

BRAND OF GAIN UPON HIS BREW

Murder Ends a Drunken Fight Between Four Brothers.

Henry Hoagland Slays Charles Hoagland at a Ranch Near Blocksburg.

The Dying Victim Left to Lie All Night Unattended in the Open Air.

BLOCKSBURG, CAL., Sept. 22.—A drunken row between brothers at the ranch of G. S. Kneeland last night resulted in the death of Charles Hoagland, who was struck over the head by his brother Hank with a board.

The four Hoagland brothers—Charles, Henry, George and "Brock"—were helping Kneeland with his shearing, and during the evening Charles got noisy. Henry remonstrated with him, and the brothers finally got into a drunken fight. When George and "Brock" attempted to intervene, Henry choked "Brock" for interfering, and then took a picket from the fence and struck Charles over the head with it, inflicting a ghastly wound two and a half inches long just back of the left ear.

Leaving Charles where he fell the crowd went into the house and went to bed. This morning when the shears got up they saw Charles lying on the ground about sixty feet from where he fell. Supposing that he was asleep they tried to awaken him, but found that he was unconscious.

He was carried into Kneeland's house, but did not rally and died at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Harry appears to be quite indifferent over the affair and gave himself up. He is 35 years old and tears the reputation of being vicious when under the influence of liquor. The boys are sons of Sias Hoagland, one of the best-known shepherds in the country. The inquest will be held to-morrow.

WAS THE DONNER PARTY'S GUIDE

Adventures of Old Baptiste Trauvio, Now a Hop-Picker in Sonoma Fields.

SANTA ROSA, CAL., Sept. 22.—An historical character left Santa Rosa to-day for his home in Tomales. Baptiste Trauvio came a month ago to pick hops for Supervisor Hall. He is the little old boy who is mentioned in pioneer history as the survivor of the famous Donner party, that was penned up in the Sierra Nevada in the terrible winter of 1845-46.

Baptiste, as everybody calls him, is about 67 years old, but he looks younger, for his eyes are bright and his movements as brisk as many men of 40. Every year he comes here in August to gather hops. Baptiste never gets tired telling of the experiences of the Donner party. He was only 20 years of age when he joined the party at Port Bridger in the fall of 1845. He was a good frontiersman, and George Donner engaged him to drive the stock and to act as guide. He remained with the party until the Donner became separated from the Murphys and others of the party who pushed further on, and Baptiste became a very important personage, for upon him devolved the hard task of moving weary days and nights of cooking, attending to the sick and keeping up the fires in their prison of snow.

Tears came into the old man's eyes when he tells about the heroism of Mrs. Donner, who preferred to die with her husband rather than desert him for a moment. Baptiste and the party were finally rescued and sent to Sutter's Fort. He makes his home in Tomales.

WEBSTER MURDER CASE.

Question of the Identifying of the Accused by His Dying Victim in the Bay.

SPOKANE, WASH., Sept. 22.—The defense in the Webster murder trial tripped its hand to-day for the first time. Webster is on trial for the murder of Mrs. Aspland, near Cheney. He stopped on the night at the home of Aspland. During the night he went to the bedside of the woman and made improper suggestions. She ordered him out of the room. Later he went outside, and she locked the door against him. He called for his clothes, and while Mrs. Aspland was dressing them out over the top of the window she was shot. The defense will claim that the killing was done by a mysterious person named Mullian, and will seek to prove their contention by a pact with the dying statement of the murdered woman. In that statement Mrs. Aspland asserted that she was shot by Webster, but the defense will claim that she could not know who shot her, as there was a light in the room. It is impossible, they say, to identify a person from a lighted room when such person is outside in the darkness. The dying statement was introduced to-day and created a sensation. In it Mrs. Aspland was asked: "Was there anybody with George Webster when he fired the shot?" "There was another fellow outside with him, I don't know his name. He came out from Cheney. He came after dark."

SAN JOSE, CAL., Sept. 22.—This city is to have one of the prettiest and best appointed theaters on the coast. It will be erected by Mayor Phelan of San Francisco, and work on the building will commence at once. San Jose has been badly in need of a theater for a number of years, and now that a new playhouse is assured there will be much rejoicing among the amusement-loving people of the city. The building will be up to date in all particulars and appointments and will cost $45,000. Mayor Phelan and Architect W. M. Curlett of San Francisco have been here for several days looking over the ground and plans. To-day it was decided to build and work will commence in a week or so. The new theater will be located on North First between Santa Clara and St. John streets. The alley between the Martin block and Rucker building will be built over and used as an entrance to the main building, which will be in a rear. The box seats will be in the front, and the balance will be converted into a foyer. The main building will be 80 by 110 feet, with a height of 57 feet.
