FAIR GEMS AND FURS ARE STOLEN

Thieves Get Sable Coat Valued at Thousands.

Robbers Substitute Cheap Imitations for Pearls.

American Consul Is Asked to Make a Searching Investigation.

A sensational discovery was made when the personal effects of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Fair arrived from Paris a few days ago. The magnificent Russian sable coat, valued at $10,000, which Mrs. Fair bequeathed in her will to Mrs. Joe Harvey, was gone, and a cheap imitation affair, not worth $50, had been substituted in its place. Mrs. Fair's famous pearl necklace of five strings, valued at $15,000, had been tampered with, and instead of real pearls in the necklace, cheap imitation gems had been set in their places. Numbers of articles of jewelry which the Fairs were known to have taken to Europe were missing, and their only effects which were returned through the American consulate in Paris intact were Mrs. Fair's chinchilla and mink coats and Charley Fair's scarfpins.

Steps have already been taken to attempt to locate the stolen booty, affidavits are on their way to the American Consulate in Paris and clever detectives will be detailed in the hope that the robbers, whoever they may be, will be brought to justice.

A few days ago, when the Fairs' effects arrived from Paris, the seals that bore the insignia of the American Consulate were broken by Assistant United States Appraiser Jacob Shanon in the presence of Joseph Harvey and Charles S. Neal, administrators of the estates of the deceased, at the Federal building. One of the first articles taken out of a trunk was the famous sable coat. Mr. Harvey looked at the garment and immediately said that he always thought that the coat looked much longer.

CHEAP IMITATION.

A message was sent to Mrs. Sidney Melbourne, who was Mrs. Fair's maid at the time of the couple's tragic death in France. Mrs. Melbourne upon reexamining the coat, stated positively that Mrs. Fair never wore such a coat and Mr. Liebow, who sold the coat to Mrs. Fair, after a moment's inspection, said that it was a cheap imitation not worth the express charges. He wound up his argument by stating that in the original coat handsome lace was used four inches from the bottom on the inside lining.
