NO GREAT PROFIT ON A BANK'S CIRCULATION Makes Least When Interest is Highest and Money Most Needed. No amount of demonstration that the money invested in bonds might otherwise be loaned directly to the bank's customers, that engraving charges, express charges, circulation tax, redemption tax and premium on the bonds must be considered before the profits are counted, will convince the average American citizen that banks are not especially favored when they are permitted to issue circulating notes. Therefore one great step in currency reform ought to be the acceptance by the banks in the big money centers where currency is plenty and interest rates are low. Thus, in communities where the prevailing rate of interest is 4 per cent the profit on circulation is seven-hundredths of 1 per cent, shrinking to thirty-one-hundredths of 1 per cent when interest rates raise to 8 per cent. In view of these figures it is easily seen that the main object of a banknote circulation—to most currency when and where it is needed—is actually defeated by present conditions, for where the need for currency is greatest the inducement to issue it is least, and where the need is least the inducement is greatest.—New York Tribune.

Obeying the Letter of the Law. Senator Deboe of Kentucky tells a story of an episode in Bourbon County in his State. A worthless, drunken fellow, who was a common nuisance, was arrested and brought into court. He demanded a trial by jury, and the court ordered that a jury be impaneled. On the next day when the court met, there were gathered in the jury box twelve of the hardest, most disreputable characters in the county. "What does this mean?" asked the Judge. "Well," said the Sheriff, "I knew that the prisoner was entitled to be tried by a jury of his peers. It was pretty hard work to get them, but in case any of these won't do, I have a few more hovering around a whisky barrel outside." The court looked at the prisoner and at the jury. "The case is dismissed," was all he said.—New York Tribune.

LOSES REARABLE STREETCAR C. H. Hoffman Is Robbed While Riding on a Streetcar.

Despite the precautions of the police clever thieves have been doing business with the unwary. Last night C. H. Hoffman, who resides at 2100 Broadway, reported to the police that while riding on a Hayes-street car about 8:30 p. m. he was jostled by three men. He had a considerable sum of money in his pocket and reached for it, but found it intact. After riding a few blocks he noticed a diamond stud earring valued at $400, which he wore in his shirt bosom, and found it gone. So were the men. It is supposed that the work is being done by a gang of Easterners whom the detectives hope to land within the toils. Gus Talbot, who has been employed at the night by Detective Gagan of the Harbor Station on suspicion of having stolen a valuable diamond pin from one of the guests. This is the hotel where Mrs. Julius Kruttschnitt lost several thousand dollars worth of jewelry, which was subsequently recovered. The hotel people last night denied that the Talbot theft occurred in the house, but admitted being informed of the arrest of Gagan and that the stealing occurred on Market street opposite the Palace Hotel. The name of the guest could not be learned. The stolen earring was found to reside at 807 Fifth street and to be a stenographer by occupation, was taken into custody last night by Detective Gagan of the Harbor Station on suspicion of being a crook. He could give no satisfactory explanation to the officer of his constant presence in the room.
