LOCAL SPECULATORS PLAY HEAVILY ON OVERDUE SHIP PAUL RICKMERS

The Cabled Offer From London to Pay $1000 in Case of Vessel's Arrival for Every $100 Invested on Her Causes an Unprecedented Rush for a Chance at the British Gold, and Speculation Beats All Records

NEVER in the local history of marine insurance speculation has so much money been risked on a slim chance as in the case of the overdue German ship Paul Rickmers, now out 225 days from Bangkok for Germany. Local faith in the overdue vessel has been strong all along, but now, apart from the known stability of the Rickmers, the alluring percentage offered by British speculators has caused a revival in speculation, which has reached a mark beyond any previous record.

The heights given are in addition to the soundings of the United States Hydrographic Survey, except when a minus sign precedes the height, and then the number given is subtracted from the depth given in the charts. The plane of reference is the mean of the lower low waters.
