

LOSS OF THE WAVE COST TWO LIVES

CATAMARAN DISASTER'S VICTIMS

Walter D. Henderson and Miss Mabel Kafitz Drowned.

RESCUERS' BRAVERY

Young Pleasure Seekers Display Coolness and Save Comrades From Death.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

STOCKTON, June 10.—Walter D. Henderson and Miss Mabel Kafitz were the only members of the party on the ill-fated catamaran Wave who lost their lives. The swift currents of the San Joaquin have not given up the dead, although anxious friends have searched the banks for miles. How the other twenty-five members of the party, mostly young ladies, too, ever surmounted the terrible odds against them and reached land passes comprehension. It seems that the Wave was just preparing to make a landing at the chertory factory, when the boat lurched and filled rapidly. Instantly all was confusion, some tumbling and others being pushed overboard, and within a few seconds the young men and women were struggling madly for life. Gertie Lang swam out, refusing assistance. The boys quickly began the work of saving the girls, some of whom still clung to the overturned catamaran, screaming wildly.

Harry White and Ralph Yardley acquitted themselves creditably and brought four girls ashore. Maud Martin swam fully armed in search of two sisters who she feared had drowned. Alva Atwood and Lloyd Woods remained so long in the water that they came near going down and had to be assisted. Henderson's cat was there, came from the other side of the river and assisted in the work of rescue.

When the young people were got together it was at first thought all had been saved, but Miss Kafitz and Henderson were found to be absent. The hunt was fruitlessly resumed.

The launch Viola, which left here at 3 a. m. with a party of friends aboard, intercepted the catamaran Wave. The rescued people all remember having met some one during the vivid experience in the water, but no one remembers having seen or heard Miss Kafitz or Henderson.

Many heroic deeds are reported. Walter Rose, one of the party who went to the rescue in a boat, says:

"Such a cool lot of young people I never saw before. One of the Misses Martin kept calling to the girls to keep cool and not give up and all would be saved."

Clarence Hall swam around until he had three girls holding on to his coat-tails. He told them to hold fast, but to leave his arms and legs free. He brought the three to the bank safely.

The death of Miss Kafitz was very sad, as she leaves a widowed mother and was an only child. She was cultivated and winsome and was born and raised here.

Henderson was a capable engineer and mechanic. He came here from Santa Cruz. He had been a member of the Naval Reserve and the life-saving crew. He leaves a widow.

There were rumors to-day that Pilot Peterson knew the boat was leaking during the down trip. This is denied, but an investigation shows that the catamaran was not trustworthy. TRUST TO BUY TO PROVE LIFE AFTER DEATH

Vast Scheme With Billion Dollars Capital. PLANS ARE BEING DISCUSSED OPTION SECURED ON EASTERN PROPERTIES.

The Matter Was Secretly Considered and Given Impetus at the Convention Recently Held at Detroit.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 10.—The Sentinel-to-morrow will say: The trust mania has reached the brewers, and it is said on the best authority that a scheme is on foot to form a trust with $1,000,000,000 capital to buy up all the breweries in the country. It is said that the scheme received impetus at the national convention of brewers at Detroit, when plans were discussed secretly.

While the trust is only in the formative stage, it is not to be doubted that it is being judged from reports, to warrant the belief that the American beer drinker will soon have no other beer to drink than to quench his thirst on the product of a trust.

Joseph C. Schaf, president of the American Brewing Company of this city, who returned to-day from Detroit, where he attended the national meeting of brewers, admitted to-day that the subject of a brewer trust was a topic of private conversation at the convention, at which 100 leading brewers were present. He said that he did not care to talk much about it, as the matter is in its infancy now.

He had calculated, he said, that something more than a billion dollars would be required, as there are 230 breweries in the country. He said that he understood that an option has been placed by the trust on Mr. Schaf's brewery, and now he is being asked to sell it. When asked how many options had been secured in the country, he said, "At a guess I should say eight or ten to date."

Mr. Schaf declined to say who are behind the trust, but he replied in response to that question, "Eastern capitalists are promoting the trust."

Lieber, manager of the brewery syndicate of this city, which includes the three largest breweries here, to-night confirmed the story of the formation of the trust. He said that he had just returned from Detroit, and after learning that the story was out, he had written to the American Malt Company, which has just closed a deal involving $2,000,000, whereby all the Pennsylvania breweries were consolidated. This was one of the first steps in the big scheme. Options are now out on a number of Indiana breweries, and the same is true of other States. The principal factor in the big scheme is Seymour Scott, a wealthy broker of New York City, who has been working on it for some time.

The scheme is a stupendous one, and it will require at least three years to perfect. The American Malt Company already has a monopoly on all the malt produced in this country. The distilleries will all be bought up, and also all of the 300 breweries. I should say it will at least require $1,000,000,000 to do the work. The consumer will not lose. Beer will remain at 5 cents a glass, but taxes and other expenses will be decreased and better beer will be placed on the market. At the expiration of three years I look to see all the malt dealers ruined. Eastern capitalists of the United States controlled by one working head."

Mr. Lieber did not deny that there is an option out on the three big breweries in this city controlled by his syndicate.

CONDITION OF CROPS THROUGHOUT EUROPE

Favorable Conditions Reported in France, Austria-Hungary, Italy and Other Countries.

Special Cable to The Call and the New York Herald, Copyrighted, 1899, by James Gordon Bennett.

LONDON, June 10.—The London grain market during the week has been languid and business very restricted, foreign demand being the cause of the slow movement. The weather has become so dry that the grain sown for winter crops is about the same as last year, while there is a slight diminution in the acreage of spring crops. The harvest of winter crops promises exceedingly well, although in appearance slightly inferior to last year's. The spring crops do not appear to promise well.

In Austria-Hungary the official estimate of the wheat crop of 1899 is rather more than 1,000,000 quarters, compared with 1,000,000 quarters in 1898 and 1,250,000 in 1897. Recently too much rain is reported in some sections, but there is no fear of good average. Rye and oats promise a good average.

In Roumania before the recent rains reports from thirty districts were: Six good, thirteen bad and eleven partially damaged. The rain has improved matters very much.

In Russia the Dnieper country needs rain badly, and other sections of the Southern Russia. In most other sections of the empire entire crops generally are in fair condition.

In Germany agricultural statistics are satisfactory.

In Italy wheat has shot into ear and promises well.

AFFAIRS IN SAMOA ARE BEING SETTLED

Report Confirmed Relative to the Release of Herr Marquardt and Herr Hofnagel.

BERLIN, June 10.—The Foreign Office officials confirm the correspondence of the Associated Press relative to the release of Herr Marquardt and Herr Hofnagel, the Germans at Apia, Samoa, who were arrested in connection with the disturbances there.

All of the official reports from Apia lately attest to the fact that things are assuming a promising aspect there and it is confidently expected here that the Commissioners will arrive at a satisfactory settlement.

TO GUARD AGAINST ENTRY OF SMALLPOX

Precautionary Measures to Be Adopted When Troops Return From Manila.

LOS ANGELES, June 10.—The State Board of Health will at its next meeting, in July, arrange rules and regulations and make note of contagious diseases that are expected to be brought into the port of San Francisco by soldiers soon to return from Manila. Dr. Randolph D. Hill of this city, a member of the State board, to-day said that everything that the State authorities can do would be done against the introduction of contagion. Upward of 500 troops from the Philippines are expected to be landed on the coast during the next three months, and the question of guarding against the introduction of smallpox and other diseases is causing the State Health Board much concern.

"The United States quarantine officials are not always as vigilant as they should be," said Dr. Hill, "as a leper was a short time ago landed from Honolulu. He was not apprehended and is still at large, not one knows where. Dr. Ruggles of the State Board of Health recognized the case, but was told that the afflicted one had disappeared. Complaint was made to Washington, but nothing further has been heard of the matter."

Objecting to Ballots.

CARSON, Nev., June 10.—The Governorship contest goes merrily on. In ten small precincts in Elko County McMillan to-day found fifty odd ballots which were objected to and Sadler laid out about as many. A precinct brought out a bunch of objections. McMillan objected to fifteen, while Sadler threw out sixteen. Out of twenty-five votes in Halleck McMillan objected to eight, the worst objection being marked on them. One marked "protested" was claimed by respondent McMillan.

LAUNCHING OF THE COLUMBIA

Cup Defender Slides Into the Water.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

BRISTOL, R. I., June 10.—America's new cup defender, the representative of the best boat-building skill and material of which the Western Continent can boast, was carefully lowered into the water at the Herreshoff works at 8.30 o'clock to-night, and as she started down the ways Mrs. Oliver C. Iselin christened her "Columbia."

The launching of the latest pretector of Uncle Sam's sailing laurels was probably one of the most spectacular that has ever occurred, for the light of day had almost faded when she started down the ways and three powerful calcium lights played upon her white stern and shining golden underbody with theatrical effect. As she fairly cleared the shed a large silk American yacht ensign was broken out over her stern, the colors of her owners appeared on a small jury mast, stepped in place of the regular mast, and the New York Yacht Club pennant flew in the waist of the boat. With the lights playing on the flags and twenty or more of the crew lying about the deck, the scene was filled with animation and color.

Ranged on both sides of the dock were 5000 spectators, while off the end were clustered fifty or more yachts of all kinds, so that there was plenty of noise, cheers, whistles and guns to help out the brilliant effect of the lights.

Mrs. Iselin did her part gracefully, surrounded by a half hundred society leaders of New York, Providence and Boston and many yachting friends of her husband. The launching was a great success from beginning to end, being attended by an unfortunate accident among the spectators. A new cup defender is again afloat and in a few weeks will be ready to battle for the yachting supremacy of the world.

While twice before in its history this little town has felt the thrill accompanying the launching of an American cup defender, the lowering into the water to-night of the beautiful sloop Columbia was, nevertheless, an event of great importance to Bristol as well as to the entire yachting world. Simultaneously with the arrival of numerous yachtsmen from New York and Boston in the morning, they sailed into the harbor and anchored off the Browns sheds at the Herreshoffs a score or more of steamships, schooners and sloops, and from the decks of these bright people watched all the afternoon the final preparations for the evening's event.

An hour before the launching the big door that for weeks had screened the boat and of the shed was taken down, and for the first time the world had a chance to see the shining underbody of the boat. Inside the shed, assembled under the bow of the boat, was the launching party, with Mrs. Iselin as the central figure, while on deck were twenty of the Columbia's crew with one or two officers and Nat Herreshoff.

At 8:05 Mr. Herreshoff gave the signal, and the work of lowering the boat to the water began. It took about ten minutes to get her started, and at 8:14 she was seen to move. There was considerable creaking at first, and one or two short stops, but at 8:19 she began to slide steadily, and then it was that Mrs. Iselin dashed the bottle of champagne against her bow and said:

"I christen thee Columbia."

As the boat came slowly out there was a shout from the crowd. Slowly the boat moved down the railway and the place resounded with cheers and handclapping. When half the stern overhanging the shed was clear of the water the new boat's crew who were lying on her deck jumped to their feet and raised a magnificent American Yacht Club ensign in the air.

Then there was a cheer from the deck and a half dozen men raised the white star and crescent on a red barge above a red and black burgee below, the colors of Commodore J. Pierpont Morgan and Colonel Oliver Iselin, respectively. Soon that long, tapering bow was clear of the shed and on the extreme end a staff bearing the New York Yacht Club's burgee was slipped into a socket. Inch by inch the long, slim craft moved down and the water soon lapped the metal rudder, which gleamed like gold under the rays of the lights, and the water crept up until the rudder head was completely submerged and the keel was hidden from view.

Just as the Columbia was about to be a distressing accident occurred. The explosion of a can of flashing powder blew a leg and part of the head of Napoleon San Souci, aged 12 years, broke the legs of two other boys and severely injured several other persons. The photographer who caught the accident selected the top of a shed, the roof of which was closely packed with boys. In pouring out the flashlight powder a train must have been left, connecting the large can of explosive with the small quantity on the camera. As the photographer touched the fuse he shot a warning, but there was no space in which the boys could move. A terrific explosion followed, the entire shed collapsed. Many women on the wharves fainted from the shock and there was great excitement.

Policemen pulled the injured from the wreck and carried them into the Herreshoff shops. San Souci was taken from
