

QUALITY PARTY

LOYAL MEN SELECT THE NOMINEES

Good Work in the Second Day's Session of the Convention.

Enthusiasm and Earnestness Characterized the Proceedings and Harmony Prevalled.

CALL HEADQUARTERS, SACRAMENTO, Aug. 24.—The Republican delegates and onlookers were favored with another fearful day.

At 9:45 Chairman Neff directed the convention to come to order. A report was at once called for from the committee on credentials. A member of the committee announced that the report was not quite ready, but would be in shape for submission within a few minutes. The chair declared a recess of ten minutes.

On the platform, occupying the velvet cushions in the rear of the chairman, were Major Frank McLaughlin, General W. H. Barnes, George C. Knight, Timothy Guy Phelps, Paris Kilburn, Frank Powers, Colonel John P. Jackson, Collector of the Port of San Francisco, and Mr. H. Higgins. The array of metropolitan talent challenged the admiration of spectators.

When the chair again commanded order, Mr. Hocking, chairman of the committee on credentials, presented a report, as follows:

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 24, 1898. To the Chairman and Members of the Republican State Convention—Gentlemen: Your committee on credentials has the honor to report as follows: Three contests were presented for your consideration, viz: First—Involving seat of the Port of San Francisco, and Mr. H. Higgins, regularly elected by the voters of the county, and Mr. J. P. Jackson, Collector of the Port of San Francisco, who was elected by the voters of the city of San Francisco. Second—Involving seat of the Port of San Francisco, and Mr. H. Higgins, regularly elected by the voters of the county, and Mr. J. P. Jackson, Collector of the Port of San Francisco, who was elected by the voters of the city of San Francisco. Third—Involving seat in the State Legislature.

MAX GOLDBERG, Hocking, Chairman. The report was readily adopted on motion of H. P. Sonntag of San Francisco.

Grove L. Johnson, from the committee on permanent organization and order of business, read the report of that committee. The report was published in the Call to-day. Mr. Johnson moved the adoption of the report. Carried.

Reuben H. Lloyd of San Francisco, chairman of the platform committee, sent word that twenty minutes more time would be required to complete the work on the resolutions. Chairman Neff decided that another recess would not be advisable. He judged that the convention would be glad to hear from the eloquent orators of the party who were then lined up on the stage. The suggestion elicited instant applause, and thereupon the chair named General Barnes as the first speaker to fill in the waiting time, and asked that three cheers be given to the orator.

As General Barnes stepped forward to address the convention, the delegates gave him the compliment of three rousing rounds of spoken applause. The sentiments of the orator in favor of returning Supreme Justice W. C. Van Fleet, Named to Succeed Himself.

Mr. Knight word came to the chairman that the committee on platform and resolution would not be ready to report before 1 o'clock p. m. In order to give the greatest possible chance to dispose of the work in hand the main convention, on motion of E. C. Hart of Sacramento, took a recess until 10:30 a. m.

The afternoon session of the convention was enlivened by a scrap in the San Francisco delegation. These words of a little dispute between Alex Truman and Charles Morris, delegates from the Thirty-eighth District, were regarded as the war with McGowan for Lieutenant Governor. Blows were exchanged in which Truman landed first on his adversary. The convention did not expect to see this illustration of metropolitan methods of adjusting differences and order was not restored until the chairman rapped with great vigor. The combatants later in the session shook hands and resumed friendly relations.

Chairman Neff rapped the convention to order at 1:30. He announced that Reuben H. Lloyd of San Francisco, chairman of the committee on resolutions, was ready to report, but Mr. Lloyd did not appear as advertised. There was another long wait for him. Delegates called "time," "time," and "Knight." The day wore on and Knight came not.

To draw the impatient audience Chairman Neff stated that Mr. Lloyd, who had been working steadily on the platform all night and morning, was taking lunch in order to obtain strength to read the resolutions. Failing to bring on Knight, who was again called for, cries went up for "Eddy," "Col. Eddy," "T. V. Eddy." Responding to repeated applause Colonel Eddy stepped on the platform and made a speech, which entertained the vast audience assembled in the pavilion.

Chairman Neff, as a compliment to a leader, invited to the platform Colonel George Stone, president of the State League of Republican Clubs. Colonel Stone received applause as he ascended the steps to the stage, but did not make a speech.

Mr. Lloyd at length came. Pleading hoarseness, he asked the secretary, Frank D. Ryan, to read the platform. As the reading progressed, signals of approval greeted the frequent allusions to the achievements of the army and navy in the war with Spain. The name of President McKinley was cheered. Declarations in favor of retaining the conquered territory of Porto Rico and the Philippines evoked applause. Commendation of Senator Perkins and Representatives Loud, Barham and Ellison for supporting the annexation of Hawaii was given by the audience. The centure of Senator White and Representative Maguire was applauded.

The paragraph concerning Maguire for accusing the Americans of piracy in seizing Spanish ships was heartily cheered. The denunciation of single tax schemes advocated by Maguire elicited hearty applause. The plank urging the early construction of the Nicaragua canal was hailed with cheers. Many other salient points in the platform commanded the attention of the assembled delegates.

The report of the committee was on motion of Mr. Lloyd adopted. The way was now clear for the transaction of the real business of the convention and the announcement of Chairman Neff that nominations for Governor were in order was received with delight. It was ruled that the roll of counties should be called and each county having a candidate should present his name.

Judge B. McFarland, of San Francisco, by sending to the platform Timothy Guy Phelps of San Mateo, who delivered a speech of great character and force, in which he presented the merits of George C. Pardee. The Alameda delegation responded to the eulogy of the doctor in a brave manner.

When Los Angeles was called, Frank F. Davis went to the platform and made a clearest address, reciting the traits and accomplishments of Henry T. Gage. Mr. Davis is an apostle of the modern school of oratory. He does not seek to play on the emotions, but addresses his remarks to the judgment of his listeners.

The nomination of Gage was seconded by C. H. Stuart of San Diego, C. W. Seaman of Los Angeles, Judge Short of Fresno, Frank H. Powers of San Francisco and A. B. Lemmon of Sonoma. Tributes to the worth of Dr. Pardee were spoken by Frank J. Solinsky of Calaveras and P. M. Fisher. Great enthusiasm was excited, rising in their places and cheering when George C. Pardee arose and walked toward the platform.

His commanding figure and superb bearing excited the admiration of all beholders. The audience was eager to hear what he had to say, anticipating that he would declare his purpose with a draw. There was not a trace of bitterness or regret in the utterances of the doctor. He withdrew from the contest in the most graceful style and gained the friendship of a host of Republicans. Cheers, prolonged and repeated, hailed the loyal declarations of the retiring candidate.

B. Daniels, on behalf of the Alameda delegation, then gained the recognition of the chairman and moved that Henry T. Gage be nominated by acclamation. The chairman of the convention responded. The applause was tumultuous. When order was restored E. F. Preston of San Francisco suggested that the chairman of the law required the ballot of the convention to be cast. The secretary was directed to perform this function, but the further point was raised that the secretary was not a member of the convention. To keep the record clear and the proceedings in due form Mr. Preston was directed to cast the vote.

He made the simple announcement: "I cast 788 votes for Henry T. Gage of Los Angeles." Chairman Neff then declared Henry T. Gage to be the nominee of the convention for Governor.

Pardee, E. F. Preston and L. H. Brown were assigned to the duty of escorting the nominee to the platform. The remaining proceedings were here diversified by the advent of the Alameda rosters, headed by their leader, William Flanders. They bore the banner of Ala-ameda County, and created a fine sentiment in the convention. They were cheered to the echo when they stood in the center aisle, waving the campaign banner as revised to meet the new situation.

Frank Marston of San Francisco seconded the nomination of Mr. Curry. R. S. Taylor said, "Siskiyou gives out her sympathy to Santa Clara and seconded the nomination of Paul Austin."

William Friend of Alameda, bedecked with the badges of all the candidates, seconded the nomination of Paul Austin. Great applause greeted Mr. Friend's oratorical efforts. No other candidates were named and the contest went along with quick cheering as each candidate received the vote of some important delegation.

The casting of 126 votes of San Francisco for Curry put that candidate far ahead. After Santa Clara voted for Austin and the Santa Clara delegation, moved that Mr. Curry's nomination be made unanimous. The motion prevailed.

Chairman Neff announced that 788 votes had been cast for Curry, and declared him the nominee of the convention for Secretary of State. When the motion to declare the choice unanimous was made there had been called for Curry 482, and for Austin 173 votes. The convention adjourned until 9:30 a. m. to-morrow.

The convention was called to order by Chairman Neff at 9:45 o'clock a. m. The chair—The first business in order is the report of the committee on credentials. A member of the committee announced that the report on credentials was not ready to report, but would be ready in about ten minutes, whereupon recess was

Alameda County 'll vote for Gage For Governor of the State. For she's chuck full of Republicans. And he's the famous banner. And with Pardee, wise and sage. We'll find you on the page. His name as Governor Of Call—form— (My Baby.)

ALAMEDA COUNTY'S HOT TIME.

Now we've picked out Gage for winner. Just you watch the voters' pop. From that 'use and Maguire, the man who's the Pop. Why, they'll never know what struck them in their gubernatorial rage. As they follow the procession After Governor Gage. (Chorus.)

With our banner brightly waving. And make Henry Gage our Governor— A straight Republican. A straight Republican ends. We are sure you will agree To lead our hosts to glory For Governor Pardee. (Chorus.)

Hurrah for Gage! Hurrah for Pardee! Hurrah for the Young Men's Republican League! "Pondankies!"

Alameda's example of courage and devotion to Republican principles in the hour of disappointment was recognized by all.

An announcement was made that a great Gage demonstration would be held at the Macdonough Theatre, Alameda, Republican county of the State.

Mr. Gage was received by the audience rising and cheering. He was introduced by Chairman Neff, and made a speech thanking the convention for the high honor conferred upon him.

Nominations for Lieutenant Governor were next in order. Chairman Neff left his place in the chair and H. Z. Osborne, H. Munroe of Humboldt named Thomas H. Selva of that county as a candidate. Mr. Selva of San Francisco placed in nomination Jacob H. Neff.

George A. Knight of San Francisco, in his speech, in which he declared the time was opportune for breaking the program, placed in nomination Frank McGowan for the platform and "hurled back" Knight's insinuation that the San Francisco delegation was programmed for Neff.

E. F. Preston seconded the nomination of Jacob Neff in a ringing speech which gained great applause.

Frank McGowan went to the platform and spoke in words promising to serve the State to the best of his ability chosen to fill the office. Many of the delegates fancied that McGowan was going forward to withdraw from the field, and were a little surprised at the speech.

The roll call had progressed nearly to the finish and when over 450 votes had been recorded for Mr. Neff, George A. Knight on motion of Selva and McGowan, moved to make Mr. Neff's choice unanimous. The motion prevailed amid cheering.

Jacob Hart Neff was called for, and his appearance on the platform was a signal for another demonstration of enthusiasm. He graciously accepted the honor bestowed, but did not retard the convention with a set speech.

The convention adjourned to meet at 8 o'clock. The delegates assembled for the evening session with commendable alacrity. The convention was called to order by Chairman Neff. On motion of C. F. Lacey of Monterey, nominating speeches were limited to five minutes, and seconding speeches to two minutes.

Judicial nominations were declared in order. The roll of counties was called, by E. A. Meserve. He came forward and presented the name of Judge J. C. Lacey for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

T. B. Hutchinson of Napa put before the convention the name of A. J. Buckles of Contra Costa County. The speech, depicting the heroism of Judge Buckles on the field of battle where he lost a leg, won from the audience a ringing applause.

General E. S. Salomon of San Francisco seconded the nomination of Judge Buckles.

S. Webb of Plumas placed in the field Stanton A. Smith of Sierra County. E. D. Seward of Sierra seconded the nomination of Judge Smith.

Charles T. Jones of Sacramento named for the consideration of the convention Judge B. McFarland of San Francisco. Paterson of San Francisco seconded the nomination of McFarland. The delegates listened with marked attention to his speech and gave Mr. Paterson three cheers.

A. L. Hart of San Francisco also seconded the nomination of McFarland. George A. Knight went to the platform when San Francisco was called, and announced by nominating Judge W. C. Van Fleet. Mr. Knight's appearance was the signal for an outburst of applause. His eulogy of San Francisco was a masterpiece of oratory.

C. H. Hart of Sacramento seconded the nomination of W. C. Van Fleet. Frank F. Davis of Fresno spoke in behalf of Judge Van Fleet.

John F. Davis of Amador spoke of the judiciary as the balance wheel. He asked the convention to make no mistake in judicial nominations. He eulogized W. C. Van Fleet as a lawyer of fine ability and a noble character.

Captain Matlock of Tehama placed in nomination John F. Ellison of that county. He said that a generation had come and gone since Northern California had a place on the Supreme Court of California. Matlock kept the convention in a roar of laughter. He made the only witty speech of the week, and when he closed, the Pavilion rang with cheers.

Charles A. Pardee of San Francisco added a few words in commendation of Judge Ellison.

Orestes Orr of Ventura brought to the attention of the convention the name of Southern California for representation in the Supreme Court. He placed in nomination Judge Benjamin F. Williams of Ventura County for Associate Justice.

E. Severin of Humboldt seconded the nomination of Judge Williams. The chair announced that the delegates should vote for two candidates. The first ballot resulted: Van Fleet, 52; McFarland, 47; Buckles, 14; Ellison, 85; Williams, 104; Smith, 27; Clarke, 14.

The chair announced that Van Fleet and McFarland were the nominees of the convention. A motion to make unanimous the nominations of Van Fleet and McFarland was carried.

CONVENTION DELEGATES AT THEIR COUNCILS BRILLIANT ORATIONS ENLIVEN THE PROCEEDINGS.

A Complete Report of the Important Work Accomplished by Republicans at the Capital City.

The convention was called to order by Chairman Neff at 9:45 o'clock a. m. The chair—The first business in order is the report of the committee on credentials.

A member of the committee announced that the report on credentials was not ready to report, but would be ready in about ten minutes, whereupon recess was taken to allow the committee to finish its report. At the expiration of that time, the convention was called to order, and the secretary read the report of the committee on credentials.

Mr. Preston of San Rafael—Mr. Chairman: I move to dispense with the reading of the roll call. Seconded and carried.

Mr. Sonntag—I move the adoption of the report as read. Seconded and carried.

The chair—The next business in order is the report of the committee on permanent organization and order of business. Grove L. Johnson, chairman of the committee, read the report and moved its adoption. Seconded and carried.

The chair—The next business in order is the report of the committee on platform and resolutions. I am informed that it will be twenty or twenty-five minutes before that committee will be ready to report. I want to say to you that upon the platform are some of the greatest and best speakers of the State, and during the interim, while we await their coming, those who are before me and compose this platform would be very acceptable. (Applause and cheers.)

Gentlemen, it is not necessary for me to introduce to you General Barnes. He is known to every one of you. I propose three cheers for General Barnes. Give them with a will.

The convention responded in an earnest manner. General Barnes then delivered an address which is published in full in another column.

The close of General Barnes' address was made for George A. Knight, but that gentleman could not be found. Mr. Gage was thereupon escorted to the platform by General Barnes, and a speech from General Barnes is always pleasant, I notified Mr. Knight that his turn would come next, but it came too soon and he has slipped out. Now I am sorry that Mr. Knight is not here.

A delegate—What's the matter with Joe Campbell?

The chair—Bring Joe Campbell here and we will hear him. Mr. Campbell, I have just been informed, is on the committee on platform and resolutions. He will not be able to report until 1 o'clock this afternoon. Of course for that I am not opening before us, and it may be unless some other matters shall be presented that we had better take an adjournment before us, and I may be permitted to say anything that will have a tendency to increase the enthusiasm of the convention I shall be glad indeed. If there is anything extraneous to the grand business of the Republican party which would have a tendency to kindle profound enthusiasm in the hearts and breasts of those who would come beneath the grand banner of that party and keep step to the music of Republicanism it is to stand before such a magnificent assemblage as is here gathered together and look into the faces of the intelligent representatives of the greatest political party that ever existed in the history of the world. [Applause.] Gentlemen, this is a Republican year. The stars are fighting for the Republican party and its principles this year. The banner under which we march is the banner of Republicanism, and the Republican party is as sure of success, I believe, in the great State of California as that an election shall occur, if no mistakes are made in the deliberations of this body. If no mistakes are made here to-day and before the conclusion of the deliberations of this body, then indeed will the "Mene mene tekel upharsen" that appeared in letters of light upon the festal walls to the startled gaze of the Babylonian Kings be as nothing but the fantastic dream of a disordered mind compared with the handwriting on the wall that will appear to lead the giant of Democracy and Populism, and they will not need any Daniel to interpret it, either. [Applause and cheers.]

I had the great fortune to be on the floor of what I consider the most memorable national convention that was ever held under the auspices of the Republican party, save perhaps one. In 1850, I had the fortune to listen to the magnificent and matchless eloquence that came pouring forth from the lips of the majestic Conkling. I heard the words that came seething from the patriotic fires that raged within the walls of the great Logan; I heard the words of wisdom that came from Harrison; from all those great leaders, but I remember distinctly that after all was said by these great orators there arose a man in that convention, perhaps more majestic, more impressive in his mien than any that had gone before him. It was immortal Garfield (prolonged applause) and from his lips came the solemn words of admonition. He said to the assembled delegates: "Gentlemen, it is not in the midst of an enthusiastic convention such as this that the great battle that is upon us is to be won, but it is by the fireside of the lowly and the great, the rich and the poor, the farmer, the artisan and the banker, by the fireside and at the polls on election day that that great question is to be determined and solved as to whether or not success shall crown the efforts of the Republican party."

General W. H. L. Barnes' Patriotic Speech Aroused the Entire Convention.

Let me borrow those words from the immortal Garfield, and admonish you, gentlemen, taking some admonition yourself, that if we make no mistakes, if we avoid contention, if we avoid difficulties, if we go before the people of the State of California united as a people, with a ticket that shall command the respect of all alike, success, as sure as the sun shall rise on election day, will crown the Republican party of the State of California. (Great applause.)

In conclusion, as I see the chairman of the committee here, let me say to you that no longer should we allow California to be misrepresented in the United States Senate and in Congress. (Applause.)

No longer should a man who does not represent the progressive spirit of our grand citizenship of the State of California be allowed in the gubernatorial chair in this city. (Great applause.) Fully, California should grasp the banner, and assume her rightful position at the head of the column carrying the banner.

ner of Republicanism on to triumph, so that from now on no man should hesitate to say whether California is a Democratic or Republican State. (Applause.)

The Chair—Now, gentlemen, we are about to listen to the reading of the platform drafted by your committee, and I hope that you will observe perfect order, so that every delegate will hear what is read, in all of its particulars.

Mr. Lloyd—Now move the adoption of the platform just read.

Mr. Tausky—I desire to move an amendment to that portion of the platform relating to the candidates for the Legislature being requested to vote in favor of a condition to read, and, therefore, I will ask the secretary of this convention to read it.

The Chair—There is no objection. The secretary will read the report. (The secretary here read the report of the committee on platform and resolutions, which, on behalf of the committee I beg to present to this body, as I am quite hoarse, I was up early this morning and I am not in a condition to read, and, therefore, I will ask the secretary of this convention to read it.)

The secretary read the following amendment to that portion of the platform relating to the candidates for the Legislature being requested to vote in favor of a condition to read, and, therefore, I will ask the secretary of this convention to read it.

The Chair—Gentlemen, you have heard the amendment offered, do you understand it thoroughly?

The Chair—Chairman, the last Legislature passed a law making it a misdemeanor for any person or any convention to pledge a legislative candidate to vote to approve the same in the Legislature. Substitute the word "pledged" for "requested" in the word "requested" be stricken out and the word "pledged" be substituted.

The Chair—Send your amendment in writing, I have all the amendments sent up in writing.

The secretary read the following amendment to that portion of the platform relating to the candidates for the Legislature being requested to vote in favor of a condition to read, and, therefore, I will ask the secretary of this convention to read it.

The Chair—Now, gentlemen of the convention, I will instruct the secretary to call the roll of the counties.

The Chair—As the roll of counties is called, any gentleman desiring to place in nomination a candidate for Governor will approach the platform and make his speech here.

The Secretary—Alameda County. Gentlemen of the convention, I have the pleasure of introducing to you Mr. Phelps of San Mateo.

(Mr. Phelps' address is published in full in another column.)

After the speeches of introducing to you the Hon. George C. Pardee of Alameda.

Mr. Pardee—Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: To say that I feel honored in receiving this nomination is to put it mildly. Beggar that I am, I am even proud in thanks. I come before you to-day as a delegate from the county of Alameda, a county of this great State of ours. From sunny Shasta on the north to San Diego on the south, from the west coast to the waves of the Pacific leap upon our shores to where the barriers of the great Sierras stand, clad in eternal snow. There is no more loyal county for the Republican party in this State than is the county from which I hail. (Applause and cheers.)

Whenever the name of the Republican party has been tested upon many fields of battle, and it has never wavered in the contest. Whenever the name of the Republican party has been tested upon many fields of battle, and it has never wavered in the contest. Whenever the name of the Republican party has been tested upon many fields of battle, and it has never wavered in the contest.

Three cheers were proposed for George C. Pardee and given with a will.

Mr. Daniels of Alameda—Mr. Chairman, on behalf of the friends of Dr. Pardee, I move you, sir, that the nomination of Henry T. Gage of Los Angeles be made by acclamation.

Motion seconded and carried unanimously.

Three cheers were then proposed and given for Henry T. Gage.

Mr. Preston—Mr. Chairman, I move you that the secretary of this convention be instructed by the convention to cast its ballot for Henry T. Gage for Governor. Motion seconded and carried.

The secretary, Mr. Chairman, I have the honor to cast 788 votes for this convention for Henry T. Gage for Governor of the State of California.

A delegate, Mr. Chairman, I understand that the secretary is not a member of this convention and I move that E. F. Preston cast the vote for Henry T. Gage. Motion seconded and carried.

Mr. Preston—I cast 788 votes for Henry T. Gage of Los Angeles for Governor.

The chair—Mr. Chairman, I have received the unanimous vote of this convention. I declare him the nominee of this convention for the office of Governor, and I will appoint Hon. George C. Pardee, E. F. Preston and L. H. Brown to escort Henry T. Gage to the platform. Henry T. Gage was thereupon escorted to the platform by the committee, and delivered an address printed elsewhere in these columns.

The chair—The next business in order is the nomination for Lieutenant Governor. Mr. Monroan of Humboldt—Mr. Chairman and fellow Republicans of this convention: It is an honor to any men and es-
