BRUSSELS, July 8.—The Transvaal diplomatic agency here has published the text of President Kruger's message of July 1 to the Boer. The law is so far retroactive that persons who before the law comes into force shall have taken up their residence in the Transvaal may obtain the full franchise nine years after the establishment of their domicile in this country.

WOMAN RACING AFTER SULZER

Nemesis on a Congressman's Trail. HE PLANS A COUP AND FAILS ATTEMPTS TO STEAL AWAY TO ALASKA.

When the Vessel Sails From Vancouver the Fair Pursuer Is Found Among the Passengers Aboard.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 8.—Congressman W. M. Sulzer and H. Demanville of New York arrived here last Wednesday. They were en route for a hunting tour in Alaska. To-day they left for the north, but under far different circumstances than they had anticipated.

The day after they arrived they booked tickets late last night on the steamer Dirigo for Skagway. It was the bearer of that name who made the third person in the romantic occurrences of the last two days. All three are credited with being very wealthy and the woman introduced herself around the hotel as the fiancée of Congressman Sulzer. It was evident, however, that neither of the men was enamored of her, and they explained that she had been only a day behind them in coming across the continent.

The Congressman and his hunting friend decided to escape, and to do this they booked tickets late last night on the steamer Dirigo for Skagway. The woman in the case, however, became possessed of the idea that her two male escorts were planning to give her (the ship). She accordingly mounted guard on the hotel veranda. She was clothed in a dashing serge skirt, a natty sailor hat and a somber cloak, which somewhat spoiled the otherwise bright effect of the get-up.

She found that the steamer must sail at 4 o'clock in the morning and she advised that the gentlemen must have made their escape by way of the ladies' entrance. She started in pursuit, and before long she, too, was booked for Skagway. When the vessel sailed she was in her cabin, all unknown to the statesman and his friend, who had gone to sleep safely the night before.

COUNCIL OF EDUCATION AT WORK

LOS ANGELES, July 8.—The week that has been set apart for the thirty-eighth annual convention in Los Angeles of the National Educational Association was ushered in when Professor A. R. Taylor of the Kansas Normal School at Emporia, president of the National Council of Education, called this notable body of educators to order at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The National Council is, in a measure, an annex of the National Educational Association. It is composed of sixty teachers that have established reputations as educators. Members are elected for terms of six years each, and vacancies are filled at the annual meetings.

At the session of the council this evening Hon. W. T. Harris of Washington, D. C., National Commissioner of Education, read a paper on "The Future of the Normal School." Mr. Harris devoted the principal part of his paper to the new educational methods which the study of the art of educating is bringing out.

The future history of the normal school will show the gradual adoption of the Kulturgeschichte standpoint in the light of history of education as a result of last resort.

One thousand delegates were registered at general headquarters to-day. The influx will be great on Sunday, and on Monday night and Tuesday morning it will reach its maximum.

GREAT INTEREST IN LACKEY'S CASE

Tests of Dr. Sanarelli's Yellow Fever Serum. PATIENT IS DOING WELL BUT HIS RECOVERY IS YET UNCERTAIN.

Even Scientists of Paris Are Curious to Ascertain if the Latest Experiment Will Be Successful.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Much interest has been shown throughout the country in the condition of Mr. Lackey, who is suffering from yellow fever. This case is one of unusual interest, for it may contribute useful data for a study of the effects of the antidote suggested by the experiments of Dr. Sanarelli.

The Herald has sent for 300 bottles of Sanarelli's serum, which is identical with the preparation used by Dr. Doty. This amount of serum would be sufficient to give a thorough test to the remedy. Dr. Doty, in spite of the fact that many well-known physicians are not inclined to accept Dr. Sanarelli's discovery of the micro-organism of yellow fever, gave the theory of the young Italian bacteriologist a careful and impartial investigation.

He isolated the organism before the publication of Dr. Sanarelli's discovery, and from cultures which the latter sent him he was able to see that the two organisms were identical. John Ferguson and John Talwarsh, two yellow fever suspects on the Michigan, did not contract the disease. The other passengers who were sent to Hoffman Island for observation are all well and are in cheerful spirits.

Dr. Doty said to-day that he could not give an opinion as to whether the man would recover or not. He has frequently seen cases where the patients' condition seemed to be encouraging, yet a sudden change would carry them beyond the point where medical skill was able to aid them. Mr. Lackey has received no medicines whatever and he has not had an injection of serum since the third one administered at 7 o'clock last Friday.

PARIS, July 8.—The publicity given by the Herald to Dr. Sanarelli's serum for yellow fever has not passed unnoticed in Paris. Scientists are curious to see whether the success that attended Dr. Sanarelli's experiments will be repeated.

It appears, according to a statement made by a Herald correspondent, that when the Spanish-American war broke out the full particulars of the success that had attended the use of the serum under Sanarelli's directions and of the means of procuring it steps were taken with a view of bringing this invention before the Government.

VAST THRONGS GO TO LONDON

Rush of Americans to the Metropolis. ACCOMMODATIONS LIMITED HOTELS ALREADY CROWDED WITH VISITORS.

So Great Is the Traffic Over the Ocean That the Trans-Atlantic Companies Are Hurriedly Building New Ships.

Copyrighted, 1899, by the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 8.—When Joseph H. Choate, the United States Ambassador, declared at the banquet here July 4 that the presence of a thousand American ladies at the reception held at the embassy during the afternoon was the most impressive evidence he had yet received in regard to the importance of the Embassyship to the Court of St. James, he gave only a faint idea of the crowds of Americans now in London. So great is the rush that the steamship companies admit their inability to cope with it.

All the trans-Atlantic companies have ordered from one to four new ships, but it is impossible for many of these to be ready in 1900. The American and North German lines are pushing work on their new vessels to the utmost possible, but they hardly hope to have them ready for the Paris exposition. The Atlantic Transport Company has four vessels averaging 12,000 tons in course of construction. They will be 600 feet long.

The American Lyland liner, Winfredian, for the Boston trade, had her trial to-day. Even the cargo boats are constantly increasing their passenger accommodations, with the view of meeting the growing demand for passengers. The Winfredian will accommodate 140 saloon passengers.

The scenes at the Hotel Cecil, Metropole and other hotels on the arrival here of the Majestic and St. Paul passengers at midnight Wednesday were the most exciting of the season. Many Americans awaited Dr. Wolf Hopper's arrival at the Hotel Cecil. His lowering form contrasted strangely with the diminutive Jockey Martin, who was carried off by Tod Sloan, who had already secured Martin's license. An idea of the pressure may be gained from the fact that Dr. Wolf Hopper was unable to enter the Hotel Cecil and was compelled, at 2 o'clock in the morning, to seek temporary quarters elsewhere, while batches of chorus girls were still riding about at 3 in the morning in a hopeless quest for shelter.

Sloan was greatly rejoiced at the arrival of Martin. He says the English jockeys who have been using every device to prevent him from winning, will now have two Americans to look after. Sloan thinks he and Martin will keep them busy.
