

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT EMERYVILLE

Fabiola Day a Grand Success Financially and Otherwise.

Wheel of Fortune Was in Rare Form, Equating a Coast Record.

Reversals of Form Were Somewhat Numerous—Mollie R. Won at Stimulating Odds.

With an infield dotted with gayly decorated equipages of all sorts and descriptions loaded with pretty women, the cream and culture of Oakland society, all resplendent in pretty summer suitings and dazzling colors and a nearly filled grand stand, "Fabiola day" at Emeryville track was a pronounced success.

Pretty Miss Lucrezia Borgia, the newly-elected holder of the world's four-mile record, was paraded before the stand, with mane and tail entwined with gaudy ribbons, just previous to the calling out of the horses for the Fabiola derby.

The race, for a last day, was quite invigorating, nearly if not all of the starters evidently being meant, even though disastrous for the choicest, as but two favored ones in the ring got to the wire in advance of their company.

The so-called "Fabiola derby" was the best-contested race of the afternoon, and the distance, one and a quarter miles, was covered by the winner, Wheel of Fortune, in coast record time—2:05 1/2.

The track was lightning fast, which, in a measure, accounted for the fast time hung out. The Roman was post favorite at odds of 9 to 5, and but for the gaudy of Stevens and the end of the race, Taramo, with J. Ward and 11 pounds in the saddle, skated out in front, and for a while it looked as though Bergen's horse would not drop back.

In the stretch he faltered a trifle, and the Roman, closing on him, looked to have the race in hand. Then it was that Stevens gray away, and Piggot, on the second choice, Wheel of Fortune, clearing the fact, put whip and spur and skinned the race from the coats by the shortest of heads in record time.

Piggot gained some well-earned applause. Analysis, the 8 to 5 choice, took the opening six-furlong selling purse from a field of fourteen. Freeman had the mount and, gradually moving up from sixth position, downed Little Sister, a 12 to 1 shot, who had made all the running, a head on the wire in 1:16 1/2. Older crippled Mulberry was a close third under Clawson's pilotage.

The Elmwood farm's Peter the Second performed a very shifty acrobatic feat in the mile and a sixteenth. Last time out he was disgracefully beaten when at a short price in the betting, but in the race yesterday at odds of 8 and 9 to 1 overhauled Coda in the stretch and won easily from Naglee Burke's mare in 1:48 3/4. Walter J, the 2 to 1 favorite, got a miserable ride under the pilotage of Stevens. Del Paso, the second choice, was third.

After running as a sleeper on her last two public appearances, Pete Mitchell finally told the boy to give Rose Clark head, and she beat a good field in the third event, a six-furlong spin, at odds of 15 to 1. Mainstay, the 2 to 1 choice, ridden by Shaw, was in front to the stretch, where he began tripping under his 129 pounds of weight. Midas, third choice, was beaten by a length by the winner.

Mollie R kept up the acrobatic record. Favorite last time out she failed to land inside the coil, and the ring took great liberties with her during the betting on the eleven starters in the mile selling race. Fortunately, carrying By Holly's colors, she beat a splendidly judged race in the fast time of 1:41 3/4. H. Brown got Thelma home in the show.

Strange to relate, Montalado, the 2 to 1 favorite, started off the final race on the card. Holly's second choice was held at odds of 2 to 1 throughout the betting and, assuming first place when squared away for the final effort, led Sallie Clignet out by three lengths in 1:15 flat. Roadwarmer, who cut out the pace, was third, barely nosed out for second money.

CUBAN PICNIC WILL SUCCEED

Flags and Bands of Music Will Be Conspicuous.

There Will Be a Triumphant Procession to and From the Ferries.

Many Gate Prizes and Games Will Entice Next Sunday at Wildwood Park.

There is much encouragement among the local friends of the Cuban insurgents and at Cuban League headquarters, because of the many responses that are coming in daily to the petition for freedom.

From all parts of the coast the responses are satisfactory, and the local committee is confident that the moral sentiment of the masses is for the freedom of the island.

"Our picnic to be at Sausalito next Sunday," said Secretary Faust Maschner yesterday, "and the prospect is that there will be a large crowd there. It should be borne in mind that there are many extraordinary gate prizes and there will be many kinds of games and general amusements. The funds will be used in some way for the good of the cause and I hope the attendance will be large."

Major William Fahey has been elected marshal of the day. The flags of Cuba and the United States will be carried by the marching bands and there will be several bands of music.

Disturbing a Meeting. As a result of the attempts to disturb the meeting of the Richmond District Improvement Association in Simon's Hall, Fourth and California streets, Friday night, E. P. E. Troy swore out a warrant in Judge Joseph W. Smith's court yesterday against Thomas Kerr, the foreman at the Odd Fellows Cemetery. The charge is disturbing a meeting.

"HOW ABOUT CLEVELAND?"

Judge Maguire's Reception Turned Into a Question Bee.

High Tribute Paid to Republican Congressman Evokes Applause.

Mayor Phelan and J. H. Barry Talk Monopolies, Arago Cass and N. W. Postoffice.

Last night was a great time for the local Democratic and People's parties. The sense of their rejoining was Metropolitan Temple and the occasion a reception to Congressman James G. Maguire under the auspices of the two parties in question and the Iroquois Club. It turned out a regular love feast.

The large hall was filled with an enthusiastic audience, which voiced its approval without stint, and everything was said and done. The speakers' stand was easily decorated with American flags and bunting, and there sat many prominent members of the Iroquois Club and the People's party, Mayor Phelan, James H. Barry and others. The affair was further enhanced in the popular eye by the presence of a brass band.

The first speaker was William Craig, who paid a tribute to the two parties represented and to Judge Maguire as the "champion of the people." After reading a letter from Governor Budd, by his private secretary, stating that he was unavoidably detained but testifying to his high appreciation of Maguire's personality and labors for the State, Craig introduced Dr. G. W. Daywalt as the chairman of the meeting.

Dr. Daywalt made an eloquent and graceful speech of introduction, leading up from party principles generally to the most popular representatives of those causes, and finally to Maguire as the "Ajax whose mighty blows had so disconcerted the enemy."

"It has been said by one of old," he began, "that conflict breeds intelligence. Within the last few years and during the last campaign, the conflict has become so bitter that the lines are sharply drawn."

"An attempt has been made to en-throne gold as a god and to dethrone the goddess silver. In the end it has succeeded, but the day is soon coming when another song will be sung."

"Among all those who have battled in the cause of liberty and the common people there is none more noble than the one who will address us to-night. He is whose name is famous the country over as the man who defeated the infamous gambling trust, and who, by the pleasure of listening to that hero of the Republic—that man who has never been found wanting in the cause of the people—the Hon. James G. Maguire."

As Judge Maguire rose from his seat and stepped to the front of the rostrum he was lustily cheered. As soon as quiet reigned he launched forth upon the rhetorical sea without more ado.

"I thank you for this splendid demonstration of your approval of my conduct," he said. "I know of nothing that could be more grateful to the heart of one who has tried to do his duty in all things. I thank you, one and all, my constituents, and you, gentlemen, who passed such encouraging words of approval and conduct in your remarks of introduction."

"I believe I can truthfully say that what I have promised before election I have tried to the best of my ability to fulfill after election. Being with Daniel Webster that eternal justice is to be striven after in all things and that 'eternal vigilance is the price of liberty,' I have never permitted my conduct in anything else to frustrate my impulse to drive a nail in behalf of liberty whenever the opportunity presented itself."

"There are in this land to-day great monopolies that have attained such magnitude that they are attempting to govern the Government instead of being governed by it. I have seen the old Democracy come to the front, reorganized and make a fight for those natural legal rights which God ordained should exist among men. I have seen the new Democracy rise from the loins of the old and strike for freedom in this Republic; and with it I have seen another giant of the people's rights, the People's party, and a small party of the Republic, party, join hands in the fight, and they will together against the enemy in the next battle, and their triumph is morally certain."

At this juncture a gruff voice from the gallery inquired: "What about Grover Cleveland, the stuffed prophet?"

"I beg your pardon," replied the speaker. "I am talking of the Democratic party and not of Grover Cleveland. The best thing I can do in the case of Grover Cleveland is to maintain a respectful silence. I am sure if I said anything of him it could not be more respectful than that."

Amid the laughter and cheers of the audience Congressman Maguire proceeded to review in detail the scenes and incidents of the last campaign and the result. The name of William J. Bryan was heartily cheered, and also the speaker's statement that protection had not yet brought prosperity. In fact, a large part of his oration consisted of a tossing of verbal bouquets at Bryan as the representative of the united forces of the Democracy and Populism and at the latter element for their so-called foresight in tussling.

The various monopolies were taken up in turn and rapped on every vulnerable point. The coal, the Standard Oil and the railroad monopolies were considered especially, and the laws which permitted them to exist recommended repealed. The speaker would not repeat all such laws, as their repeal might affect the Government injuriously in other places.

"But I want to say," he asserted, when naming his conclusion, "that in the fight against the Pacific railroad nothing could have been done by me without the loyal support of Senators White and Perkins and my Republican colleagues, Barham, Hilborn and Bowers. They deserve all praise and honor for their noble work."

The Arago case was treated in detail, and the hope was expressed that before the expiration of another term of Congress "this foul blot" would be wiped out of the statute books. This case has been fought for four years, and is being argued before the Supreme Court by Judge Maguire now.

The speaker then to a question about Cuba he stated that for the last few days he has been well cared for by the Senate. One of the last subjects treated was that of the construction of the new Postoffice. The work done on it was reviewed in detail. The speaker saw no reason why the work should be longer delayed.

The speaker here closed with a complimentary speech to Mayor Phelan, who was introduced by Chairman Daywalt and made a speech eulogistic of Maguire's record. He then referred to the records of the two former speakers and spoke on the same general lines. He being the last speaker his record was the only one of the speakers not exploited. The meeting closed with three cheers for Maguire as the "next Governor of California."

HOW HE BECAME MASTER OF ARTS

T. F. Nicholas, Once a Grain Man, Graduates From Oxford.

By Sheer Grit He Overcame All Obstacles and Secured the Prize.

His Friends in This City Are Congratulating Him on Attaining His Ideal.

T. F. Nicholas, who very recently graduated from Oxford University, England, has returned to this city. For a number of years he was manager of one of the leading wholesale grain and commission houses on Davis street. Though he received a liberal common school education in his boyhood days and occupied a lucrative and what promised to be a permanent position, he was not content figuring margins on wheat and the routine of business life. Nothing would satisfy him short of a university education, with a view to literary work.

As he was then in the twenties, his friends discouraged him, but undismayed, he shipped to Oxford, England, applied for admission, passed the preliminary examination and faced the course of study laid down for the degree of "Master of Arts" in one of the universities of the world requiring the highest percentages in scholarship.

At the end of seven years of diligent application, he was graduated with high honors, and now he returns looking but little older and a brighter man than when he left San Francisco. On the City front yesterday he was the recipient of much warm handshaking and many hearty congratulations by his numerous friends among the downtown business men.

Since Mr. Nicholas graduated he has spent considerable time in traveling in

A special meeting of the Phoenix Republican Club was held last night to make final preparations for the club picnic to San Jose to-day.

After the meeting the executive committee of the club met, and County Clerk Charles F. Curry was called in.

The president of the club, in a few well-chosen words, in which he spoke of Mr. Curry's warm interest in the club, of which he was the originator, and his equally warm interest in the Republican party generally and for its unity, presented him with a solid gold badge as a memento of the kindly feelings entertained for him by the members of the club. The president concluded by pinning the badge on Mr. Curry's breast.

Ex-Senator Thomas Maher and Palmer followed with a few well-tempered remarks and Mr. Curry briefly returned his thanks, saying he would treasure the badge, not for its intrinsic value, but for the feelings of personal regard that called it forth.

It was the intention to present the badge as the picnic to-day, but owing to the critical condition of Mr. Curry's brother, William, who is believed to be dying, and the possibility that Mr. Curry would be unable to attend the picnic, it was decided to make the presentation last night.

The badge bears the inscription on the back, "Presented to Charles F. Curry by the Phoenix Republican Club, May 23, 1897." On a crossbar is the name in blue enameled letters, "Chas. F. Curry," and on the top of the badge, "Phoenix Republican Club, 1897-1897." In the center is an encrusted gold phoenix studded with diamonds and on the edges gold forget-me-nots.

Mr. Curry was the originator of the club and has been content to be one of the rank and file, although taking the liveliest interest in its progress.

Charges Dismissed. United States Commissioner Heacock yesterday dismissed the charges of uttering counterfeit money preferred against Charles Ernard and John Matthews. The evidence was that both men were drunk and did not know that the 50-cent piece which each of them passed was counterfeit.

Convicted of Burglary. Ed McAniff was convicted of burglary of the first degree in Judge Cook's court yesterday. McAniff was charged with burglarizing a store at the corner of California and Dupont streets.

KEEP UP YOUR VITAL ENERGY.

A Few Words That Will Interest Men and Women Who Love Good Health.

THIS IS THE SECRET OF ALL good health. If you have a strong vital force circulating in your nerves there is no chance for the pains or weakness of which so many people complain.

When you have a pain in your back it comes from a nerve which has been injured, or else from some general weakness of the vital organs which are supported by the nerves which center at the spine.

If you are nervous, forgetful or brainy; if you are a waste of your vital energy. There are so many signs of weakness caused by the loss of this great vital force; its effects are so depressing to the spirits, weakening to the general nervous organization and so destructive to the general health, that all good health depends on retaining your vital energy. If you have lost any part of it there is only one way to regain it—by Electricity.

Dr. Sanden's Electric Belt.

When this Belt has been on the body one hour it places enough vital power in the nerves to supply all that would be exhausted by an ordinary person in a whole day. It is worn from 4 to 8 hours daily, day or night; hence it keeps the body constantly saturated with eight times as much vitality as is needed to carry on the work of running the human machinery.

All this excess goes to build up the reserve force which has been weakened by some means in the past. Any one who understands the relation which Electricity bears to human nerve force can appreciate the great, grand and wonderful effect that such treatment must have upon nerves and organs that have been gradually losing their power. It is as simple as anything can be, and yet wonderful.

Doctors do not usually recommend Dr. Sanden's Electric Belt—some because they do not understand it; others because it takes customers from them; but no sensible person can doubt its simple curative power, nor can any one disprove its wonderful cures.
