

THE CALIFORNIANS HEROES OF THE DAY

BRAVE CHARGE OF DUBOCE AT PACO CHURCH

Company G of the Californians charged into the church, but were unable to ascend the single flight of steps leading to the story above.

After the incendiaries had retired, a company of the Idaho and the Washington guards, stationed on either side of the building, picked off the Filipinos as they were smoked out. Many of the

The official list sent by General Otis to the War Department at Washington makes no mention of Hogan, Wall, Scheren nor any Californian as having been wounded.

SOME HEROES OF MANILA.

Of these soldiers shown here the dispatches yesterday gave the name of Lieutenant Erwin among the killed and of Lieutenant Hogan and Sergeant Mahr of the First California as wounded. Poor Mahr, according to the official list, has been killed. Neither the name of Hogan nor of any Californian occurs among the list of wounded sent by General Otis.

TERRIBLE CARNAGE AMONG THE RANKS OF FILIPINOS

Four Thousand of Aguinaldo's Followers Fell in the Battle, and More Than Half of That Number Were Killed.

MANILA, Feb. 6.—It would be scarcely possible to describe the effect upon the natives in the city of Manila of the disastrous result to the Filipinos following the latter's attack upon the Americans on Saturday night. It is apparent now that many natives in the city had full knowledge of the intended movement of the insurgent forces, who, calculating upon taking the Americans by surprise and thus winning a comparatively easy victory, expected to be left in a position to dictate terms to our generals.

Of course this idea was due to the ignorance of the natives, but it is this very ignorance which will, for some time to come, be a dangerous factor in the situation here. The Filipinos in the city were evidently buoyed up by the hope that when the invaders began to retreat they would have an opportunity, in the resulting confusion, to realize the long cherished dream of looting Manila, a proceeding they have been looking forward to with the keenest expectation ever since Dewey vanquished Montojo last May. They were it will be remembered, extremely disappointed when the city capitulated to find their hopes of wreaking vengeance on the Spaniards, and at the same time despoiling them of their property, were nullified by the action of Merritt, then military commander here, who forbade them to enter the city armed.

On Sunday afternoon, when they realized the full extent of the disaster which had befallen them, they were in a condition bordering on frenzy, and it required strong and tactful handling of the situation to prevent an outbreak, which would certainly have resulted in the slaughter of hundreds of the Filipinos here, upon whom would have fallen the anger of the American troops, anxious to avenge the death of their comrades who had fallen under the fire of the followers of the treacherous Aguinaldo.

The precautions taken, however, were such that there was no serious trouble, and as cabled to The Call yesterday, the city remained quiet after the first outburst of excitement.

Your correspondent went over the fighting ground yesterday afternoon to make an examination of the position which had been held by the enemy and from which he had been driven out with such heavy losses. There is no denying the fact that the Filipinos will stand fire. The ground in every direction bore evidence of this. On all sides were lying dead natives, their bodies in many instances being full of bullet holes. The majority of the dead were lying with their heads toward the line of the American advance, showing that they had fallen fighting desperately.

To the north and south of the city, where the shells of the cruiser Charleston and gunboat Callao and monitor Monadnock reached the flanks of the Filipinos, the slaughter was sickening. The bodies of hundreds of insurgents had been literally torn into shreds by the fire from the warships. In some places the shells had torn great holes in the earth, and around these were scattered the fragments of human beings.

On all sides the scene was one of terrible desperation, and what on Saturday had been a smiling landscape was now marked and pitted by the ravages of war. Your correspondent went to Santa Mesa, San Juan del Monte, Santa Ana, San Pedro Macati and Lomia and other places from which our troops had driven the enemy, and the scene in and around each was identical. The great number of dead showed the little na-

FILIPINOS LOST THOUSANDS

MANILA, Feb. 6.—Careful estimates place the Filipino losses up to date at 2000 dead, 3500 wounded and 5000 taken prisoners.

THE REBELS DRIVEN BACK

HONGKONG, Feb. 6.—The latest advices from Manila say that the rebel forces have been driven back ten miles and their losses are estimated at 1900 killed or wounded.

During the fighting the United States warships shelled a train loaded with insurgents.
