Frank Coursen Has a Hard Battle With a Footpad.

SAD PLIGHT OF A CLERK.

Falls Asleep and is Relieved of his Valuables by a Chinese Thief.

Frank Coursen, a clerk, had a desperate encounter with a footpad late Saturday night. Coursen was walking along Pine street, and when near Mason, he was accosted by an evil-looking stranger, who pretended to be acquainted with him. Convinced that he intended to assault him Coursen started to walk away, when the robber seized him by the throat and threatened to strangle him if he made an outcry. Coursen, realizing he was in the hands of a desperate man, determined to make a fight. Breaking the hold which the robber had on his throat Coursen struck him a blow in the face. The desperate stranger at once drew a slung-shot and struck Coursen across the left cheek, cutting a deep gash. The force of the blow knocked him down, and while lying prostrate, the robber proceeded to search his pockets. Determined to prevent him from robbing him Coursen lustily fought for his valuables. Evidently fearing arrest, the robber left his victim and ran down Pine street. Coursen subsequently appeared at police headquarters, where he told the story of the robbery to Captain Wittman. After his statement was taken he was escorted to the Receiving Hospital, where the wound in his cheek was dressed by Dr. Thompson. He described his assailant as being about 40 years of age and rather shabbily dressed. He wore a dark slouch hat, which was pulled down over his eyes.

An old man named M. Costello, living at 287 Twen-first street, was attacked by several men at Twenty-first and Dolores streets at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, and after being beaten into insensibility was robbed of $150. Costello received a severe scalp wound, which was dressed at the Receiving Hospital.

John O'Brien, who lives in Oakland, complained to the police last evening that he was held up by two men on the sidewalk at Pine and Jones streets late Saturday night. A citizen who was passing at the time saw a Chinese in the act of going through his pockets, and before the latter arrived, Wallace was arrested on a charge of drunkenness and locked up at the city jail. After being released, he claimed he had been robbed of a gold watch and chain and a small amount in money. Last night he visited police headquarters and gave Chief Lees a description of the stolen property.

"Recognition in the Charter or Defeat" Their Ultimatum.

Temporary Organization Effected and Various Committees Appointed.

P. H. McCarthy Outlines the Plan of the Approaching Campaign—Tribute to a Friend.

The labor unions of this city want some notice taken of them in the proposed new charter. In fact, they are desirous of considerable notice and if they don't get it they intend to do their best to defeat the purpose of others who are eager for its adoption. They have so announced themselves. In the language of one of their speakers, "We have come to stay."

The Clerk of the Chief of Police Passes Away After a Long and Painful Illness.

Captain Henry S. Healey, clerk to the Chief of Police, died last night after a short illness. Healey was one of the most popular men in the department. Always courteous and kind, he endeared himself to everybody with whom he came in contact. Captain Spillane was perhaps his warmest friend. When young men they served in the army, Healey occupying a responsible position. In all probability Sergeant Cassius Wright will succeed the late captain. Wright enjoys the confidence of Chief Fines and the members of the Police Commission, and is highly regarded by every man connected with the department. Since Healey was taken ill Wright has been acting in his place. The appointment of the late captain's successor will be made at the meeting of the Commissioners which will be held next Wednesday night.

ROSETTE TOOK THE MONEY

The Famous Santa Clara Puppy Shows Her Mettle at Ingleside.

Fleet Diana Easily Won the Purse in the Consolation Stake.

A Large and Interested Crowd Looked On and Played its Coin.

Although it was cold and bleak at the Ingleside coursing grounds yesterday a large crowd visited the park to witness the card drawn up for the all-age and consolation stakes. As a rule the long-enders carried away the money, but two or three neglected hounds surprised the talent in a very decided way. Tod Sloan, who is nearly always looked upon as a slow dog, walked off with short money, winning at 4 to 6. The Eclipse ran a bye with Duke of Oak Grove and was beaten with the pools selling at 5 to 3.

MINISTERS IN THE JUBILEE

The Theme Chosen by Two Divines of This City.

What Revs. Locke and Ford Have to Say Regarding the Subject.

Rev. Frank S. Ford, at the First Christian Church, was inspired by the Jubilee for his theme. He spoke as follows:

The laws of the Jubilee are given in Leviticus 25:39-45. They are that it should be celebrated every seventh year, beginning on the tenth day of the seventh month; that at the beginning of this year all Israelites who had become slaves should go free; that during this year the land should be left fallow; that all unredeemed land, houses in the country and villages, and also Levitical houses in the city should, at the beginning of this year, be restored to their original owners.

That "the earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof" and that we are tenants in the things that we think we possess; that we are dependent on God and because of this dependence are under certain obligations to him is suggested both in the fact and in the requirements of the Jubilee. It bears in itself its evidence of divinity. That any legislator would have ventured to propose such a law, except upon the full conviction that both sides of a peculiar providence would constantly facilitate its execution, is incredible. The mosaic law and the evidence of Moses' divine mission are coeval. The very existence of the law is therefore a monument that Moses spoke from God. Its history through many stormy centuries is an assurance to us that what he has said he is able to accomplish. He knows all about this earth—He created it. He knows all about the laws of providence that govern it. He knows all about us and our possibilities. He knows all we stand in his word we know of the end.

As far as legislation could go the Jubilee tended to restore the equality which existed in the first allotment by Joshua. But as a part of the divine law appointed for the chosen people, its practical bearing was to vindicate the right of each Israelite to his part in the covenant of his fathers.

Dr. Charles Edward Locke, pastor of the Central Methodist Church, preached last evening on the subject of "A Motto from Our Golden Jubilee." He spoke as follows:

CITY HALL DOME WORK WAS SKIPPED

Some of the Specifications Not Carried Out.

Auditor and Mayor Explain Away Apparent Manipulations.

Grand Juror O'Sullivan's Charges Not Regarded as Very Serious.

PLANS WERE CHANGED.

There May Be Legal Questions as to Whether Alterations Were Proper.

The charges made against the contractors who built the New City Hall dome were the talk of the city yesterday, especially in political circles. It seemed to be the general opinion that if Grand Juror Daniel O'Sullivan was correct in his minority report there ought to be a number of indictments by the present Grand Jury.

County Clerk Curry did not care to express any opinion except that he was well acquainted with O'Sullivan and thought he was a good man. He thought it was rather late to make the charges, however, and felt that there must be some great mistake in the whole matter.

"If O'Sullivan is correct," said Auditor Broderick, "he ought to have called Grand Jury indicted by the new one. I take no stock in the charges. It was the duty of the commissioners to examine all the work and pass on it. I can say in general that the city never lost a cent in all that contract. It may be true that all the specifications were not carried out, but wherever there was an omission there was a substitution of an equal amount of work in some other department of the contract. O'Sullivan was angry because he did not get some plastering contract and half of what he says is evidently the result of malice and spite. The charges are ridiculous all through."

Mayor Phelan said: "While all this took place before I came into office I understand there was an exchange of work. Things which the commissioners considered unnecessary were omitted and other more pressing things were done. I do not know all the details of the work, but it is my general understanding that the city profited by the changes. I am not passing on the legality of what the commissioners did. I do not know whether they had the right to make the changes and substitutions in the work. That is a matter for the lawyers to settle, but the case is not as raw as the story of O'Sullivan makes it."
