ACTORS EAT TO-NIGHT.

Orpheum Light Comedy Team
 Defeated by Morosco's Tragedians.

Lightweight Ziegler and His Little Gun Assist Charlie Gagus to Umpire.

The star aggregation of baseball talent representing the Orpheum team went down in defeat yesterday afternoon before the Morosco Baseball Club. The Rialto was deserted, as the long-haired fraternity had gathered at Central Park to prompt those of their number having acting parts in the up-to-date farce, "Baseball as She Is Played."

The batting and heavy coaching of the ball-tossers from the Grand Opera-house, assisted by Bergman and Eddie Light, exhibited by Bergman and Eddie Light, and supposed to have been caused by the sight of Umpire Owen Ziegler and his little gun, are responsible for the defeat of the vaudeville team.

The grand stand was well filled with "rooters" for the different teams, and the varied assortment of fog horns, cowbells, whistles and rattles would have done justice to a varsity football game. The face of Mr. Morosco, the manager and proprietor of the Grand Opera-house, would have brought a premium as an after-talking advertisement. The teams are to dine at Delmonico's at the expense of the losers, and their promise to "hot time in the old town to-night." Following is the score:

MARRIED FOR POSSESSION.

Experience of the Matron of the Methodist Mission House.

Mrs. Lake, matron of the Methodist Mission House at 916 Washington street, tells of an experience which shows one of the methods pursued by the Chinese slave-owners to obtain possession of the girls who have been rescued from the dens of Chinatown.

Some weeks ago a girl was taken from a house after she had tried for two years to get away. A Chinaman came to the Mission House representing himself as the father of the girl and formally proposed marriage. The girl was married to him and they were married at the mission and then Mrs. Lake went with the newly married couple to an interior town which was to be their future home.

When they alighted from the train they were met by two Chinese women whom Mrs. Lake recognized as quipos, or keepers of slave houses. These women stepped forward and took possession of the girl and went away with her, leaving Mrs. Lake and the husband standing on the platform. Mrs. Lake grasped the situation and the Chinaman at the same time, and told him that if he did not tell where the girl was taken she would have him arrested. The Chinaman was frightened and told the number of the house, and next day Mrs. Lake went to the place, to find that it was a house of evil repute. The girl was in a family house back of this place, and Mrs. Lake informed the people that she would have them all arrested and prosecuted if they ever put the girl in the house of ill-fame.

Mrs. Lake has since learned that the man who married the girl was sent by the girl's owner to take her away, and that was the only way he could get possession of her.

Free Bible Lecture.

The management of the Young Men's Christian Association has completed arrangements with Rev. George C. Adams, D.D., pastor of the First Congregational Church, to conduct a Bible study class for men and women and Sunday-school workers in general, every Saturday from 12 to 1 P. M. This evening, at 8 o'clock, Rev. M. D. Jefferson, LL.D., dean of Berkeley Bible Seminary, will also give a free lecture at the same place on "The Origin and Growth of the Bible."

IN COLLISION WITH THE CHINA

The Schooner Five Brothers Lost Her Bowsprit and Headgear.

Arrival of the San Diego Gold-Hunters at Copper River in Safety.

Death of Captain Lewis of the Bark Highland Light at Seattle Unexpectedly.

The Pacific Mail Company's City of Para and China both arrived in port yesterday, the Para from Panama and way ports and the China from China, Japan and Hawaii. A few passengers came up from Guatemala, and not one of them will believe that Morales has been beaten. They insist that the fall of the insurgents is only a cannon sent out at the instance of the viceroy of Guatemala, and is sure to succeed in the long run. The republic is under martial law, no one is allowed to discuss the revolution and the wires are in the hands of Barrios. "So what can you expect?" they ask.

The China made the run from Honolulu in 5 days 12 hours 48 minutes. A hot bearing caused a stop of twenty-five minutes during the run. While at anchor off Meigs wharf the ocean liner was run down by the schooner Five Brothers. The latter was coming in from Fishermen's Bay and when abreast of the China she struck her bowsprit and headgear. The schooner missed stays and crashed into the steamer. The latter was not damaged, but the schooner lost her bowsprit and head gear and was otherwise damaged. She was towed to the Mission mud flats.

All formalities have now been complied with and the China is under the Hawaiian flag. That being the case the Barracouta, now plying between Central American ports, will proceed to Honolulu next month to obtain her register. She is now in the same position as the China was, having secured a conditional register in London under similar circumstances to the latter vessel. Both the China and Barracouta flew the British flag.

A dispatch to the Merchants' Exchange from Seattle states that Captain Lewis of the bark Highland Light died early yesterday morning. He deceased was for years master of the bark Carrolton and was well known in every port on the coast.

The south end of Spear-street wharf fell in yesterday morning, with a warning about forty feet of the structure gave way, and a few minutes later portions of it were drifting out with the tide. The work of repairing the damage will begin at once.

The barkentine Portland, which came here from San Diego in ballast, has gone on the drydock for an overhauling. She is to take a load of railroad ties to Peru.

Two peculiar accidents were treated at the City Front Receiving Hospital yesterday. William Osberg, one of the men employed by the Government on Goat Island, was assisting in getting a donkey engine to the top of the hill. One of the wheels began to slip, and Osberg attempted to stop it with his hand. The right index finger was nearly torn off, and he had to be brought to the city on the launch Hazel.

John Drier is a deckhand on the river steamer Modoc and is called "the strongest man on the front." The Modoc was docking at Hathaway's wharf and the Camanche's launch was in the way. Drier attempted to push the small boat away with his foot, but failed, and instead his foot was caught as in a vise and two of the toes were so badly crushed that they may have to be amputated.

The steamer Woodcut arrived from Prince William Sound yesterday after a fair-weather passage. Captain Humphrey reports that the San Diego party of fifteen gold-hunters, headed by ex-Sheriff O'Neil of San Luis Obispo County, bound for Copper River, had arrived at Prince William Sound on September 10, and started up the river the next day. They were all well and cheerful, and told Captain Humphrey that they were bound for richer fields than the Klondike.

People who know Hunter Wallace and Captain Brazg of the sealing schooner Vera well say that both these men have stated positively that they killed three of Professor Jordan's branded seals on the coast of Japan. It will be remembered that the professor holds that the Bering Sea herds never go into Japanese waters. When cornered by revenue officers in Dutch Harbor the story was denied. Now Wallace and Brazg are asserting that their first story was true.

FIFE HAS NO INCOME.

Son-in-Law of the Late Nicholas Luning in Financial Straits.

George S. Fife had an unhappy half hour in Judge Daingerfield's court yesterday morning when Attorney Johnson, representing the late Nicholas Luning's estate, sought to find out why a debt of $1200 is not liquidated. Mr. Fife testified that he lives at 1201 California street with his wife, who pays all the family expenses. She owns the home property, having bought it with money which she received from her father, the late Nicholas Luning.

"You have carriages, servants and quite an establishment, have you not?" asked Mr. Johnson.

"My wife has," was the quiet reply.

Witness explained that he has no business, except to look after his wife's property, for which he receives no compensation. When he wants money he borrows it from his wife. His wife pays all his expenses and he has no income whatever. Some of his jewelry he sold to his brother-in-law, and his fine watch was bought by his wife for $30. He owns only three books; namely, a history of the late War of the Rebellion.

Mr. Fife said he would refuse to answer the question when Johnson stated that if the witness was only a consumer and not a producer, so far as the household was concerned. He also resented the inquiry when Mr. Johnson wanted to know if he merely pretended to possess and own a fine watch, but the court ruled that it was an inquisitorial proceeding, and that the plaintiff had a right to know all about the defendant's circumstances, so Mr. Fife replied that his wife paid for the expenses of the family, including his own tailor's bills. Further hearing will be had next Friday, unless Mr. Fife shall decide to pay the debt.

A Russian Admiral Here.

Vice-Admiral A. Alexieff, for the past two years and a half in command of Russia's Pacific squadron aboard the flagship Rurik, with general headquarters at Vladivostok, arrived here yesterday in the steamship China on his way home to St. Petersburg. He is staying at the Palace Hotel and is accompanied by Captain M. Molias and Lieutenant N. Bakhenieff, both of whom are acting as aids. The retired admiral and his fellow-officers will remain in San Francisco four or five days before resuming their journey eastward. Admiral Alexieff is a man still vigorous of pleasing and affable address and possessed of a typical Russian full beard. Russia's Pacific squadron consists of sixteen vessels.

LET IN THE PITILESS WINDS.

Doors and Windows Removed Because a Widow Couldn't Pay Her Rent.

"I can't realize it. I never thought that there could be such hard-hearted people in the world to impose upon the unfortunate," said Mrs. E. Thorold last night, as she sat in the front room of her residence at 315 Jersey street.

The tears welled up in her eyes and there was a half-smothered sob in her voice. The wind blew a gale and rattled the curtains that were tacked across the openings where the windows should have been. The day before two men, who represented that they were sent by the Sheriff, removed the doors and windows.

"It has been a hard struggle for me to make a living for my children," she continued. "One misfortune followed another, and now my tugboat is in the hands of the Sheriff. I pleaded with my creditors and begged them to give me more time and I would pay all my debts, but they would not. It is just my busy time and I could be making money, but my tug is tied up at the wharf. Because I am two months behind with my rent the doors and windows are taken out of my house."

"There is the picture of my husband," she sobbed, pointing to a crayon on an easel; "it's a wonder his lips remain closed when I am being treated like this. It is very hard," and the poor woman tried to restrain her tears.

And it was hard. Mrs. Thorold lost her husband about four years ago, since which time she has been struggling hard to keep a roof over her five children. The tugboat Ethel and Marion was the only thing that was left her to earn a livelihood, but having a brave heart she soon ventured the little craft and for awhile she did well. She made a brave battle to keep the wolf from the door with only her small hands, but one misfortune after another overtook her until at last her only means of support was taken from her.

Three weeks ago an attachment was placed on the tug for a bill which the owner was unable to pay, on account of an unusually dull season. It was her busiest time, and if allowed to have her boat, Mrs. Thorold declares that she could have paid all her debts.

Two months' rent, amounting to $25, became due, and a week ago the agent of A. M. Speck & Co., the real estate man of whom she rents the house, came to her and demanded a settlement. She promised to pay the following Tuesday, but was taken sick, and when the agent came to take the money to redeem her promise. She told him she was ill, but he said: "That isn't business."

Last Thursday morning the agent came again. There was no one in the house but the two younger children, Mrs. Thorold having gone downtown to make arrangements for getting her tug released. Two men, who drove up in an express wagon, accompanied the agent. They walked up the steps and opened the door of the front door. The names of the children attracted Mrs. McCarthy, who lives across the street. To her inquiries the agent replied that he was going to have the doors painted and the windows made smaller. He then left, and the men proceeded with their work. The neighbor pleaded with them to let the doors and windows remain, but she was insisted upon by the men that they came from the Sheriff's office, and had to obey orders. Mr. Mitchell, another neighbor, also expostulated with the men, but they did not desist until they had taken the doors and windows out of the house and loaded them into the express wagon. They then drove away.

Inquiry at the Sheriff's office elicited the information that the men had not been sent from that office. The Sheriff knew nothing about them.

A. M. Speck, the real estate man, stated that he did not authorize any of his men to remove the doors and windows from Mrs. Thorold's residence.

Kindhearted neighbors have taken the children into the shelter of their homes until their mother can get into another house, which she is now preparing to do.

Representatives of Colleges Throughout the Land Will Be Present.

Representative of institutions of higher education from every State in the Union will clasp the hand of Mrs. Phebe Hearst, regent of the University of California, to-night in cordial congratulation.

The limitations of the Hopkins mansion made it necessary to discriminate in the issuance of invitations, and yet there have been 3000 guests invited to meet the lady regent to-night, and 3000 of the unfortunately overlooked are clamoring for cards of admission.

The State Floral Society Held Its Regular Monthly Meeting Yesterday.

The semi-annual State flower show is to be held on the 19th of this month. This was decided upon at the regular monthly meeting of the California State Floral Society yesterday. The place for holding the show was not chosen, but it was thought that it would be at the rooms of the Board of Trade.

Mrs. M. T. Walker, Mrs. W. H. Smythe and F. A. Miller read papers on "Bulbs." The president of the society informed the members that a local floral society was to be established at Healdsburg.

ARRESTED FOR FELONY.

Otto A. Roos Taken to Antioch by Constable Sweeney.

Otto A. Roos, manager of the Pacific Protective Company at 1200 Battery street, was arrested yesterday on a warrant from Antioch sworn out on two charges of felony. He was taken to Antioch on the 6 o'clock boat yesterday afternoon.

Roos is charged with defrauding a farmer named J. T. Renas, who lives near Antioch, out of seven tons of hay.

MUST GO TO PRISON.

Appeal of C. R. Bennett to the Supreme Court of No Avail.

After Three Years of Litigation the Ex-Secretary Will Visit San Quentin.

The Supreme Court yesterday handed down a decision affirming the judgment of the Superior Court of Alameda County in the case against C. R. Bennett.

Bennett, it will be remembered, is the former secretary of the Society for the Prevention of Vice, who was deposed from his position on account of charges brought against him of improper conduct with Ella Gray, the father of the girl, met Bennett on the cars and took four shots at him. Bennett, shortly after this, returned with a revolver and made an attempt to kill Gray, but missed him. Gray was arrested and is now in San Quentin.

A TALENTED YOUNG OAKLAND ARTIST.

Miss Annie Frances Briggs is one of Oakland's most talented young women. Though still in her twenties she has already made quite a name for herself in the world of art, and is rapidly becoming one of California's foremost artists. Miss Briggs has won prizes wherever she has exhibited, many times competing with the best artists of the State. Among the places she has competed are the State Fair at Sacramento, the Mechanics' Fair in this city and the Industrial Exhibition in Oakland.

Miss Briggs is the daughter of Colonel L. H. Briggs, one of Oakland's most esteemed citizens. The young lady is a very pretty girl, and a general favorite in society. She is a member of the Sketch Club. Though Miss Briggs is both a water-colorist and an oil painter her work in the former class is considered her best, and her picture "The Redwoods" has received high praise all over the State. She has studied under Narjot, Latimer and Keith, the latter declaring her one of his best pupils. Miss Briggs has an ideal studio over in the City of Oaks, where she is seen every day studiously engaged at her chosen profession. On the walls of her retreat are hung the pictures of many of her artist friends. Miss Briggs has expressed her intention of going to Europe, where she will continue her studies under well-known instructors.

HABEAS CORPUS ALL POWERFUL

Joseph J. Ebanks Removed From the Shadow of the Gallows.

Application to the U. S. Court for the Writ Stayed the Execution.

Was to Have Been Hanged Yesterday, but Is Saved by a Legal Technicality.

Yesterday was to have been the last day of life for Joseph Jasper Ebanks, sentenced to be hanged for the murder of a man and a woman near San Diego, but an appeal from an application for a writ of habeas corpus applied for in the United States District Court stayed the hangman.

The application for the writ was filed by Attorney Eugene Deuprey, and it recited the formal complaint that the defendant was never indicted, but was proceeded against by information of the District Attorney. The entire matter was simply a technical snafu for wind, as in the Duran case and as in all other cases that go up since the Federal legal fences have been discovered to be broken down. Under the law there is an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States in all cases where the Federal Judge below refuses, however justly even, to allow the writ.

Notice of the appeal from the refusal to allow the writ was served on Acting Warden Edgar at the office of the Attorney-General, on whose advice the hanging was abandoned.

Ebanks was joyful when he was transferred from the condemned cell to cell 19, which is occupied by a hermit, Chavis. However, the doorman man was quite composed Thursday night and yesterday morning. He slept well throughout the hours of what he believed to be his last night, awoke refreshed yesterday morning and ate a hearty breakfast.

He still talks a great deal about the hereafter and professes religion. To a call reporter he said:

"I have a strong belief in a hereafter and I hope to reach heaven. This has always been my hope and belief. I am innocent of the crime, though the evidence was strong against me. If I were a disinterested party and should read the same evidence that condemned me, woven around some other man, I would believe him guilty. I do not blame people for thinking me guilty, especially since the gun which I owned was found a few rods from the scene of the murder. I am trying to meet my maker with courage, for I believe there is a sure way to a happier land."

A newspaper reporter suggested that there might be some question as to the certainty of a hereafter, whereupon Ebanks said: "If you would pay less attention to your newspaper business and more to your Bible you would believe in a future life."

But the condemned man has little hope of escaping the gallows for a long time. He says he dreads dying most on account of his wife and children. He thinks a fair hearing of his case might result in an acquittal, but he does not believe the law will grant him such an appeal as will allow all the facts.

rested and on trial was acquitted. Bennett was arraigned on the charge of assault with intent to commit murder, but the jury brought in a verdict on the lesser charge—guilty of assault with a deadly weapon.

On motion of the defense a new trial was granted, and a verdict was rendered finding him guilty of attempt to commit murder. A new trial was again granted the defendant, but on appeal to the Supreme Court by the people the order for a new trial was reversed and the lower court sentenced Bennett to imprisonment in the penitentiary.
