PIGMIES OF THE PERU AMAZON

Discovery Made by a Traveler From Boston.

Strange Race Which Is Evidently of Indian Descent.

Ugly in Shape and Too Lazy to Do More Than Hunt and Gorge.

THE MEN ARE WARRIORS.

To the Number of Ten or Fifteen Thousand They Roam the Rio Negro Country.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—A Boston man just returned from South America has brought a marvelous tale of the discovery of a race of pigmies inhabiting the valley of the Amazon.

He has not only seen them, but stayed in their villages, entered their houses, sat about their camp fires, been with them on the hunt and witnessed some of their religious ceremonies.

Eben J. Sullivan, for months accompanied only by natives, rowed up the mighty Amazon and the tributaries in a dugout canoe. In this way he penetrated to the headwaters of the Rio Negro, where he came upon a nomadic race of pigmies.

R. G. Halliburton of Boston, fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, one of the best authorities in the world on pigmy races, thinks a of the greatest value to anthropologists to have the tradition of pigmy races in South America, recorded by Humboldt in the first years of this century, so strikingly verified.

They are very ugly in shape; their stomach, which is distended in the back as well as front, is big and out of all proportion to their bodies.

"Curiously enough, they appear to be metal-workers and tip their darts with bits of hardened iron or steel made from native ores.

In September, 1857, the administrators of the estate made a demand on Moran for this amount, but with the exception of $635 34, which he paid before the settlement of the account, he refused to pay the shortage.

Mrs. Plyler, who was next called, testified that her husband was the only person she recognized, that she was too busy trying to get out of the room to bother about seeing who the other men were.

Mr. Major testified that the defendant said he had been in the house in which were Harris and Mrs. Plyler.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—It seems that the litigation over the estate of the late Bridget Wilson is about to come to a close.

When Bridget Wilson died leaving a large amount of valuable real estate in this city and cutting off her husband, John Wilson, with practically nothing, a will contest resulted.

It seems that in January of last year Mahoney and Gormley entered into an agreement whereby Gormley rented Mahoney's house in Larkspur for three months at the month rent of $20.

Injury to Young Trees Is More Than Offset by Riddance of the Pests.

Violent Windstorm Visits Petaluma. Southern California Weekly Crop Bulletin.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

FRESNO, Jan. 26.—Last night the heaviest frost of the year, which has been a particularly cold one, was felt in this vicinity, but the vineyardists and fruit growers, instead of taking into account the damage done to the trees and vines, are rejoicing, as the heavy frost is said to have rid the county of the thrip or the vine hopper, which has been doing an incalculable injury to the vines.

A singular thing about the pest is that they seem to resurrect, but the vineyardists believe they are all thoroughly dead after last night's cold spell.
