

ROBBERY IN THE GOLD Woman Makes a Rich Strike in Skagway Claim.

Shaft Abandoned Years Ago Proves to Be a Bonanza.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

TACOMA, Sept. 6.—Rubies and free gold have been found in the Ward shaft on Burrero Creek near Skagway. A stampede has been started toward these diggings, which were worked as placers several years ago. The discovery was made by Mrs. S. Crane, who has been prospecting there for some time. She says that she began work where the Ward shaft was abandoned six years ago. At this depth the miners encountered small rubies and quartz, which runs high in free gold.

Mrs. Crane declares her strike is a rich one and that she will clean up a fortune. She has refused to sell an interest. Water seepage has caused a stoppage of work until a tunnel for drainage purposes can be driven. This will cause some delay, but in the long run will prove less costly than going to the expense of establishing a pump and hoist.

Mrs. Crane is arranging to drive the tunnel at once. Since the news of her find leaked out there has been a rush from Skagway to stake other claims along Burrero Creek.

Photographs in the Depths.

The problem of submarine photography has been taken up by a Massachusetts inventor, who has patented an apparatus combining a pair of cameras with means for artificial illumination of objects in the depths.

It has been ascertained by careful experiments (such as the exposure of sensitive plates at various depths) that, practically, not a ray of sunlight penetrates farther than 60 feet below the surface of the sea. Even in comparatively shallow water photography is out of the question from lack of light. But here is a machine that carries a light of its own, and which, by the use of very ingenious means, so it is claimed, is able to illuminate quite powerfully any object that is to be taken.

The two cameras, each of them inclosed in a large bulb of metal with a glass lens, are held by rigid arms on either side of a chamber containing strong arc lamps. They are so arranged as to point somewhat inward, and to be focused upon the same object, which is at the same time illuminated by the powerful ray thrown forward from the electric chamber.

Through rubber tubes pass wires which control the action of the cameras and lights. Thus the operator, when he wishes to take a picture is able to turn on the light and at the same time to expose the plates; all that is needed being a button. An automatic arrangement turns the exposed plate out of the way and places another in position for exposure. Owing to the relative position of the cameras, the pictures of the object from two different points of view, almost at right angles.

A very great advantage is a mile—a machine of this kind would not be available, as it would be crushed by the pressure of the water. But this is not a matter of much importance, as the apparatus is designed for use in connection with diving operations, which are not conducted very far below the surface.

Washington's Red-Haired Club.

A Red-Haired Club is the latest addition to Washington's social circles. The unique organization is a society of persons who are distinguished by the witticisms which from time immemorial have been directed against auburn-hued locks.

There is but one requirement for admission. Any one who has red hair can read his title clear in a membership. It is alleged that a constitution has been drawn up, and that in it the president is facetiously dubbed the "most lurid luminescence of the sun." The members of the new organization that no one has yet been able to positively find out the office. It is strictly a "red-headed" club, that a young man of the capital is the chief executive. At least his shock of bright red hair and his luxurious mane heard would seem to qualify him for the office. "Satellites" and "lesser lights" are the terms by which subordinate officers and members are known.

The members of the Red-Haired Club point to the fact that some of the great personages of history have been of their color. There was Davy, who was known as the "ruddy youth"; St. Paul was red haired; Mary Queen of Scots had a crown of gold hair; and Julius Caesar and Martin Luther are recorded in history as having been red-haired.

Favorite Beverages of Literary Men.

We have not far to go for the favorite beverage of England's greatest writer. William Shakespeare was content with his cup of sack, and has put his praises into the mouth of Falstaff. The whisky bottle held a peculiar temptation for Burns. Voltaire, the king of wit and of literature, was devoted to coffee drinking; in fact, some say that his habit of drinking over thirty cups a day hastened his death. Another great coffee drinker was Balzac; he never wrote a line without having his coffee cup beside him. Samuel Johnson pinned his devotion to the teacup. Once, when kind old Sir Joshua Reynolds was not mixed for me. Every body else I know seems to get along, but I'm left out in the cold. "Well, that won't happen to you in the life to come," said the sly Mr. Peppery. —Philadelphia Press.

Warmth Enough.

"Not much in this life," complained the chronic knicker, "not much in this life. Everybody else I know seems to get along, but I'm left out in the cold. "Well, that won't happen to you in the life to come," said the sly Mr. Peppery. —Philadelphia Press.

Representative Babcock of Wisconsin

shaved off his luxuriant black beard the other morning, and the doorkeeper refused to admit him to the floor of the House until he had been shaved. Mr. Babcock had not been shaved before in fifteen years.

Mother's Friend

Every mother feels a great dread of the pain and danger attendant upon the most critical period of her life. Becoming a mother should be a source of joy to all, but the suffering and danger incident to the ordeal makes its anticipation one of misery. Mother's Friend is the only remedy which relieves women of the great pain and danger of maternity; this hour which is dreaded as woman's severest trial is not only made painless, but all the danger is avoided by its use. Those who use this remedy are no longer despondent or gloomy; nervousness, nausea and other distressing conditions are overcome, the system is made ready for the coming event, and the serious accidents so common to the critical hour are obviated by the use of Mother's Friend. "It is worth its weight in gold," says many who have used it. $1.00 per bottle at drug stores. ATTACKS TRUST APACHE SCALP FOR ROOSEVELT

Daughter of the Late Mrs. Cora L. Floyd Brings Suit.

Hopes to Profit by the Decision in the Fair Litigation.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

LAKEPORT, Sept. 6.—Miss Harry A. L. Floyd, through her attorney, Edna M. Wilson and H. A. Powell, of San Francisco, has filed a complaint in the Superior Court of Lake County against James T. Boyd, Adolphus D. Grimwood and Mrs. Cora S. Keeler, trustees of the Floyd trust, by which she seeks to defeat the trust.

The Floyd trust was created by the will of the late Cora L. Floyd, widow of Captain Richard S. Floyd, who was secretary of the Lick trust. By its terms her daughter, Miss Harry A. L. Floyd, was to receive two-thirds of the net income of the trust property, the remaining one-third to be used in improving the property.

The Superior Court of Lake County, by its decree dated April 29, 1900, distributed the real estate, valued at $700,000, to the three trustees, James T. Boyd, Adolphus D. Grimwood and William T. Walker. On Mr. Walker's death the remaining trustees selected Mrs. Cora S. Keeler to fill the vacancy.

In her complaint Miss Floyd alleges ownership of all of her mother's property as sole heir and seeks to have her title quieted as against the trust. It is understood that she relies in her attack on the trust on the decision of the Supreme Court of California in the Fair suit.

The real estate involved in the suit includes Kono Tave, the handsome Floyd home on Clear Lake; Quercus ranch, consisting of 471 acres on Clear Lake of the choicest of Big Valley land; some pieces of land in San Francisco, including the North Park dock, warehouse and the Montgomery Baths; 3769 acres in Merced County, and valuable property in Alameda, San Luis Obispo, Monterey and Santa Clara counties.

Miss Floyd is a capable young woman, with business qualifications above the average, and she has for several years been observing with growing discontent the manner in which the trust property has been managed. The decision in the Fair case was hailed with delight as disclosing a possible avenue of escape from this tying-up of her patrimony.
