

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Up to the close of office hours the State Department had not heard from Mr. Woodford. Under the peculiar circumstances existing the ceremonies attending the departure of the Spanish Minister are in doubt. It is usual when a foreign representative leaves the country for him to be received in formal audience at the White House, when an exchange of well wishes takes place between him and the President. It is hardly expected that this formality will be observed in the present case, owing to the personal aspects of the incident.

THE SPANISH PRESS IN HOSTILE MOOD.

They Think the Government at Madrid Should Not Have Recalled De Lome. MADRID, Feb. 10.—The candidature of Senor Muruga to succeed Senor de Lome has been abandoned. The Government maintains its reserve, desiring to secure the approval of Washington, according to diplomatic custom, before appointing Senor de Lome's successor.

THE LONDON PRESS GENERALLY UNFRIENDLY.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The New York correspondent of the Daily News says: "Senor de Lome was sometimes troublesome on account of his disposition to assume a high manner over Cuban affairs, but he usually subsided when he found it unsuccessful. A less tactful successor may precipitate a crisis, for the situation is full of dangerous elements, but trouble may be averted if President McKinley holds the affair completely in his own hands."

Special Dispatch to The Call.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 10.—The National Assembly of the League of American Wheelmen got down to business today. The reports of the officers and standing committees were promptly adopted, and the assembly proceeded to the election of officers.

The following officers were elected without much opposition: President, Isaac Potter of New York; first vice-president, Thomas J. Keenan of Pennsylvania; second vice-president, E. N. Hines; treasurer, James C. Tattersall of New Jersey.

The afternoon session was given up to the consideration and disposal of miscellaneous business and the final discussion of amendments to the constitution and bylaws.

Invitations were received on behalf of Philadelphia and Providence, R. I., for the national assembly to hold its next convention in 1899, in one or the other of those cities. Providence was chosen by a large majority.

Racing at New Orleans. NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 10.—After a long and varied career on the flat Evanatus was tried at the hurdles to-day and refused the first jump. The track was fast and the weather fair. Aunt Maggie and Charles H. Jackson, the representatives of the Attorney-General in Sacramento, are both sanguine of their principal's ultimate victory.

The Congressional contest in the Second District brought out Judge J. M. Walling of Nevada City, and his great strength is conceded by all. The Record-Union says editorially:

Judge J. M. Walling of Nevada City withdrew from the Republican nomination for Congressman for the Second District. Judge Walling is a strong man, extremely popular in the mining counties and thoroughly acceptable to the agricultural portions of the district. He was department commander of the Grand Army in California last year, and a leading figure in the mining and agricultural counties, which go to make up the Second Congressional District, will certainly insure the election of Judge Walling.

Hon. E. C. Voorhes, State Senator from Amador and Calaveras, has been urged by his many friends to accept the nomination for Governor, but he declines, and in speaking to the representative of The Call said: "My mining interests are such as to absolutely preclude every possibility of my becoming a candidate for any office. I could not under any circumstances be persuaded to accept any office of a public nature."

Jacob H. Neff of Placer County is being urged by his many friends to accept the nomination for Governor, but he declines, and in speaking to the representative of The Call said: "My mining interests are such as to absolutely preclude every possibility of my becoming a candidate for any office. I could not under any circumstances be persuaded to accept any office of a public nature."

The Republic are not alone in preparing for the fray, which will be on us before we know it, provided the Supreme Court sustains the enactment of the Stratton primary law.

The Bryan Silver-Republican, Democrat and Populist aggregation had a meeting last night, and arranged for the firing of the first gun. Hon. C. A. Towne, ex-Congressman from Minnesota, is going to touch it off on the 24th day of February, provided sufficient funds can be collected to buy the powder and hire a hall.

In the way of local matters things are moving along smoothly, with Mayor Land and the trustees throwing bouquets at one another, and at the same time giving Sacramento a promise of the best administration the capital city has ever had.

POINTING ON THE SHAMER CALLED TO HIS GATE AND SHOT

Attempt to Assassinate a Rancher Near Gila Bend.

One Shot Misses, but a Second Terribly Lacerates the Man's Hand.

The Victim Suspected of Stealing Cattle and Burning Neighbors' Homes.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

GILA BEND, Ariz., Feb. 10.—This morning about daylight an attempt was made to assassinate Josiah Anderson, a well-known rancher living several miles from this place. A masked and mounted stranger called Anderson to his gate and fired two loads from a shotgun point blank at him. Almost miraculously Anderson escaped with his life. One of the shots went wild, the other dreadfully shattering Anderson's hand.

The assailed man lately achieved more than local notoriety in connection with a theft of cattle from the ranch of a neighbor. The charges, which are now pending in the District Court, have aroused the most intense bitterness. Another incident supposed to have connection with the same affair was the incendiary firing, last night, of the dwelling and stable of Frank D. Hazzard and the home of Mrs. S. E. Hazzard. All three buildings were destroyed.

The announcement in the Oakland Tribune to the effect that L. H. Brown had retired from the fight for Governor has resulted in a lively movement in that direction on the part of his Sacramento friends and supporters.

Mrs. L. H. Brown, in speaking of the report, made the following statement to The Call correspondent to-day: "You may say positively that such a report has no foundation in truth. In fact, Mr. Brown is now actively engaged in mapping out and planning his campaign. The attending physicians have advised me to the effect that should Mr. Brown now take their advice and retire from the contest, it would be a trip south. I have received several letters making inquiries concerning the report in the Oakland paper, and you can say for Mr. Brown that the thought of retiring from the fight has never entered his head, and in a short time he will be taking up matters pertaining to the contest with his old-time vigor and energy."

While nothing of a positive nature could be gathered at the office of the Attorney-General, C. S. Post and Charles H. Jackson, the representatives of the Attorney-General in Sacramento, are both sanguine of their principal's ultimate victory.

ONE OFFICER NOT AFRAID TO TESTIFY

General Peilleux then indulged in an outburst against Colonel Picquart, whom he accused of divulging an espionage affair to an outsider, claiming "such conduct is shameful." Referring to the bordereau, the general declared that the alleged fact similes published were all fictitious. As to the compromising letter sent to Major Esterhazy, which might raise suspicion that he had shady relations with a foreign agent, General Peilleux said: "It is inconceivable that any one could be so naive as to employ this method of correspondence in a matter of such gravity." General Peilleux here expressed indignation at the "inexcusable action of Colonel Picquart in having Esterhazy's rooms burglarized without authority of any kind."

"Colonel Picquart admitted this," the witness continued, "and when the court-martial acquitted the Count Esterhazy I was not astonished. I was proud of having contributed to the acquittal of Esterhazy, which proves that in the French army there are not two traitors, but one traitor."

General Peilleux was about to refer to the Dreyfus case when the presiding judge gently interposed his usual veto.

M. Dupuy, the former Premier, was recalled and M. Laborie began to question him regarding the case of Dreyfus, which the presiding judge vetoed, whereupon M. Laborie announced that he would throw up the examination of M. Dupuy and other former Ministers, as the ruling of the presiding judge made it fruitless.

M. Thevenet, a former Minister of Justice, who was next examined, said he could easily understand why M. Zola was exercised by the "velled lady" question. M. Zola, he added, had acted in good faith, for complete truth had not been thrown on this matter and M. Zola was not the only troubled mind. M. Thivenet expressed satisfaction at the verdict of the court-martial, which, he said, proved there was no traitor in the French army, but he "boldly insisted" that complete light had not been cast upon this grave affair, which, he added, interested the whole of Europe. He further expressed regret that the Government had not spoken in order to restore tranquility for the country. Continuing, M. Thevenet said he was astonished that the witnesses, instead of giving an open testimony, should take refuge behind "professional secrecy."

M. Salle, a lawyer, followed M. Thevenet on the witness stand. The presiding judge refused to allow questions to be put to him concerning the Dreyfus case, and a heated discussion between the Judge and M. Laborie ensued. The latter asked for a short adjournment in order to draw up a formal application that these questions be allowed.

When the hearing was resumed M. Laborie submitted the application referred to. M. Clemenceau, counsel for the accused, supported the application in a skillful manner. The former asked that a formal notice be taken of the fact that M. Salle, on the witness stand, "has not denied that he was aware, though a member of the court-martial, that a secret document was submitted to the court-martial."

The court refused both applications, but M. Clemenceau, by his expedient of reading a question in the form of an application, practically obtained what he wanted. The court then adjourned.

There was some demonstration on the streets to-night, but nothing serious occurred. After each day's proceedings a report of the case is telegraphed to Emperor William.

which I propose to establish you as an independent sovereign.

Fourth—My plan is to successively occupy all the islands, leaving the capital till the last. When others have fallen the city will be left with all resources, will be easily taken, and may even very likely fall without a fight. I do not expect in any case to have to fortify myself or to take the defensive or to have to issue a call to arms, but I shall have an overwhelming force to join me also, in addition to those who go with me, and by themselves will be sufficient to carry everything before them without active co-operation from people here.

Fifth—The Government forces consist of about 150 men and boys, with very imperfect military training, and of whom about forty are officers. They are organized in a regular manner, and are also about six hundred citizens enrolled as a civil guard who may also be called in case of an emergency, and about 150 police.

We can fully rely upon the assistance of all the police and from a quarter to half of the troops; and of the remainder many will, under the circumstances, engage in a sharp fight in defense of the present Government. There are now on the island plenty of men and arms to accomplish our purpose, and if my expedition does not get off very soon the people there will be organized to do the work without assistance from here, other than the appointment of a few leaders, which they stand more in need than anything else.

Sixth—The tonnage of the vessel is 148. She at present has berth room for twenty men, but a bunk room can be arranged in the hold for 25 more, with provision for ample ventilation. She has one complete set of sails and two extra spars. The remaining information as to her I will have to obtain and send you to-morrow. I think it must be clear to you that the opportunity now offers you will be of ample proportion greater value at once than Trinidad would ever be. Still hoping that I may have an interview at an early day, respectfully yours,

RALSTON J. MARKOE.

There were also papers showing that he had once been possessed of large estates in the Republic of Mexico. Among the newspaper clippings was an account of his marriage in New York City three years ago by Rev. John Hall to Anna Flagner, daughter of the Standard Oil magnate.

That the Baron had only followed his own teachings in ending his life by poison was evidenced by a book of which he was the author entitled "Euthania; or, the Ethics of Suicide."

Baron Harden Hickey was the first of the royal dynasty of Trinidad. He was born in San Francisco December 8, 1854, of a Catholic and old royalist family. His ancestors, the Hickeys, originally came from Ireland, having accompanied the banished royal Stuarts of England in their flight to France. The young baron was educated at the college of Jesuits at Namur, and afterward at Leipzig. Here he established a reputation as a first-class and fearless duelist. When 19 years of age he entered the French military college at St. Cyr, but he abandoned a martial life on the death of his father in 1873, and devoted his life to sculpture and literary pursuits.

His talents first found recognition in the shape of translations for English magazines, but he also wrote quite a number of works in his native language. In 1875 the irrepressible writer started a weekly satirical paper in Paris called "La Tribuna," which landed him in constant tribulation. It was devoted to the interests of the royalists, and its editor, the baron, made 114 appearances in the police courts, paid fines amounting to 300,000 francs, and fought no less than a dozen duels. Among his antagonists were Aurelian, Scholt, A. Lavertujon, Taine and De Cyon. He was eventually compelled to leave France, going to England.

The baron was thoroughly conversant with the Sanskrit language, and after studying its literature, determined to propagate the religion of Buddha throughout the United States. In the meantime he met and married Miss Anna Flagner, the daughter of the Standard Oil magnate, and gave up his intentions in that direction. He then set about starting a new kingdom on the island of Trinidad, but the revolution in Brazil interfered with his plans.

The enterprising Baron claimed to have hit upon the last bit of habitable earth upon the surface of the globe capable of supporting a considerable population which escaped the grabbing greed of the annexation passion of the powers that be, and he proposed to make it a little power to itself. The territory which was thus about to be raised to the proud eminence of independent nationality is a little island which pokes its nose out of the bed of the South Atlantic Ocean about latitude 20 degrees 30 minutes south and longitude 29 degrees 22 minutes west, which everybody knows is 700 miles off the coast of Brazil, at the point where stands the town of Victoria. Being compelled to abandon his kingdom before it was born, the Baron then became a soldier of fortune.

LOS ANGELES' WATER FIGHT

City Council Committee to Inspect Sources of Supply.

A Bone of Contention May Lead to Endless Litigation.

The Syndicated Press Still Working for the Corporation and Against the People.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—The City Council committee on mountain water supply will in a few days start out to personally investigate the various sources of supply which have been offered. Chairman Gridley says the trip would have been made before had the recent rain not interfered.

"We are waiting also," said he, "for Chairman Hazard to announce his steering committee, so that we can consult with those gentlemen and learn what is best to be done."

The general opinion is that the property known as Crystal Springs will be included in the schedule inventory which the water company will return to the Council. It is upon this item that the water company and the city will never agree, as the city claims the alleged springs to be nothing more or less than a part and parcel of the Los Angeles River, to which the city's title has been granted by the courts.

In this connection the real actions of the water company become apparent.
