CHOVNSKI CHARGES COLLUSION IN STRICKERT DIVORCE CASE

Tangled Ending of Litigation Because Fee Was Unpaid.

THE ardent wooing, the breach of promise suit, the wedding, the litigation and now the divorce of Paul Strickert by his wife, Martha Strickert, has brought up the whole story with renewed and added interest.

Choynski, with Martha Rachpauer that was for a client and with a good breach of promise case prepared, was making an assault on Strickert's pocketbook.

Several months ago there was filed in the office of the County Clerk a complaint for breach of promise, in which Martha Rachpauer appeared as plaintiff and Paul Strickert defendant.

In her complaint the then Miss Rachpauer, who is 19 years of age, alleged that she had been seduced by Strickert in Germany three years ago, believing herself to be the affianced wife of Paul Strickert.

After Strickert found that it was useless to attempt to negotiate the matter he filed an answer to the complaint, in which he set forth that he had never at any time married the young woman who wanted $25,000 of his money.

Fire Demands Held Up. A number of bills contracted last year by the Fire Department were held up in the Auditor's office yesterday.

They were for contracts made with D. O'Keefe for $100,000 and $200,000, and were refused to pay them on the ground that there were no funds left in last year's

MRS. MARTHA STRICKERT.

Miss Rachpauer reached the conclusion that she would rather be Mrs. Strickert than have the $25,000. A month ago their wedding was arranged and Strickert went forth to procure a marriage license. He inquired of "Cupid" Danforth if Choynski could hold him responsible for the fee the lady owed him, and when "Cupid" told him he could not Strickert got the license.

They were married by Judge Dainergfeld and laid before the court his suspicion that collusion existed between Mr. and Mrs. Strickert. Judge Dainergfeld appointed him amicus curiae forthwith, in order that he might continue his investigations as an officer of the court.

Late Wednesday afternoon the case was called for hearing and Mrs. Strickert proceeded to prove her case. She testified that her wedding was in the habit of pinching her and punching her and cursing her. These facts she proved to the satisfaction of the court. A decree was entered and silence again reigned until yesterday when Attorney Choynski made angry appearance on the scene.

He closeted himself with Judge Dainergfeld and laid before the court his suspicion that collusion existed between Mr. and Mrs. Strickert. Judge Dainergfeld appointed him amicus curiae forthwith, in order that he might continue his investigations as an officer of the court.

Mr. and Mrs. Strickert went to dwell together, but last Tuesday Mrs. Strickert filed suit for divorce, alleging cruelty as the ground therefor. To prosecute her case George L. Hughes appeared. Again had Choynski been sighted.

appropriation and the bills of last year cannot be paid out of this year's funds.

The St. Mary's Park fund of $125,000 is still held subject to the Treasurer. He should the decision of the Superior Court that the money shall be used for other purposes be upheld by the Supreme Court all demands against the city for 1899-1900 will be paid.

Ex-Policeman Videau in Trouble. Gustav Videau, an ex-policeman, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective O'Dea on a warrant charging him with obtaining money by false pretenses.

The complaining witness is George M. Withers, manager of the Withers Drug Company. He has been arrested very slightly. The Videau gave him a check for $10 on the Wells-Fargo Bank and that the check was cashed at the bank. He was arrested in 1888 and was reapprehended in 1895. After serving two years he was dismissed from the department for unofficer-like conduct. As an officer Videau has an unenviable record.

A Paper to Be Proud Of. The phenomenal success of the Commercial News of this city, the only daily paper devoted exclusively to commerce and finance published west of New York, is a triumph in journalism that ranks with other and financially greater enterprises that have made San Francisco, Cal., and the Pacific Coast famous.

The Daily Commercial News was established in 1885 to report facts regarding commerce, trade and finance, primarily of the city, and beyond that, so far as possible, the condition existing in the State outside of San Francisco and the Pacific Coast.

For a quarter of a century it has been successfully maintained, always promptly and to the satisfaction of its proprietors, and over to satisfy the proprietors with the dividends earned. The Commercial Publishing Company, the ownership of which is consolidated of the newspaper and the office printing it, has become one of the leading printing concerns on the coast and its reputation for honesty and fair dealing is of the best.

When the Commercial News was first published its circulation was 10,000. Number in magazine form it was in the hope of making for the company a name not easily forgotten and more; it made its reputation not only an artistic and literary success, but a financial success. A few of the press notices, condensed as must be necessary here, are annexed:

PROGRESS OF GOVERNMENT IN 100 YEARS.

Copyright, 1900, by Seymour Eaton.

COMPARATIVE STUDIES OF TWO CENTURIES.

IX. Political Conditions in 1800.

From the Government point of view the nineteenth century will be notable in all future history as the era of the triumph of democracy. The beginning of the movement for political liberty dates back to the early medieval period of European history, but a review of conditions at the opening of this century shows that the long struggle had resulted in the establishment of self-government in only two nations. Great Britain had established a Parliamentary government on a sure basis, and building on foundations of English precedent America had erected a stable republic before 1800.

These developments are simply symptomatic of the development of a spirit of extreme democracy, which demanded that this should be direct a Government by all the people as it was possible to arrange. The latest manifestation of this spirit is the widespread agitation for the introduction of the referendum on a basis similar to that employed in Switzerland. Many political scientists believe that we are on this road toward the most extreme democracy. They believe that restrictions on the suffrage which would exclude ignorant and unstable element of our present citizenship would insure better Government. But this academic relation has no apparent influence on practical politics. Democracy is indeed triumphant in America, and the solution of our difficulties must come through the education of this democracy.

Democracy in Great Britain. As we turn to Great Britain to note the development of a century we are considering the country which first established self-government in the modern world. For 600 years and more before the beginning of our century they had a few Parliamentary Government. During the seventeenth century they had a king and a parliament, but the king was a figurehead and the parliament was the real power.

The general process of democracy which has characterized our century has worked under widely different conditions in different countries, and to follow its action we must glance briefly at the governmental development of a few important nations.

The Development of the United States. In America the opening of the century found government by the people in successful operation under the present constitution. For nearly a quarter of a century the United States had been an independent republic under the Constitution of 1787, and for a decade it had enjoyed ethical and political freedom.

But, although they were pioneers in a perplexing field, the framers of our constitution succeeded in establishing a government on such wise lines that the fundamental law has required very few formal changes during more than a century.

Nevertheless, while the form of the constitution has remained practically unaltered, our Government has been changing constantly in spirit and method. By ever broadening interpretation of the written constitution the system has been adjusted to changing demands. Thus the republic of 1800 differs widely from the republic of 1890, although its fundamental law has been amended very slightly. The great change which has been wrought may be best expressed as the evolution from a virtual aristocracy to a real democracy.

From Aristocracy to Democracy. It is commonly believed that the founders of our nation were ardent advocates of democracy. That this is a mistaken conception appears from the examination of the form of government which they established when they had achieved independence. In the first place the laws of the various States greatly restricted the voting privilege. Universal suffrage was not an eighteenth-century idea even in liberty-loving America. It was the fashion for political leaders to reflect the opinions of the aristocracy and thus the last battle of the greatest struggle for political liberty in all history was won in our century.

Republicanism in France. The nation which stands beside the United States as the second greatest republic in the world has had a stormy governmental history during the last 100 years. The first republic established by the French Revolution was just yielding to the absolutism of Napoleon when the century began. When Napoleon was conquered by the allied armies of Europe in 1815 France was handed back to the Bourbons, and remained a monarchy until the great wave of popular revolution which swept Europe in 1848 drove Louis Philippe from the throne and brought Louis Napoleon to the front as the President of the second republic. Following closely in the footsteps of his uncle, the great Napoleon, the President of France speedily made himself the Emperor of the French, and in 1852 he effected the coup d'etat which established the Second Empire. The parliamentary system thus established endured for generation, but its existence has seemed so precarious at times that if France were the only example of republican government the principles of this system would have some justification for repeating to-day the grave forecasts of failure which were so common a century ago when our own free government was in the experimental stage. France is ever looking apprehensively for the man on horseback who will overthrow republican institutions and revive the monarchy.

TOWNSEND TO TRY FOR FORMER WIFE'S ESTATE

Makes Claim That He Is Her Surviving Husband and Heir at Law.

It Is Believed That an Attack Will Be Made on the Legality of the Divorce Proceedings.

Thomas T. Townsend, former husband of the late Mrs. Almira E. Townsend, has opened his fight for a portion of the decedent's estate. Proceeding on the contention that he was the legal husband of the deceased at the time of her death, he filed an application yesterday for letters of administration upon her estate.

As surviving husband of the deceased Townsend claims the right to administer her estate and will force his claim to a hearing.

Townsend has retained the services of Attorney G. Gunzendorfer to prosecute his claim. In the petition he first sets forth the fact of Mrs. Townsend's death and the fact that she left property valued at $50,000. He further says that he is 25 years of age and has resided in this city for many years past.

No reference is made to the proceedings by which Mrs. Townsend obtained a divorce from him years ago, the right to letters being based on the one assertion that the petitioner is the surviving husband of the deceased.

The divorce was allegedly procured by Mrs. Townsend then, under the law, he will be entitled to succeed to one-half of the estate. Records of Eastern courts will be searched by qualified commissioners, and though Townsend may be defeated in the courts, he is prepared to combat his claim.

Mrs. Ella F. Murray's application for letters of administration upon the estate of the late Mrs. Almira E. Townsend, Judge Trout this morning. The application filed yesterday by Mr. Townsend may result in a continuance of the opposition to prepare to combat his claim.

A special meeting of the San Francisco Protective Association was held yesterday afternoon for the election of officers. The association is composed of representatives of the following organizations: Brewers' Protective Association, Pacific Coast Beer Bottlers' Protective Association, Soda Water Bottlers' Protective Association, German Saloonkeepers' Protective Association, Retail Grocers' Protective Union, Retail Liquor Dealers' Mutual Protective Association, Retail Liquor Dealers' and Barkeepers' Protective Association, Retail Grocers' Association.
