

ADVERTISEMENTS

Anheuser-Busch Bottled Beers

are without a peer— Budweiser, "The Original" Black & Tan, "The American Porter" Anheuser-Standard The Faust Michelob Pale-Lager Export Pale Exquisite, "American Pilsener"

The materials used for these brews are of the very best obtainable. "Not How Cheap; but How Good" is the motto of the

Anheuser-Busch Brewing Ass'n

St. Louis, U. S. A. the famous food-drink that physicians recommend to nursing mothers, the convalescent, the aged, the feeble, is made by this association.

Malt Nutrine

AMUSEMENTS

Opium THE BEST THAT VAUDEVILLE AFFORDS. HOWE, WALL AND WALTERS. Gertrude Mansfield and Caryl Wilbur.

Westman and Wren. Frances Keppler. THE YOCARY TROUPE. Lavender and Thomson.

Mr. and Mrs. Tobin. LEW HAWKINS. AMERICAN BIOGRAPH. Reserved Seats, 25c; Balcony, 10c; Opera Chairs and Box Seats, 50c.

JESSIE BARTLETT DAVIS. SPECIAL JUBILEE MATINEES Friday, Sept. 7, and Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Following.

MOROSCO'S GRAND OPERA HOUSE MATINEES SATURDAY, SUNDAY, MONDAY AND TUESDAY.

THE FRAWLEY COMPANY LAST WEEK OF WILTON LACKATE. LAST NIGHT OF CHILDREN OF THE GHETTO

"TRILBY." Commencing Monday Evening—"QUO VADIS." EVENING PRICES—10c, 15c, 25c, 50c; a few Front Rows in Orchestra, 25c. MATINEE PRICES—10c, 15c, 25c, 50c. Branch Ticket Office, Emporium.

COLUMBIA THEATRE EVERY NIGHT, INCLUDING SUNDAY. MATINEES WEDNESDAY AND SATURDAY. CLAY

GLEMENT and STOCKWELL. And a Strong Company in an Adaptation of Charles Dickens' "Wickie Collins" NO THROUGHFARE.

A GREAT OBSTACLE "THE NEW DOMINION." HOLIDAY MATINEES MONDAY AND TUESDAY.

TIVOLI TWO ENORMOUS OPERATIC TRIUMPHS: TO-NIGHT, SUNDAY NIGHT, SAT. MAT. Best of Immortal Work.

"CARMEN." FRIDAY AND SATURDAY NIGHTS. World's Great Tragic Opera.

"ERNANI." NEXT WEEK—EVERY EVENING. "Cavalleria" and "Pagliacci." POPULAR PRICES—10c, 15c and 50c. Telephone, Bush 9.

ALCAZAR THEATRE THIS WEEK ONLY. MATINEES SATURDAY AND SUNDAY.

"The Masqueraders" NEXT WEEK—EXTRA MATINEES MONDAY AND TUESDAY, Sept. 10-11. SEATS NOW READY.

THE GIRL I LEFT BEHIND ME. OLYMPIA EDDY ST. MASON THE ONLY FREE VAUDEVILLE SHOW IN THE CITY.

The Ninth Series of PROFESSOR CONRADI'S LIVING STATUARY! Nothing Like It Ever in Frisco.

THE MORGANS, Comedy Sketch Artists. LAST WEEK OF KALACRATUS. The King of Novelty Jugglers.

THE BATTLE OF SAN JUAN. Portrait of Wm. Greer Harrison. Special Features. TO-NIGHT Olympic Club Night.

PAIN'S 1000 FIREWORKS! To-morrow—CHILDREN'S NIGHT! Pains and Sixteenth Sts. Grounds. SEATS FOR 10.00. Reserved, 75c and 50c. Children, this week only, 15c and 25c. Seats and Boxes at Sherman & Clay's.

FISCHER'S CONCERT HOUSE. Olive Wall, Ames C. Adm. 10c. Mrs. Howard Hanna, Pearl Hickman, Dutch Walton, Howard & Campbell and New Moving Pictures. Reserved Seats, 25c; Matinee Sunday.

POLYTECHNIC BUSINESS COLLEGE Has the largest and best equipped departments in the West. Regular business and shorthand courses. Students may enter at any time. All graduates in responsible positions. Free catalogue. Oakland, Cal.

AMUSEMENTS

ALHAMBRA Eddy and Jones stars... Phone South 770 "Christie Pull 'em Down" Opening of the regular season. TO-NIGHT—Every evening. Matinee Saturday and Sunday. Special matinee Tuesday, September 11. Magnificent spectacular revival of the nautical, farcical comedy.

SHIPANOY WITH FERRIS HARTMAN And a great cast. Attractive chorus of 50 singing voices. Elaborate costumes—magnificent scenery—up to the moment. Seats now ready—15c, 25c, 50c.

CHUTES AND ZOO EVERY AFTERNOON AND EVENING. BIG VAUDEVILLE SHOW! SEABURY, High Diver.

SPECIAL TO-NIGHT! THE AMATEURS In Their Latest Novelty, "FUN ON A FARM." Saturday Night—Jubilee Cakewalk! Telephone for Seats, Park 24.

ALTA THEATRE, 318 Grove Street, Phone South 224. TO-NIGHT, all this week with matinee Saturday and Sunday. First time on any stage—CAPTAIN JACK CRAWFORD'S great Border Drama, illustrating his life on the frontier, entitled, "ON THE HILL." General Shafter has loaned Capt. Crawford four of the Government's greatest scouts, who are now en route to China. Besides a strong cast there will be Indians, Cowboys, Packmen, etc. Prices, 15c, 25c, 50c. NEXT—"Bottom of the Sea."

SUTRO BATHS. OPEN Daily from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m. Bathing from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m. ADMISSION 10c. CHILDREN, 5c. Bathing, including admission, 25c; Children, 20c.

VICHY CELESTINS IS A Natural Mineral Water known for centuries and imported ONLY IN BOTTLES. For Disordered Stomach and Indigestion its value has been testified to by thousands. So-called Vichy in Sympoons IS NOT VICHY. Get the Genuine. Your physician will recommend it. A. VIGNIER, Distributing Agent.

WASHES KIDNEY & LIVER A PLEASANT LAXATIVE NOT INTOXICATING

WHEN YOU ORDER PALACE HOTEL It is universally acknowledged that these hotels possess the attributes that appeal to particular people—unobtrusive luxury and comfort, unsurpassed cuisine and service and superior appointments and location. Connected by a covered passageway and operated under one management on the American and European plans.

GRAND HOTEL DR. BENNETT'S ELECTRIC BELT Makes weak men and women strong and strong men and women stronger. Address POST ST., rooms 5 and 6, San Francisco, Cal.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

Hitchcock School, SAN RAFAEL, CAL., FOR YOUNG MEN AND BOYS. Separate Rooms, Gymnasium, Military Drill. CHRISTMAS TERM BEGINS AUGUST 17th. REV. C. HITCHCOCK, Principal.

TRINITY SCHOOL, 27th It is desired to contract an erroneous impression that Trinity School has been discontinued. It will open as usual MONDAY, August 6, to the 20th inclusive. This meeting will precede the Los Angeles fair and it is expected that some of the best racers in the State will be there. The track is in splendid condition.

Polytechnic Business College Has the largest and best equipped departments in the West. Regular business and shorthand courses. Students may enter at any time. All graduates in responsible positions. Free catalogue. Oakland, Cal.

Walter Baker & Co. Limited DORCHESTER MASS. EXAMINE THE PACKAGE YOU RECEIVE AND MAKE SURE THAT IT BEARS OUR TRADE-MARK. "La Belle Chocolatiere"

Under the decision of the U. S. Courts no other Chocolate or Cocoa is entitled to be labeled or sold as "Baker's Chocolate" or "Baker's Cocoa."

The Old Government Whisky BOTTLED AT THE DISTILLERY PURE-AGED-WHOLESALE. Used in the Medical Departments of the U. S. ARMY & NAVY SERVICE WILLIAM WOLFF & CO. SAN FRANCISCO, DISTRIBUTORS. Beware of Imitations or Filled Bottles.

REVERSES DECISION OF JUDGE NOYES TACOMA, Sept. 5.—In five cases involving the title to and possession of the most

INTERESTS THE COAST. Postoffice Changes and List of Pensions Granted.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Postmasters commissioned—James E. Hall, Chowchilla, Cal.; George A. Larrabee, Sara, Wash. Rural free delivery will be established on September 15 at Orange, Cal. The post-office at Villa Park, Orange County, Cal., will be discontinued. Mail should be sent to Orange.

PENSIONS were issued to-day as follows: California—Helen M. Leary, 40; Original widow—Jennie Goodrich, Los Angeles, $3. Largest annuity holder is J. W. Brenning, who had $20,000. He was formerly Chief of Police of San Diego, Cal.

FIRE IN A HOSPITAL. Discipline and Courage of Nurses Prevents Loss of Life. PORTLAND, Or., Sept. 5.—Fire was discovered shortly after 11 o'clock this morning in the roof of the Good Samaritan hospital, which is over the kitchen, which is on the top floor. The structure is a large three-story frame building. For a time after the discovery of the flames there threatened to be serious loss of life. Owing, however, to the perfect discipline and courage displayed by the nurses and other hospital employees, assisted by many persons who were in the vicinity, the patients were all removed from the building. The fire department soon extinguished the flames. The property loss is nominal.

HAY ASSURES PORCUPINE MINERS OF PROTECTION

Present Boundary Only Temporary and Interference With Americans by Canadian Customs Officials Will Not Be Tolerated. Special Dispatch to The Call.

SEATTLE, Sept. 5.—The miners of the Porcupine district, Alaska, have received from Secretary of State Hay definite assurance that "this Government does its utmost to protect its citizens in the Porcupine Creek region, whether they be temporarily within American or British jurisdiction, in the full enjoyment of all rights and privileges which they had before the modus vivendi was concluded, and to see that their freedom of access and exit, with their goods, is not unreasonably impeded."

This announcement is the result of the petition to President McKinley from 140 American miners in the Porcupine country, who complained of being brought within the territory under the laws of the Dominion of Canada, and especially protested against the location of the boundary line along the Kichik River, by which American miners were forced to enter British territory in carrying supplies to their camps. Secretary Hay discusses the proposition at length, either party when a permanent settlement of the boundary is decided upon; that in the meantime the rights of all miners temporarily within the Canadian control will be religiously protected, and that miners desiring to carry goods through the disputed territory will be permitted to do so without interference from the Canadian customs officials.

Mr. Hay goes on to say that the argument of statements presented in the petition were fully discussed, and the circumstance that the negotiation of a modus vivendi was not for two years before an agreement was reached was due to the insistence of this Government that no solution was admissible which should not recognize and guard all rights and privileges gained by the American miners and other citizens who had settled in the disputed territory. He says: I inclose for your information a copy of modus vivendi of October 20, 1899. I beg you to observe: First—That the arrangement is provisional merely and without prejudice to the claims of either party in the permanent adjustment of the international boundary.

Second—That the inconvenience of a provisional line crossing and recrossing the shifting waterway is foreseen and expressly provided for by the agreement that persons proceeding to or from Porcupine Creek shall be freely permitted to follow the trail between the said creek and the said junction of the rivers (Kichik and Chikla) into and across the territory on the Canadian side of the temporary line, whenever the trail crosses to such side, and the Canadian Government may prescribe regulations for the protection of the revenue as the Canadian Government may prescribe to carry with them over such part or parts of the trail between the said points as may lie on the Canadian side of the temporary line such goods and articles as they desire without being required to pay any customs duties on such goods and articles.

Third—And most important in its relation to the grounds of your protest, that it is stipulated that the citizens or subjects of either power bound by this agreement within the temporary jurisdiction of the other shall suffer no diminution of their rights and privileges which they now enjoy.

In closing Secretary Hay says: The rights of the United States in the matter of the treaty boundary are absolutely intact, and their assertion in due time will be earnest and thorough.

valuable mining claims in Nome, United States Circuit Judge W. V. Morrow has reversed the recently appointed District Judge, A. H. Noyes, has reversed the reversal of Alexander Noyes, who had appointed Noyes; has granted an appeal from the order appointing the receiver and has directed that the receiver be removed and that the action be taken at issue by the court in Alaska or its appointee.

The attorneys representing the men who applied to Judge Morrow for these orders make charges to the effect that a big political conspiracy has been formed, with McKenzies as the center, to gain control of the valuable mining property at Nome. The action before Judge Morrow was brought on an appeal from the judgment of Hume as Deputy United States Attorney and McKenzies as receiver.

THOUGHT THEIR FIND WAS A SACK OF GOLD Workmen Uncover Midwinter Fair Souvenirs at the Bottom of Lake Lagunitas. Special Dispatch to The Call.

SAN RAFAEL, Sept. 5.—Four men who are taking advantage of the low water at this season in Lake Lagunita to clear the bottom of the lake of rushes and leaves yesterday thought that their fortunes were made when they discovered a sack of what appeared to be 200 gold pieces among the rushes at the bottom of the lake. Holloman was industriously moving the rushes when his sytheblade rang against something metallic. Upon investigation it proved to be a salt sack of old-fashioned pieces of gold, valued at Uncle Sam's double eagles. The heart of Holloman beat faster and he was for his own and far-sighted partner, Welch and Jack O'Brien. The sack was removed to the bank and its contents emptied into a bucket. The pieces of gold were taken to the bank and the men were given their share of the find.

CRUSHED TO DEATH IN SUGAR FACTORY Awful Death of Head Machinist Robert Staples at the Oxnard Plant. Special Dispatch to The Call.

VENTURA, Sept. 5.—Robert Staples of China, the head machinist, was instantly killed in the Oxnard sugar factory late yesterday afternoon. He was repairing a mammoth idler on the revolutions per minute, when it suddenly started, crushing his head. Staples was 35 years old. He leaves a wife and three children. His body was shipped to his home to-night.

REVERSES DECISION OF JUDGE NOYES TACOMA, Sept. 5.—In five cases involving the title to and possession of the most

INTERESTS THE COAST. Postoffice Changes and List of Pensions Granted.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Postmasters commissioned—James E. Hall, Chowchilla, Cal.; George A. Larrabee, Sara, Wash. Rural free delivery will be established on September 15 at Orange, Cal. The post-office at Villa Park, Orange County, Cal., will be discontinued. Mail should be sent to Orange.

PENSIONS were issued to-day as follows: California—Helen M. Leary, 40; Original widow—Jennie Goodrich, Los Angeles, $3. Largest annuity holder is J. W. Brenning, who had $20,000. He was formerly Chief of Police of San Diego, Cal.

FIRE IN A HOSPITAL. Discipline and Courage of Nurses Prevents Loss of Life. PORTLAND, Or., Sept. 5.—Fire was discovered shortly after 11 o'clock this morning in the roof of the Good Samaritan hospital, which is over the kitchen, which is on the top floor. The structure is a large three-story frame building. For a time after the discovery of the flames there threatened to be serious loss of life. Owing, however, to the perfect discipline and courage displayed by the nurses and other hospital employees, assisted by many persons who were in the vicinity, the patients were all removed from the building. The fire department soon extinguished the flames. The property loss is nominal.

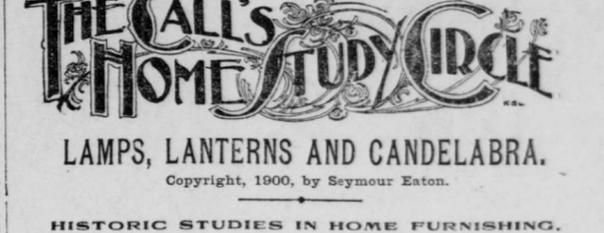

Takes Overdose of Laudanum. REDDING, Sept. 5.—Only lack of knowledge of the properties of laudanum prevented Henry Ehrmann from being a subject for the coroner. He took an overdose of the poison to-day and will recover. Ehrmann is a laborer at Paulsen's ranch in Trinity county. The cause of his rash act is said to be unappreciated love.

Distric Fair for Santa Ana. SANTA ANA, Sept. 5.—The Thirty-second District Agricultural Association to-day decided to hold a race meeting and agricultural fair in this city from October 17 to the 20th inclusive. This meeting will precede the Los Angeles fair and it is expected that some of the best racers in the State will be there. The track is in splendid condition.

Rain in Shasta County. Special Dispatch to The Call. KEWICK, Sept. 5.—General rain prevailed over Shasta county all last night and to-day. It harmed neither rancher nor fruit raiser and was a blessing to placer miners.

MURDERS MAY HAVE FOLLOWED BROKEN ROW Neighbor of Hans Rasmussen and William Taylor Suspected. Revenge the Probable Motive for the Double Crime Committed Near Folsom. Special Dispatch to The Call.

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 5.—Sheriff Johnson, who has complete charge of the investigation into the sensational Folsom murders, reported to-night to The Call correspondent that there were absolutely no developments touching the motive or identity of the assassin. The Sheriff was amused at a story which appeared in a San Francisco newspaper to-day about some mysterious man, manifestly insane, who wandered on a road near Folsom without shoes and wrapped in a quilt, and with an ominous dirk secured to his waist. "As a matter of fact," said Sheriff Johnson, "I heard of this man being seen in the neighborhood of my deputies look him up. He was found to be a hobo, who had taken off his shoes in order to wash his feet. This was on Tuesday, nearly a week after the murders. The field for speculation as to who murdered Hans Rasmussen and William Taylor in their home and far-separated abodes is practically limitless, but all the theories advanced do not avail to clarify the perplexing mystery. No man known more about the investigation than Sheriff Johnson, but that official is unwilling to commit himself unequivocally to an explanation of the evidence of the case that can be made in the case is that the murderer was a man who was well acquainted with the lay of the country, but having thorough personal familiarity with the premises occupied by the victims. The thought that robbery was contemplated is not to be considered for a moment, as the best man was at either house, though the isolation of both would have permitted of their being ransacked without interruption. The suicide theory is equally as absurd. The number and location of the wounds and the absence of weapons remove all likelihood of self-murder. There remains the single motive—revenge. Both men were given alive to the town of Folsom, three miles away, they were indulging in liquor. One of them purchased a bottle of whiskey, and the other a bottle of whiskey. It is not hard to believe that while in this condition one of the men quarreled with a third person, who may or may not have been under the influence of liquor also; that this third person killed Rasmussen, and afterward, to insure his own safety, took the life of the only witness to the deed, Taylor. It may be said at this time that one murderer was not a place visited by strollers through the country, and this fact tends somewhat to confirm the belief that the murderer, whoever he is, does not live far distant from the scene of his crimes.

LAMPS, ANTERNS AND CANDELABRA. Copyright, 1900, by Seymour Eaton. HISTORIC STUDIES IN HOME FURNISHING.

BY MARGARET AINSLEE. VIII. It is a far cry from the most primitive form of lamp—skin of animals in which fat was burned—to the modern electric light, yet while the recent contrivance undoubtedly holds the palm as an illuminant its dazzling glare lacks utterly the subdued, poetic effect which the old-fashioned light-givers. More romantic than the skull lamp was the primitive shell, and to this day the variety of shell known as the "roaring buckie" is suspended as a lamp in many a northern peasant's cottage. The artistic possibilities of the hanging lamp were developed in the early Greeks and Romans, who copied it in bronze and precious metals for their lamps called "lucernae." At first these "lucernae" were made of the commonest pottery, with but one wick-hole. So feeble was the light emitted by the flax-tow or other vegetable fiber used as wicks that their number was increased so that as many as twelve wicks frequently crowded the lamp's light-giving power.

The Romans observed the custom of exchanging New Year's gifts—small coins for good luck or honey-comb as an emblem of sweetness; but the favorite gift was a golden or bronze lamp, which by its richness or novelty should commend itself to the recipient. Consequently neither expense nor ingenuity was spared in the search for unique "lucernae." The museum are filled with such treasures of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief sculpture. From the excavations at Herculaneum and Pompeii we find lamps even more delicate and tasteful than the Etruscan specimens. Some were tall and stately, reminding us of general proportion of the piano lamp, which we fondly imagine a recent institution. Among the wealthy Romans, the lamp generally hung from or rested upon a stand, and scarcely any articles of furniture were more beautifully wrought than these Roman lamp-stands. They were made of wood, or of bronze, richly adorned with relief