

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Second Week of the Great July Clearance Sale.

To-morrow begins the second week of one of the most phenomenal sales in our history. There has been no busier store in San Francisco for the past week than this one. The sales so far lead all previous records. The GREAT VALUES are the result of our determination to make a quick disposal of all ODDS AND ENDS AND SPRING AND SUMMER STOCK. Again for this week we have prepared a list of bargains unapproachable in every respect, and which we declare to be genuine record breakers.

Great Offering in Black Grenadines and Taffeta Silks.

To-morrow will show sales records such as have seldom been known—even here. We want to make this the biggest bargain event. We have determined to clear out every yard of All Silk and Mohair Grenadines, matter what the former cost. Embroidered in the lots to be cleared is a great variety of All Silk Grenadine, 4 1/2 inches wide, in exquisite striped effects. Grenadines that sold up to now for $2, $1 1/2 and $1 a yard. Your choice..... 95c

Enormous Wash Goods Sales.

Last week's wash goods sales have made this section the talk of the city. Great inducements were backed up by sterling qualities. To-morrow's prices are even lower and preparations are made for another week of great wash goods selling. PLAIN GRASS LINEN. 35 pieces Shaver Grass Linen, the kind so much used for dresses and waists, the 50 quality. Clearance price..... 15c

Great Clearing of Ladies' Suits, Dress Skirts, Silk & Wash Waists

Reductions sharp, clear and unprecedented are now in full force here. Last week was the busiest week we ever knew in this department because the values were the biggest on record. Again for this week these extraordinarily great attractions, and, no matter what the loss will be, every garment has been reduced to original cost or less, to be disposed of at once.

Comparison will convince you that these are the greatest values in this city for the money; made of all-wool blends, with Tan, Gray and Black, percaleine lined, with deep graduated founce, nicely stitched, and deep black lace, a perfect hanging skirt. To close at..... $6.50 of those early years is due the amazing scope of the scientific research of the late Professor Joseph Le Conte. Joseph Le Conte was graduated from the University of Georgia in 1845. Among his classmates he was known both as a naturalist, though his specialty was medicine. For five years he practiced as a physician in Macon, Ga. Dr. Le Conte was married in January, 1847, to Caroline E., daughter of Alfred M. Nesbit of Georgia. They had five children, of whom four are grown up and survive him.

In 1851 the professor was drawn by the great name of Agassiz to visit Harvard College, and once within its walls he felt that he had found his life's work. He thought of life as a practitioner and devoted himself to the study of natural history in the summer of 1852. He received a call to the chair of natural science in Oglethorpe University, and in 1852 became professor of geology and natural history at the University of Florida. He was there with increasing renown until 1856, when he was called to the headship of the department of geology in the University of Carolina College at Columbia, an institution whose strong literary atmosphere possessed a great attraction for him.

Dr. Le Conte entered the service of the Confederate Government as chemist, retaining that position till the close of the war. In 1866 he assisted in reorganizing the college at Columbia, remaining there two years till the call from California opened the way to the position which he has ever since filled with such eminent success. Dr. Le Conte's scientific researches and letters is unique. For profundity of research, coupled with luminous power of exposition, he was without peer. He was a geologist, a naturalist, a philosopher, and had few equals in the history of thought. Learned societies of all nationalities heaped honors upon him, and he sought the sphere of education when abroad.

Known as "Professor Joe." To the affectionate students at Berkeley he has been known as "Professor Joe." His charming personality and infectious enthusiasm for his high calling endeared him to all who came in contact with him. He was a man of letters, a philosopher, a geologist, a naturalist, a philosopher, and had few equals in the history of thought. Learned societies of all nationalities heaped honors upon him, and he sought the sphere of education when abroad.

Dr. Le Conte was a singularly fruitful and original thinker. He was a philosopher, a geologist, a naturalist, a philosopher, and had few equals in the history of thought. Learned societies of all nationalities heaped honors upon him, and he sought the sphere of education when abroad.

with tender regrets; many encouragements, mingled with earnest entreaties to take care of himself, and to keep out of draughts and damp while sleeping on the bare ground in the open air; many half suppressed tears, concealed beneath bright smiles, left my little baby boy shirking from my rough flannel shirt and broad-brimmed hat, as did the baby son of Hector from his brown corset, and beamy hair and hooding hood, and blue eyes and hurrying away to our place of rendezvous. My function in life was that of surgeon and scientific lecturer.

This is the description given by the writer of the big trees in the Mariposa Grove at Mariposa, then known as Clark's Big Tree Station: My first impression of the big trees was one of disappointment, but as I passed from one to another, I was struck by their well-made gray, both gentle and careful, he was admirably suited for my purposes. My function in life was that of surgeon and scientific lecturer.

Do not think that I am exaggerating when I say that the big trees in the Mariposa Grove are the most magnificent and sublime objects of nature that I have ever seen. They are the most magnificent and sublime objects of nature that I have ever seen.

THE YOSEMITE VALLEY

and spent the whole of the beautiful Sunday morning in the presence of grand mountains, yawning chasms and magnificent falls. What could we do better than allow these to speak for us? We were ever so venerable, majestic, and eloquent a minister of natural religion as the great old Half Dome, the Cathedral Rock, and the Veiled Bride on the right. I spent the morning with this scene before me. When sitting here I again took out of my little broken box my experiments in sliding, etc. before venturing. God bless the dear, thoughtful one who provided me with this necessary article: God bless the little fingers which arranged these needles and wound so neatly the threads. May God's choicest blessings rest upon the dear ones at home. May he, the infinite love, keep them in health and happiness until I return. Surely, absence from home is sometimes necessary to make us feel the presence of those loving hearts.

There is considerable breeze to-day; and now, while I write, the Bride's Veil is wafted in the wind, and so, naturally, the Cathedral Rock is almost lost in the blushing face of the Bride herself—the beautiful spirit of the valley. From this point I looked directly through the gate and up the valley. There again came to me a very strange sight, the huge mass of El Capitan on the one side and on the other the towering peak of the Cathedral, with the Veiled Bride retiring a little back from the too ardent gaze of admiration; then the cliffs of Yosemite, growing narrower and narrower as they approached the meadow, to enjoy the moonlight view. The moon is long since set, and the highest stars are just visible in this deep valley, although the Cathedral Rock and the snow-capped peaks are in deep shadow, and its serrated margins strongly relieved against the bright moonlight sky. On the other side are the cliffs of El Capitan, snow white in the moonlight. Above all arched the deep, black, and snow-capped Valley of the Yosemite, and before the grand cliffs of Yosemite, I lifted my heart in humble worship to the Great God of Nature. Yes, but also of Grace.

Below, at a depth of 3500 feet, the bottom of the Yosemite Valley is a level plain, and the meadows are the hotels, the orchards, the fields, the meadows (near one of these, Hawkins, even the Cathedral Rock, and the snow-capped peaks of the Yosemite Valley, in which he was for thirty-one years later.

With increasing enthusiasm we pushed on until, about 6 p. m., we reached and climbed the summit of the great granite dome, five hundred feet above the Yosemite Valley.

After breakfast we returned to Glacier Point and spent the whole of the beautiful Sunday morning in the presence of grand mountains, yawning chasms and magnificent falls.
