Brooklyn, Alameda and San Francisco.

Owing to the absence of Cian Macdonald of the Scottish clans and Court Oakland of the Foresters, the fifth division was flattened out to a certain extent.

The Clawson School, Miss Colby principal, was on hand with a representation of about twenty drum corps.

Lafayette School, Miss Aldren principal, also turned out in force.

The sixth division was composed of the Junior Order of American Mechanics and auxiliary organizations. Johnson's band of sixteen pieces took the lead.

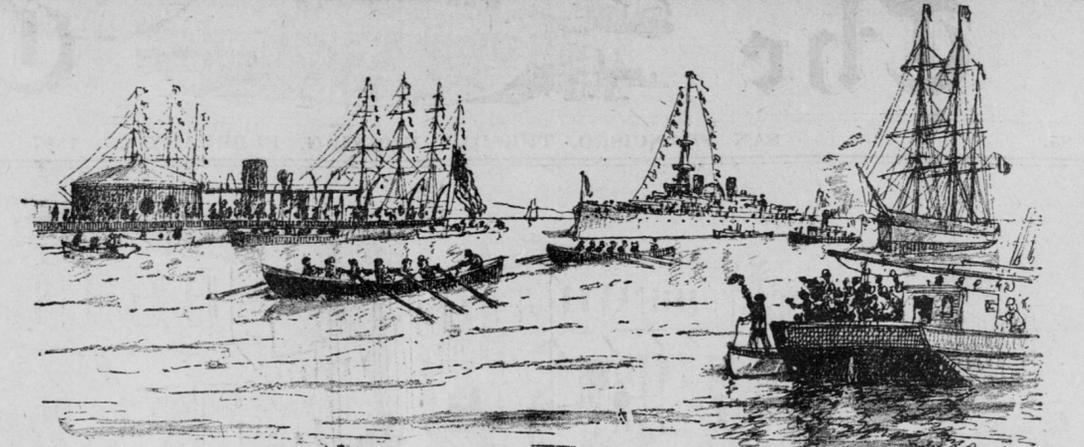

Then came California Commandery No. 1, United American Mechanics, in uniform. H. L. Zimmerman commanding and G. A. Monte vice-commander.

The Home Guards of San Francisco, also auxiliary to the Junior Order, was next in line in uniform, Major Brandon commanding. Captain Pate, Troop A, Lieutenant Cohen and Lieutenant Whiting, Captain W. Peterson, Troop B, Lieutenant Manning and Lieutenant Mervin.

The following was the arrangement of the San Francisco Council of the Junior Order of American Mechanics: Abraham Lincoln Council, F. B. Dickson commanding; Grant Council, W. H. Lord commanding; Garfield Council, C. G. Noble commanding; Starr King Council, E. W. Close commanding; members of Alexander Hamilton Council and California Auxiliary Ladies of the Daughters of Liberty.

The Oakland councils of the Junior Order came next, as follows: General George H. Custer Council, T. Bradshaw commanding; General John A. Logan Council, Marston Campbell commanding; Henry Clay Council, W. M. Gardner commanding; James Monroe Council, The members of the Junior Order wore white canvas caps and carried red, white and blue pampas plumes. There were about 1000 men in line. The Cole School and Tompkins school assigned to this division were not represented.

The Alameda councils then came in turn. George Bennett and C. Irish acted as standard bearers for these councils.

Finish of the Great Annual Race Between the Crews Selected From Divisions 1 and 2 of the Naval Battalion. The Contest Was Stubbornly Fought, but Division 2 Lost Five Lengths on the Turn and Cou'd Not Make It Up.

There were in the party Adjutant-General A. W. Barrett, Assistant Adjutant-General R. L. Peeler, Senator Pedlar, members of the Senate Military Committee, Senator Andrews, Assemblyman Cross, chairman of the House Military Committee, Assemblymen Jones, Godfrey, Mahoney, Powers, McLaren and Treacy of the House Committee, Lieutenant-Colonel Bargin and Lieutenant Sanborn of the Governor's staff, Lieutenant-Colonel C. H. Crocker, Captain D. A. Smith, adjutant of the Fifth Infantry, Second Brigade. They were received on the tug by Lieutenant Dennis of the First Division, who, in the absence of Lieutenant-Commander Turner, commanded the battalion, and Lieutenant Elliott, adjutant of the battalion. The tug first followed the racers and the party on board witnessed some good work by the men of the naval reserve.

When the tug was moored alongside of the iron ship the visitors were received by Lieutenant Gunn of the Second Division, acting executive officer of the battalion. The men of the reserve, who were mustered on deck, in their neat uniforms presented a picturesque appearance and drew from the visitors many expressions of admiration.

The customary ceremonies observed on an occasion of this kind being over, the visitors were invited below, where they were shown over the berth deck and in the ward room, where refreshments were served and they were briefly addressed by Lieutenant Dennis. He explained what the naval reserve has done in the past, what it is doing and what it needs.

The party was then shown over the ship, a number of the inquisitive legislators crawling through one of the port-holes into the turret to see the guns inside. They asked a great many questions and they learned a great deal. They admitted they saw much to admire in that branch of the service, and they were of the opinion that the water militia ought to have the State assistance it asks for.

The inspection over the party returned to the tug and was saluted by the boom of the Hotchkiss guns. Then by direction of Colonel Chaboureaux the party was taken along the City front and out toward the heads until abreast of the Mabel Gray, the schooner that was dismantled by lightning. The tug sounded that vessel and returned to her berth.

When passing the Corwin, which was dressed in gala attire, that vessel fired a National salute of twenty-one guns. Some of the guileless individuals on the tug were of the opinion that the salute was in their honor, until they were reminded that the day was a holiday and that the salute was one usually fired at noon in honor of the occasion.

THE BOAT-RACING.

Division 1 of the Naval Battalion Captures a Flag for Fast Rowing.

"A better, fairer or more hotly contested race was never seen in California," was the comment of Henry Peterson after the first division of the Naval Battalion had won the champion flag yesterday. "They rowed stroke for stroke up to the stake-boat, but on the turn the first division gained a decided advantage and finally won by about five lengths."

After the race the men in Division 2's boat became the guests of the winners in the boat-house, and a merry half-hour was spent.

Last year the crew of the Second Division won the race, and on this occasion the First Division determined to win back the flag presented by Irving M. Scott for annual competition. It has to be won three times in succession and then becomes the property of the division that proves victorious. Yesterday R. Shullier, W. Gleason, F. Murphy, R. Murray, J. E. Meyers and George Green, with J. E. Healey as coxswain, upheld the honors of the First Division, while T. P. Schroeder and Messrs. Ungden, Olsen, Hansen, Johnson and Haleday, with T. Rowe as coxswain, fought out the battle on behalf of the Second Division. Henry Peterson was the referee, Lieutenant Calden was judge for the First Division, and Messrs. A. H. Elliott for the Second Division and S. J. Pembroke was timekeeper.

The course was from the Camanche to a buoy anchored off Mission Rock and return, a distance of about three miles. Considering that the men covered the distance in 20 minutes and 35 seconds, there is some merit in the remark made by Henry Peterson, "The best time ever made by green amateurs, in a ship's boat, in the world."

The start was a perfect one. Neither gained a foot during the first mile and a half, and when the stakeboats were reached it was anybody's race. It was then that Rowe carried his boat wide, and Healey, who is an excellent coxswain, made his men slow down, and making short turn gained at least six lengths on Division 2. With all that distance to make up, the boys never lost heart, and set out on a stern chase. They made up two boat-lengths, but the strain told on them, and during the last quarter of a mile they fell back a length.

The boys of Division 1 earned their victory. They were all out at the finish, and not one of them could have rowed another half-mile. Murphy was bleeding at the nose, and his rowing shirt and arms were covered with his blood; but just the same he stuck to his work and stayed by his oar until the boat was alongside the monitor. When passing the Oregon and the bark Les Adelphes the men were heartily cheered, and when opposite the schooner on which Schneller of the battalion had a party of friends the winners received an ovation. It was a perfect day for the race, and it was rowed at slack water and with little or no wind.

"Little Jack," whose clever maneuvering really won the race for Division 1, was afterward carried down below to the berth-deck by his delighted crew.

Then followed several races from the battie-ship. The course was from the Oregon, around the Camanche and back to the battie-ship. The big cutter 13 was beaten by barge 32. It was nip and tuck with them until they got into the backwash from the stern-wheeler A. C. Freeze. Then the cutter lost headway and 32 finally won by four lengths.

In the next race No. 32 was pitted against cutter 41, and this time 32 turned the tables and won cleverly by two lengths.

The third and last race of the day was between dingies 14 and 24, the former winning by three lengths.

Harrison, Folsom and Howard street wharves were crowded with spectators, all of whom enjoyed the spectacle.

INSPECTING THE FIRST.

A Review and a Parade on Van Ness Avenue.

In the afternoon the party that visited the Naval Reserve proceeded to Van Ness avenue to inspect the First Regiment of Infantry, Second Brigade, Troop A, the Signal Corps and the Cadet Company.

The first carriage contained Adjutant-General Barrett and Senators Pedlar and Peeler, assistant adjutant-general, and the members of the committee. In the third, Assemblymen Jones, Mahoney and McLaren; and in the fourth, Assemblymen Treacy and Godfrey, Captain D. A. Smith and D. G. Troy.

The party moved along the avenue to Sacramento street and took up a position on the west side of the avenue near California, where also stood Brigadier-General Ward and staff.

The regimental line was formed on the avenue, and, preceded by Colonel Duboce and staff, marched up the east side of the avenue in column of fours. The infantry marched well, kept distances well and in service uniform presented a very creditable appearance, appearing to much better advantage as real soldiers than when out in full-dress uniform. The cavalry and the signal corps also made a good appearance, while the cadet company and the ambulance corps looked well. There were about 500 men in line. In counter-marching the companies passed by the reviewing officers and committee in company front.

After the inspection the guardsmen escorted the inspecting party to the Palace Hotel and then were dismissed.

The chairman of the Senate committee said: "I am very much pleased with the appearance of our guardsmen, afloat and ashore."

Mr. Barrett spoke of other names illustrious in American history—Lincoln, Serra, Marquette and others—winding up with some eloquent remarks, which caused the audience to pay him the compliment of applauding until he twice bowed acknowledgment.

The remainder of the programme was as follows: Tenor solo, William J. O'Brien; recitation, Miss Lottie Dewey; bass solo, John A. McAuliffe; trombone solo, F. K. Tobin; singing of "The Red, White and Blue" by the audience; finale by the orchestra. All the solo numbers went so well that encores were demanded.

The annual reunion of the San Francisco councils of the Young Men's Institute at the Mechanics' Pavilion last night was a social event of almost unexampled magnitude, viewed with regard to the large attendance and fraternal feeling among the participants.

From 8 o'clock until a late hour thousands shook hands, renewed acquaintance, danced and enjoyed the occasion without reservation.

A great many visiting delegates and past presidents of the order thronged the great pavilion. Major William Fahy, himself a past president, had charge of a large visiting delegation. The various committees of the order were busy throughout the evening entertaining their guests, the following being in charge:

Committee of arrangements—E. B. Thomas (chairman), Edward J. O'Rourke (secretary), F. J. Driscoll, M. E. King, M. J. Connetton, Dr. C. A. Glover, P. J. Whelan, J. A. Riley, M. F. Sisk, A. P. The evening's entertainment consisted of a concert and dancing.

THEY SHOT FOR BLOOD.

Olympic Gun Club's Pigeon Tournament at Ingleside Yesterday.

The formal dedication of the Olympic Gun Club's new grounds at Ingleside was continued yesterday, when live birds replaced blue-rocks. The programme comprised a twelve-bird match and a freeze-out shoot, something like ninety dozen pigeons biting the dust in both.

The glorious weather yesterday attracted an enormous crowd to Ingleside, and the gun club's tournament secured a very respectable percentage of patrons.

There were no less than sixty-three entries in the first match of the day, that number including most of the club's crack shots. The prizes consisted of the entrance money and $25 added by F. R. Webster, a director of the club, the total being divided into sums of 50, 30 and 20 per cent for 12, 11 and 10 birds respectively. In this match the following scores were made:

Haight 11, Neustader 9, Potter 9, Merrill 12, H. Brown 10, Justus 9, Barker 12, "Sade" 11, Shiel 11, White 9, Ross 10, Durham 11, Seaver 10, Lougee 8, Ditz 10, Moore 9, W. C. Brown 6, Forster 11, "Johns" 10, Holmes 12, Andrews 11, Eaton 6, H. C. Goleher 12, Whitman 12, Owens 8, Grant 11, Lake 10, Weinmann 10, E. Schult 7, W. J. Goleher 9, Bosqui 9, Winters 12, Wagner 9, Webb 12, Maskey 12, Black 10, Neumann 12, Weigl 8, Carr 11, Hill 8, F. Forder 12, O. Forder 10, J. S. Fanning 12, Fox 12, Clabrough 6, King 10, Alderton 8, "Coffin" 10, Webster 10, Cummings 11, Pritch 5, Smith 8, Randall 11.

LADIES WERE PATRIOTIC.

Puerta del Oro Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, Celebrate.

It was an artistic as well as a patriotic programme that the Puerta del Oro Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, had arranged for the celebration of the immortal Washington's birthday.

The Daughters, beaming, proud and happy, crowded Beethoven Hall, and the Sons fringed the walls and stood up in the corridors, giving to the whole scene an appearance of strength and security.

On the platform, from which the speakers delivered their patriotic orations, sang patriotic hymns, the folds of Old Glory made a picturesque and inspiring background.

Mrs. Gibbons, regent of the chapter, in a few well-chosen words, bid the assembled audience welcome to the first public meeting of the chapter. She alluded to the slow, steady growth of the society, which organized on the 4th of last April with but twelve members, and now boasted a membership of sixty. She described the organization as an aristocracy founded on patriotism and not on wealth, and to its influence attributed the revival of patriotism.

The most ambitious effort of the day was the address by Professor Moses of Berkeley.

MR. T. STACKE.

Mr. T. Stacke lives at the Santa Rosa Hotel, corner Fourth and San Pedro streets, Los Angeles, Cal. He has used several bottles of the native sarsaparilla, and is now convinced Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is best. "For," said he, "when I began using the Sarsaparilla I had a desire to rest all the time. My blood was disordered, my tongue coated. At times, just for a moment, my head swam; I was not the least bit dizzy. I knew my needs and determined to use a bottle of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. I easily procured the first bottle, and after using for six days felt better in every way. When I bought the second bottle I had a little trouble in getting it. The drug clerk tried to talk me into using something else. I knew what I wanted and insisted on getting Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. I am heartily glad I bought the remedy and will gladly recommend it to any one. Joy's is certainly fine."

No draught own a cask in Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. Patent agents claiming to pay its advertising bills as a fraud. Beware of cheap imitations and prices with others before purchasing.
