

come of Empress Elizabeth's efforts to purify the Austrian court that there should still have existed a condition sufficiently unclean to poison the morals of her only son, whom she loved with an idolatrous love, and should have brought him so deep in dishonorable intrigue that he could find his way out of it only in a sensational suicide in a hunting lodge on his mountain estate, hidden away from the outside world.

This broke the Empress' heart. The Empress had been ambitious for her son. She believed he had great abilities obscured and undeveloped by a life of pleasure in youth that would be put in evidence later. Later she saw the weak Archduke Charles, heir to the throne, shrink from the position that awaited him and transfer his right to the Austrian throne to his son, Francis, who is now destined to be the next Emperor of Austria.

All these things seared deeply the heart of the proud and ambitious Empress. Those who have seen the Empress recently say that she was white-haired, bent and pitifully broken, though she was yet far from being an old woman. She took part in court ceremonies in a perfunctory manner. It was easy to see that she considered her hold on life broken.

Perhaps the best side of the character of Emperor Francis Joseph was never before so admirably shown as in his tender, loving guardianship of his stricken consort. Were she still the young Empress whose beauty and grace all Europe once admired, her husband could not have been more painstaking and thoughtful in looking to her comfort.

It was necessary to watch the Empress closely. Her moods were changeable, and each recurring remembrance of her unfortunate son led to some outbreak. If such an expression may be used, it might be at midnight and in a storm when the humor would seize her to go and pray in the little chapel where Prince Rudolph's remains are laid. The Emperor's orders were that she must have her way in these whims, and she had careful attendants wait on her until these fits of morbid melancholia passed over and she became herself again.

On other occasions she would take a fancy for journeys into the interior, and on these occasions a special car would be prepared, accompanied by officials and attendants, and she would travel until this fit, too, was spent.

GUARDING MANILA AGAINST ATTACK BY THE REBELS

Persistent Rumors That the Filipinos Intend to Assault the City.

Major General Otis Sends American Troops to Occupy Strategic Positions in the Suburbs.

BY SOL N. SHERIDAN.

Special Cable to The Call and the New York Herald. Copyrighted, 1898, by James Gordon Bennett.

MANILA, Sept. 10.—Persistent rumors are in circulation that the idea of attacking the city is gaining strength among the rebels, and it is asserted that some of the leaders are boldly urging such a plan. Owing to these reports, General Otis has been taking precautions to prevent the possibility of such a rising. He has dispatched strong detachments of American troops to occupy strategic positions in the suburbs.

The work of disarming the Filipinos is being carried on with even greater energy than before in view of new developments. I do not think, however, that any attack by Filipinos is probable. Such a course at this time, when the fate of the Philippines will soon be a subject of discussion at the Paris conference, would be suicidal. Any attack the rebels could make with the forces they could muster now would protest to the American representatives. Such a protest will meet with little consideration, however, in view of many precedents which history furnishes. The authorities appreciate, however, the splendid position this Government occupies as the result of the conquest of the Philippines. Had troops entered Manila by courtesy of the provision of the peace protocol Spain could make a plea for lighter conditions than those which it is proposed to demand. However, while the demand of the American Commissioners will at first require the cession of the island of Luzon to the United States, they may finally be reduced to the city and bay of Manila, but equal trade advantages with Spain in the islands will be demanded, and this, it is thought by the President, will place this Government in a more satisfactory position than would be the case if it were to occupy the islands and be compelled to go to great expense to develop them and

PETTY REVENGE OF A LOS ANGELES PAPER.

Refuses to Support Gage to Get Even on Some Personal Enemies.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—The Daily Times of this city will to-morrow, under the heading "An Initial Mistake," print the following editorial:

The best and most loyal friends of Henry T. Gage, Republican nominee for Governor, note with pained surprise that he has entered the camp of the enemy to select his political lieutenants from Los Angeles, in appointing W. F. X. Parker, particularly offensive "puff" politician, and H. Z. Osborne, whose Southern Pacific record is notorious, as members of the executive committee of the Republican State Central Committee.

The people of Southern California remember—or it happened not so long ago that they have been enabled to forget it—that W. F. X. Parker, then clerk of the Mayor of Los Angeles, railroaded through the city under a resolution in the name of Mr. Huntington's private harbor at Santa Monica and caused it to be telegraphed to Washington. And they do not forget that it was in the office of the Evening Express, then edited and managed by H. Z. Osborne, that certain bogus petitions were prepared and sent to Washington in the interest of the private enterprise of Mr. Huntington in opposition to the will of the people of this section and in contravention of the public interests of the nation.

Remembering these things, the friends and admirers of Mr. Gage cannot but wonder how it is that the Republican nominee for Governor should have forgotten them, and why he should have gone out of his way to exalt as his campaign managers two men, at least, who are known to be subservient tools and active allies of the Southern Pacific Company of Kentucky.

It would surely have been possible to have found among the thousands of voters in Los Angeles County two Republicans, other than Parker and Osborne, in whom the gubernatorial nominee might have reposed his confidence, without giving a slap in the face to the mass of the people who know these two worthies for what they really are—remnants of that Lindleyism in Los Angeles which the people some time ago crushed out, as they fondly hoped, for all time, but which by this recognition of these two Lindley henchmen has been calvanized into a semblance of life for the time being. As is well known, Osborne and Parker were cheek by jowl with Hervey Lindley while the latter was "doing politics" in Los Angeles, and each of them was ever ready to do the bidding of that small boss and his greater boss, the Southern Pacific company. The Times has no ambition to dictate

That popular Coon Song, "I Don't Like No Cheap Man," that's being sung at the Orpheum, hits a little subject that we want to talk to you about. Now, nobody likes a cheap man or, what we mean, a cheap-looking man, and clothes are what give appearance. Clothes may not make a man altogether, but they have a heap to do with it—especially the kind of clothes you get from Raphael's. They're the kind that have snap, life, vim—the niceties of fine tailoring, the advanced and modern ideas of modern tailoring. These are yours, and you'll never look like a cheap man if Raphael's dress you. She'll admire you. So will he. He'll be more than anxious to know where you got your clothes, because the kind we have shine out—quite different from those of other stores, because we put all our own ideas, the progressive ones, into our clothes.

Right now, the popular garment of the day, worn by the neat, natty and correct dressers, is the hard-twisted, winter weight blue serge, in that new and popular shade,

A Serge Suit like this is the essence of refinement and good taste.

Now we have gone about this Serge in a manner to make it a very popular garment. We have made it in the Single-breasted Sack, in a rich shade of marine blue, but the nice little points and the prettiness and nattiness, that which goes to make up well clothes, is in the linings, trimmings and tailoring.

Were we to tax you $20 for such a suit, you would never hesitate paying it; but for the coming week, and to introduce our Fall productions of high-class tailor-made garments, in both Suits and Overcoats, we say for this Marine Blue Serge Suit, but not for many days, peror Francis Joseph upon the receipt of the news of the assassination and he has since countermanded the arrangements for the shooting party fixed for to-morrow.

The police here believe the murder is a plot of anarchists, and that the assassin is Lucessi, who is wanted by the Boulogne police as a dangerous anarchist. He was implicated in the recent troubles at Milan, after which he fled to Zurich. While at Zurich Lucessi was present at a meeting of Italian anarchists, when seven were selected, including Lucessi, to assassinate the principal European sovereigns, including the King of Italy.

A French detective, who was present communicated the information to the Italian Government, and as a result King Humbert was carefully guarded, as was M. Faure.

About a week ago another meeting of the anarchists was held at Zurich and those who had been selected at the previous meeting were accused of cowardice. Thereupon Lucessi said: "I will show that I am no coward. I will kill some one." The following day he left Zurich and went to Basle.

be almost certain to be ineffective. Aguinaldo, despite his efforts to fortify the position he has assumed as "dictator," is beyond doubt losing control over the lawless spirits among the natives.

The residents of Manila are not at all alarmed over the intentions of the rebels. The administration of General Merritt prior to his departure for Paris and the course taken by General Otis since he has assumed command have convinced the inhabitants of Manila that they can live in complete security under the protection of the Americans.

OTIS HAS SUFFICIENT TROOPS FOR HIS NEEDS

War Department Will Execute Its Plan to Send a Large Garrison to Honolulu.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The Herald's Washington correspondent telegraphs: Further advices from Major General Otis showing that he is able with his present force to cope with Aguinaldo and his forces in case of emergency has convinced the authorities that there is no present need of sending reinforcements. A dispatch was sent by the War Department to-day to the Governor of a Northern State explaining that in view of present advices there is no need of the dispatch of additional troops to Manila.

The department, however, has determined to be prepared, and, therefore, will execute its plan of stationing a strong body of troops at Honolulu.

A clerk of the department will accompany the commission as disbursing agent, and a number of stenographers and translators in the employ of the State Department will be assigned to duty with the commission. Neither the State Department nor the French embassy had any information to-day bearing on the report that the Madrid Government had directed the French embassy to make a protest to the State Department at the action of the military forces in capturing Manila after an armistice had been declared. It is presumed that the report grew out of the intention of the Spanish Government to instruct its representatives on the Peace Commission to submit such

GENERAL OTIS CHECKS PHILIPPINE REBELS

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—A Sun special from Manila says: The Spanish have been endeavoring to provoke a conflict, telling the Filipinos that the Americans intend to return the islands to Spain. Many Filipinos believe and think the Americans intend to re-establish Spanish power. There has been much kidnapping, robberies, assaults, etc. The perpetrators generally were insurgents in uniform. Information reached the American authorities that the Spanish were inciting trouble between the insurgents and Americans.

General Otis determined to stop this equivocal situation and notified Aguinaldo that the insurgents must withdraw before a fixed date, or he will use force, as they cannot occupy territory surrendered to Americans while not recognized as allies.

A Filipino counselor close to Aguinaldo informed your correspondent that the insurgents would insist upon receiving assurance of recognition even at the cost of a conflict with Americans. The uselessness of such a course being explained to him, he replied: "We can only die."

Aguinaldo himself said to your correspondent yesterday: "When the rebellion started independence was the sole idea of the Filipinos. Since the Americans have been forced to interfere the Filipinos hope to gain some reward from Americans for their sacrifices of blood, life and treasure. They live for the recognition of their liberty."

This is the first public admission from Aguinaldo that the Filipinos would be satisfied with anything less than absolute independence.

RECEIVER APPOINTED.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—This afternoon Judge Oscar appointed Frank A. Gibson, cashier of the First National nor any desire to even suggest whom Mr. Gage shall appoint as his political lieutenants and managers, but it does believe that he should not have gone out of his way to select men who discredited his campaign before its commencement.

The claim is being made audaciously by the Democratic press that the Republican ticket this year is a "railroad ticket," and Mr. Gage, when he deliberately appoints two pronounced henchmen of the Southern Pacific as his campaign managers, lends positive strength to that claim and disarms the faithful friends who would rejoice to see him elected to the office for which he has been nominated, and for which end they had hoped to put forth every effort.

Every one, friend and foe alike, knows that Mr. Gage has had no more loyal friend and no more enthusiastic admirer in the State than the Los Angeles Times, words and deeds on more than one occasion, but when there comes up a question of right or wrong this newspaper is for the right, and it sees and will no longer hesitate to criticize a friend for a wrong or injudicious act than it would to attack the common political enemy for errors of doctrine.

We know the Republican nominee for Governor to be a masterful and able man; a fitting citizen; a laudable and unusual talent; a man of generally excellent judgment, but if he has not made a monumental mistake in this matter, he will cost the Republican State and county tickets thousands of votes at the forthcoming election in making these appointments, then the Times confesses that it does not recognize a blunder when it detects the thing meandering along the street.

It is clearly evident that Mr. Gage has been imposed upon by his advisers and that he has done something in making these appointments which his friends will have to make explanations of and apologies for from now until the day of election, and if disaster to his cause shall result from this deplorable act, Mr. Gage and the men who have counseled him to do this thing alone are to blame.

If Mr. Gage can win his election with success as these he will certainly achieve a victory that will be memorable in the political history of the State of California.

As for the Times, it will not sit passive and refrain from protesting when such acts as these are done; it will not compromise with the enemy, and it will not be gagged by friend or foe. It is to the interest of the Republican party and to the bosses and corruptionists be denounced and the sins of these men may read, and so long as they are ink and press in this establishment the Times will, prepared for any sacrifice, if sacrifice be necessary, continue to stand for the right with a stout heart and a bold front, leaving to time the vindication of its course.

CONFLAGRATION RAGING IN THE CAPITAL CITY

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 11.—Fire broke out at 2 o'clock this morning in the rear of Schud Bros' livery stable on K street, between Fifth and Sixth. It rapidly spread to W. S. Frazer's branch lumber yard, and at this hour (2:30 o'clock) the stable, lumber yard and several adjoining dwellings are burning fiercely.

The first alarm was followed by a general alarm and soon the city's entire fire department was fighting the flames.

The scene of the fire is one of the business blocks, and the conflagration is hard to fight.

At this hour the guests of the Berkshire lodge, which this morning is being held by telephone, are packing their effects preparatory to fleeing before the advance of the flames, which threaten to reach the building unless they are soon checked.

Many of the horses in Schud Bros' stable, which was an expensive affair, have been incinerated. The loss, if the blaze could be checked where it is now, would exceed $15,000, and the indications are it will be several times that amount before the flames are got under control.

STATE FAIR'S SUCCESS. Attendance at the Pavilion Is Increasing Steadily.

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 10.—The last night of the first week of the State Fair witnessed great improvement in the attendance at the pavilion. The vaudeville features are variously regarded, some holding that they add greatly to the interest in the pavilion, while others claim that the entertainment has the effect of concentrating the people in one end of the hall, somewhat to the detriment of the exhibitors elsewhere in the building. However, this objection doubtless will not be urged next week, when the attendance will be so large as to insure more even distribution throughout the building.

Ortega and Turner Draw.

SAN JOSE, Sept. 10.—"Jack" Ortega of this city and Charles Turner of Stockton fought a 15-round draw at the Pavilion to-night before a large crowd. The fighting was fast and furious throughout. Turner displayed the most science, but his antagonist was heavier and a giuon for punishment.

JELLISON'S SUCCESSOR.

F. B. Graves Will Probably Be Appointed Librarian to Fill the Existing Vacancy.

A large number of members attended the regular quarterly meeting of the Mechanics' Institute last evening. President Denicke spoke of the death of the librarian, A. M. Jellison. He then had the resolutions of respect adopted to his memory by the board of trustees read. Considerable discussion was had over the policy of holding an industrial exposition next year. A majority of the members were in favor of such an affair, and a resolution was adopted to that end. Trustee Horace Wilson offered an amendment to the constitution affecting the manner of electing trustees. It adopted at the next quarterly meeting it will do away with the present method of voting. A. W. Stott asked what had been done toward appointing a new librarian, and he was answered that nothing had
