

GERMAN COUNT REDUCED TO TOLL VIOLENTLY ASSAULTS COLLECTOR

Came to America to Win an Heiress, but Lack of Personal Charm Handicaps Him and He Becomes Humble Coal Shoveler

Count Sussechin of Germany is sought by the police. They want to set him up before Judge Mogan to answer the charge of battery, the complaining witness being C. Herbert James, a collector for the San Francisco Gas and Electric Company. James avers that he was picked up by the Count and hurled through a glass-paneled door.

Since he came to the United States about four years ago the career of the Count Sussechin has been marked by social deterioration. The announced object of his visit was to find a millionaire willing to purchase his title with his person as a necessary embellishment, but his quest proved a miserable failure. The title was all right, but the person was more than the stoutest hearted would-be countess could take unto herself as husband. Nature as well as fortune had dealt unkindly with him and to his burden of impuency was added the physical unloveliness of a hedge fence. Coy young heiresses at Newport, who were just dying to have a noble prefix to their wedded name, fluttered with eagerness to see the Count and fled with horror when they saw him. To make matters worse, his wardrobe gradually degenerated and, as he had no means of replenishing it, he was finally reduced to rags and necessity of working for a livelihood. He tried to return to Germany as a stowaway, but made the trip as a coalpasser in the boiler room and so did not become a stick to it. His present home is the focus of a steamship plying between this port and the Orient. All his lofty social aspirations are the saddest of memories.

So much of the Count's biography was incidentally developed during the hearing of James' complaint by Police Judge Mogan. The alleged assault took place at 430 Polson street, a restaurant recently transferred from August Bonne to Joseph Erbin and Mary, his wife, consideration not made public. Bonne and the Count were seated at a table in the restaurant when James entered and presented to Mrs. Erbin a "closing-out" gas bill for $15.40. The lady informed him that she had just taken possession of the place and referred him for payment to Mr. Bonne. To Bonne he accordingly went, to be loudly laughed to scorn by that gentleman, vociferously aided by the Count. James then declared that if the bill were not paid on the spot the gas would be shut off at once, and ere the threat was finished he was grasped by the Count and hurled through the glass-paneled front door. His clothing was torn, and when Patrolmen Laws and Murphy responded to his shouts for aid they found him physically as well as sartorially dilapidated. They found also that the Count had fled, but they nabbed Bonne and charged him with battery.

The case has been continued to give the police a chance to round up the Count and make him a co-defendant.

Miss Bennett's bridal tour was rudely interrupted Thursday evening by his arrest for carrying a deadly revolver, to-wit, one fully loaded revolver of 45 caliber and Colt manufacture.

Bennett traveled all the way from Aberdeen, Wash., to Los Angeles, Cal., to wed Miss Ollie M. Bays of the latter city, and the young couple were blissfully proceeding by easy stages to their future home in the north when the groom committed the indiscretion of conveying his shooting iron to a terpsichorean function at Scottish Hall, on Larkin street, and having it checked with his hat and overcoat. "Be sure," he said to the young man who had charge of the cloakroom, "to have this gun where I can get it quickly when I call for it, for I don't know how suddenly I may find use for it." The young man took the pistol and then sent word to Patrolman E. J. Swift regarding Mr. Bennett's extraordinary request.

The defendant apparently did not consider his conduct extraordinary, for he told Judge Mogan that in Aberdeen's exclusive set, of which he is an exalted member, it is an erie for gentlemen to disarm themselves before entering a ballroom, as shooting in the presence of ladies is regarded as vulgar and punishable by ostracism. His admonition to the custodian of the cloakroom at Scottish Hall was simply the precaution of a prudent person who did not know what he was going against, as it was his first entrance to San Francisco society.

Then the Judge kindly explained that it was not for committing a breach of any local social code, written or unwritten, that Bennett was arrested, but for violating the municipal ordinance which prohibits the carrying of deadly weapons without special permission to do so. It was no offense, but a distinct innovation, to deposit the six-shooter in the cloakroom.

Thus enlightened, Bennett was discharged from custody, had his gun restored to him and left the courtroom with his bride.

James J. Hamilton, a foreman at the Risdon Iron Works, did not deny that he shot and injured Mrs. Hattie Nelson's pet cat, but pleaded provocation. When he buried the animal, he said, it was so rigid that he believed it had ceased to breathe and no one was more surprised than he when the news came out that an hour later it was resurrected and reslaughtered by a humane person who had heard of the incident and knew something about the tenacity with which the feline species clings to life. The provocation averred, consisted in the plundering of the poultry yard by the cat. To the animal's nocturnal raids he traced the disappearance of thirty chickens, which he had tenderly nurtured. It was at 5:20 o'clock a. m. that he fired the shot which he then considered fatal. His weapon was a shotgun and the charge was No. 12 buck.

Mrs. Nelson, owner of the deceased cat, said that Hamilton not only filled her pet full of buckshot, but also hammered its head with a rock ere he buried it. On several occasions previous to the shooting and the sepulture he had treated the cat cruelly.

Miss Anderson, a daughter of the defendant, corroborated all her father had said, and the cat's love of poultry had been her chief hobby. She had seen her chickens attacked and carried away by the Nelson cat and her total loss was thirty-six birds that were laying more than enough eggs to compensate her for their board and lodging.

Hamilton was pronounced guilty of cruelty to animals and Judge Fritz will sentence him next Tuesday. The Hamiltons dwell at 640 Connecticut street.

F. Jorgenson, a substitute mail carrier, and his wife aired their conjugal infelicity before Judge Fritz and a crowded auditorium. The man was accused of assaulting the woman in her apartment at 1207 1/2 Stevenson street, a lodging-house kept by Mrs. Lathrop. The testimony disclosed another man in the case, a barber of the name of John Glover.

Before contention separated them the Jorgensons and their three small children lived in a home which the husband had built at Ocean View. According to his story the wife was a true wife and a good housekeeper until her affections were alienated by Glover. Then she neglected her marital responsibilities and finally petitioned for divorce on the ground of cruelty, but Judge Trout denied the petition. With her children she has been living in the same house with Glover, and the husband's jealousy has carried him to the extreme of haunting the domicile. Last Tuesday afternoon he forced his way into the woman's room and she testified that he resisted ejection by striking and kicking her, for which she had him arrested.

The defendant denied the battery and Mrs. Gilman, who lives in the house, swore it was his wife who did all the battering and that while doing it she screamed for help. The landlady supported the prosecution and indignantly declared that if she suspected for a moment that Mrs. Jorgenson were not a good woman she would put her out and Jorgenson was pronounced guilty and will be sentenced next Tuesday.

Either gross cowardice or an accusing conscience was the undoing of Meyer Jacobs. He purloined a bottle of cream at 3 o'clock yesterday morning from a doorstep at Fourth and Folsom streets and had the plunder concealed under his coat when he met Patrolman Duffy half a dozen blocks from the scene of the theft. If he had passed on without betraying trepidation the officer would have suspected nothing, but he trembled so violently and otherwise so plainly revealed disturbance of mind that he was promptly stopped and searched. "That's all I've swiped," he said when the bottle came to light. He pleaded guilty to petty larceny and will be sentenced today by Judge Mogan.

Frank Hughes of 274 Dor street accuses Belle Kenny of stealing from his person jewelry valued at $329 and Judge Conlan has instructed the woman as to her rights in the case and set the trial for next Tuesday.

For striking Robert L. Stanley on the head with a money wrench Carl J. Klose was fined $50 by Judge Fritz.

Judge Mogan has set for hearing next Tuesday the case of George W. Hafner, cashier of the American District Telegraph Company's branch at 607 Market street, who is charged with embezzling about $300 of the funds entrusted to his keeping. The complainant is L. N. Miller, manager of the company.

AGENT HAZEN IS REWARDED

Secret Service Official Receives a Handsome Watch for Capture of Criminal

NETHERLANDS' REWARD

Arrest of Absconder Last October Appreciated by the Foreign Government

The Government of the Netherlands appreciates the services that George W. Hazen of the secret service department rendered that country last October. As an earnest of that appreciation it has presented the officer with a handsome watch, properly engrossed.

Early last year word was flashed all over the world that a trusted official of the Netherlands Government stationed at Batavia, Dutch India, had absconded with funds to the amount of $15,000. In course of time the information reached the chief of the secret service on the Pacific Coast, and a watch was set for the fugitive.

Early in September a man named J. T. Lee, who arrived from Yokohama, was deported on account of his papers not being correct. While he was waiting to be sent back to the Orient Agent Hazen learned from him that Lee had met H. W. Johannes, the man wanted by the Netherlands Government, in Yokohama and had arranged to meet him in New York in October.

The Nippon Maru arrived here October 7 and was held in quarantine. Agent Hazen learned that a man answering the description of the fugitive was aboard under the name of H. W. Arondez. As soon as the passengers were allowed to depart from the steamer Hazen made the acquaintance of Arondez. While coming ashore in the Government launch Hazen told Arondez that the Netherlands Consul wanted to see him. No objection was made by the suspect, who had papers which he believed would pass him without question. In fact, the Consul informed Hazen that he had certainly made a mistake, but the secret service officer would not look at it that way, and flatly accused the pretended Arondez of being the much wanted Johannes and of having forged the papers which he carried. At first the accused stuck to his story, but finally broke down and admitted he was the person wanted.

When searched nearly $10,000 in money and drafts was found on his person and later delivered to the Netherlands Government. The prisoner was subsequently returned to Batavia for trial.

The gift from the foreign Government is a handsome piece of the jeweler's handiwork, and on the inside of the case bears an inscription reciting the facts. The outside has the officer's monogram prettily engraved. Agent Hazen is proud of the gift, and as he displayed it yesterday he said he would cherish it as long as he lived.

CHIEF WITMAN TELLS HOW HE CAPTURED CONVENTION

Promises to Give Heads of Police Departments a Good Time Here Next Year

Chief of Police Wittman returned from St. Louis yesterday afternoon, enthusiastic over the fact that the next year's convention of the Chiefs of Police of the United States and Canada will be held in this city. He has promised the members a good time and will do everything possible to carry the promise into effect.

"When I reached St. Louis," said the Chief, "I found that Detroit had a clinch on next year's convention and I was told to wait till the year after. I went to work and got a number not pledged to Detroit to promise me a complimentary vote. On the last day of the convention, Chief Downey of Detroit sang the praises of his city and Assistant Chief Stewart of Toronto, Canada, made a strong plea for that city. Then I spoke of the well known hospitality of Californians and urged them to come to San Francisco and partake of our hospitality. There were 230 votes and on the first vote San Francisco had a plurality of three votes and Toronto dropped out. Then on the second vote San Francisco had a majority of thirty votes over Detroit and on motion of Chief Downey it was made unanimous."

The Chief spoke highly of the wonders of the exposition, saying that those in charge of the California building were doing great work, the building being crowded all the time.

Past Masters to Picnic

The Past Masters' Association, Free and Accepted Masons, will celebrate St. John's day to-morrow by a picnic at El Campo. There will be an address appropriate to the occasion. This association has elected the following as its officers for the current term: C. L. P. Marais, president; Andrew Christensen, first vice president; F. H. E. O'Donnell, second vice president; James Patterson, treasurer; H. J. Owen, secretary; Charles H. Bryan, marshal; Charles O. Johnson, tyler.

Reliable gas ranges $16.50, regular price $20, this week only at S. F. Gas & Electric Co., 415 Post st.

Trustees and Delegates

The following have been elected as trustees of the St. Patrick's Mutual Alliance of California for the ensuing term: Thomas M. Seary, William P. Spellman, James L. Sweeney, B. J. Royle and James A. Foley. The following were at the same time elected delegates to the Celtic Union: Thomas McGrath, John D. Condon, J. P. Hare, Thomas M. Seary and T. F. Alford.

NOME SENDS IT A MESSAGE, LARGELY REACTING TO ITS MINES

Novel Method Is Adopted to Head Facts About Seward Peninsula Disseminated. California's Developments Show Well

The Nome district, through a committee of citizens, has sent a message to the Seattle Chamber of Commerce. The message, which was prepared by E. B. Barthrup, Ira Orton, W. A. Clark, J. D. Thagard, George P. Goggin and Captain Sundlach. The news reports that other messages will be sent out from time to time to keep the public informed about Nome. The Nome merchants have subscribed a fund for this purpose. This proposition is new to mining camps, and the novelty of it will naturally attract attention. The news declares that the document is conservative. In part it is as follows:

Never before in the history of Nome or the Seward peninsula has the outlook been so full of promise as at the present time. For this there are many reasons, the first of which the fact testified to by many well known mining men, whose large interests and long experience here constitute their competent judges. The data furnished for the coming season will be greatly in excess of that of any previous year. There is no doubt that the spring cleanup alone will reach one and a quarter millions of dollars, and any quarter known judgment places the figure much higher. That the output for the winter diggings will be more than double that of any previous year.

To those who are not familiar with prevailing conditions here this winter the above statement is surprising, but when the reasons for the great increase in the gold output are explained, it will be found to be apparent that it is no over statement of fact.

The development of the winter diggings at Nome and in the immediate neighborhood exceeded the ideas of the most sanguine and the experience of the present winter season has shown conclusively that the system of wearing gravel in this vicinity are practically inexhaustible. These deposits can be mined for many years to come, and make Nome an all-year camp. That the cleanup from the winter diggings will continue to increase from year to year is an established fact.

The estimated output as above given is, of course, for the entire Seward peninsula, but there is no doubt that the Nome district will produce the greater part of it, and to divide the output among the various districts, a greater part of Nome's output will be drawn from the divide between Anvil and Dexter creeks and the Kougarok River.

SOME RICH CREEKS.
Among the creeks in the Nome district which will be the heaviest producers are the Moonlight, a tributary of Anvil; Triple, Bourbon, Cunningham, Peck, Bangor, Colborne and Innamok. The latter two tributaries of Anvil will produce $175,000; Candle Creek, $250,000; Bluff City beach, $40,000; old beach diggings, $100,000; including Anvil and other creeks, $120,000; Solomon River, $100,000 to $175,000. The latter is the Kougarok district will also be a good producer.

Besides these specified a great many very promising reports from other districts are obtainable. At first the accused stuck to his story, but finally broke down and admitted he was the person wanted.

NORTH STAR EXTENDING.
The North Star Mining Company is grading for a large cyanide plant that will be the only one in the district to date outside of a small one installed by the company some time ago. The Grass Valley Union says:

It has been known for several years that the company has lost a few thousand dollars every month by its inability to recover all the gold from its tailings. The proposition was carried by private capital. Superintendent Frode, however, has decided that a cyanide process would work out with excellent results, despite the fact that no mine in the district had ever used it. He set about experimenting with some new features. Thousands of dollars were spent in experimenting until it was decided that a plan had been hit upon which would give the desired results.

It is evident that this small plant met every condition, determining the company on the erection of a large one to handle the entire output of the new plant. The new plant will be situated almost on the edge of the road to the Omaha mine, a short distance below the mill, and the superfluous water will be carried thither by a sluice. A new style of mill will be put in to reduce the sulphurets to the required fineness.

Up to the present time the mines in this district have either shipped their sulphurets to Selby's or hauled them to the smelting works between here and Nevada City.

The Amador Ledger says that the Fremont-Grover mine that has been shut down two months will remain so for months to come if necessary. A strike caused the closing.

A geological map of the copper belt in Shasta County is in preparation under the direction of the United States Geological Survey.

The Silver State says that the most important strike in years in Humboldt County, Nev., is the recent one seven miles northwest of Kennedy. Nearly every resident of Kennedy has come to the scene and has dropped everything except the hunt for gold and silver. The Silver State also speaks of the find as "the new bonanza," and asserts that ore running as high as $32 in gold, twenty ounces in silver and ten ounces in lead has been brought in from the camp and assayed.

THIRD INFANTRY IS DUE TO ARRIVE FROM EAST TO-DAY
Will Be Encamped for a Week at the Presidio and Then Proceed to Alaska.

The Third Infantry, in command of Colonel Thomas C. Woodbury, is due to arrive here from the East to-night. They will be quartered in the model camp at the Presidio until they sail for Alaska posts on the transport Buford, leaving here July 1. They will be stationed at Fort Davis, near Nome City; Fort Egbert, near Eagle City; Fort Gibbon, near Tanana; Fort Lisicum, near Port Valdez, and Fort William H. Seward at Haines Mission.

A court-martial composed of the following officers will convene in the infantry cantonment at the Presidio at 10 o'clock a. m. on Tuesday, July 28: Lieutenant Colonel W. B. Pitcher, Captains J. A. Lynch and J. B. Gowen, Lieutenants E. W. Robinson, T. J. Rogers, G. C. Rockwell, B. T. McClellan and John Randolph.

The First and Second battalions of the Tenth Infantry, Colonel C. H. Noble, will leave the Presidio Saturday morning, July 2, for American Lake, Wash., to take part in the regular annual maneuvers of the Department of the Columbia.

The Twenty-eighth Infantry, which had expected to take the fine cantonment now occupied by the Tenth when the latter regiment goes north, are doomed to disappointment. It was decided at headquarters yesterday that they are to remain where they are now quartered.

It is reported that the Fourth Cavalry, due here October 15, will only remain at the Presidio until April, when they will be sent to Manila.

Lieutenant William E. Gilmore, Fifteenth Infantry, from Ord Barracks, reported at headquarters yesterday. He is staying at the Occidental.

Captain John H. Parker, Twenty-eighth Infantry, now in Washington, D. C., is expected back at the post the latter part of next week.

FAVORABLE CONDITIONS.
Recent developments in the mining industry of the Pacific Coast are generally favorable. In several sections much activity is reported. The extension of dredger mining in California continues to be a matter of interest. News is received concerning various dredging enterprises that are expected to reclaim the gold that has long been hidden in sands. Ground has been prospected near Red Bluff by Dr. McCullough, who is preparing to dredge. Twenty miles of creek bed have been bonded on Cottonwood Creek from several owners. Hydraulic mining was formerly carried on in the locality. Other parties have bonded other tracts extending for a distance of twenty miles. The land near Red Bluff will soon be prospected with the drill. A phase of dredger mining is the increased assessment that is placed on lands to be dredged. County Assessor Berkeley of Sacramento says that mining lands near Folsom that formerly were assessed at $7 to $15 an acre are now assessed for purposes of taxation at $100 an acre, and there is no complaint regarding the assessment.

The bonding of properties and the securing of options in conditions of interest in varied branches of mining at H. Christie has an option, so reports the Redding Free Press, on the Sykes Mining Company's property, the Larch mine and the Volmer ranch, at Trinity Center, in Trinity County. These properties include about 1400 acres of gravel, of which more than half is reported to be good dredging ground. A lease on the Nevada County mine, in the heart of Nevada City, has been obtained by A. Maltman, superintendent of the Murchie mine. The Blue Lead copper claims, in Siskiyou County, near the Oregon line, in the vicinity of Applegate, have been sold to J. F. Reddy and E. L. Jones. A bond has been executed on the Excelsior and Campbell mines to Los Angeles people. These mines are in Nevada County. The Grant Valley Union says that the Kenton mine, at Allegheny, will probably be reopened. There are a few of the symptoms that show mining interest.

WORKERS AND PLANTS.
Men have been put on the Lincoln shaft of the Wildman mine repairing it.

preliminary to the reopening of the mine. As soon as the works are in running order and the mines are clear of water the property will once more be operated.

The Placerville Nugget reports that the Bonest mine, near Jurgens, will have a new mill. Five stamps have been added to the Mammoth mine near Jurgens. The new mill at the Monte mine, in the Gold Hill district, is running steadily. The old Eureka gold quartz mine shaft is being cleaned out.

A strike is reported to have been made in Calaveras County, in the San Andreas Gold Channel mine.

The Redding Free Press reports that H. S. Wilson is of the opinion that the Clover Creek Quicksilver Company has a fine quicksilver deposit on Clover Creek, Shasta County. The property will be developed. Supplies and materials for the roasters, so says the Free Press, have been shipped in to the mine.

According to the Calaveras Chronicle there is quite a boom in the Railroad Flat mining district in Calaveras County. The Bullion and Riverside Consolidated mines have been bonded to E. L. Holder, C. W. Higgins and F. Brackett and development work has begun on the properties. The mines are on the south fork of the Mokelumne River. Considerable work was performed by the owners some time ago, but they were hampered by lack of capital. J. H.aley of West Point is reported to have good properties on the Licking fork of the Mokelumne. Dr. Aiken of Amador County also has two properties on the Licking fork.

Concerning what is doing in the mining districts of Siskiyou County the Yreka Journal says in part:

"A shaft 250 feet deep has been sunk on the Headwaters mine on North Fork of Humburg Creek. The McKinley mine on Humburg keeps thirty men employed. The Spangler mine is worked day and night with full crews. Brokaw is sinking a shaft on the Hull Gulch quartz mine in the Quartz Valley district."

Meeting of Commissioners at Chicago First Move in Battle for Rehabilitation

CHICAGO, June 24.—The United States Merchant Marine Commission, created under the provisions of the Gardner bill, passed at the last session of Congress, conferred with Chicago manufacturers, shippers, exporters and bankers to-day with a view to formulating plans for rehabilitating the merchant marine of this country on the high seas.

After leaving Chicago the members of the commission will visit the Pacific Coast. It is the intention of the commissioners to formulate a definite plan for increasing the number of ships carrying the American flag and submit the plan to Congress for consideration next session.

Senator Gallinger, in calling the meeting to order, said it was a source of gratification to the commission to note the great interest the movement had aroused among shippers and business men in all parts of the country.

John Barrett, former Minister to Siam and Argentina and at present Minister to Panama, said he had traveled around the world five times and had recently completed a trip of 50,000 miles in the interest of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition and in all his journeys regretted to say he did not see one merchant marine ship flying the American flag. He described the great wealth of the Argentine republic and expressed the belief that the United States should establish a subsidiary line of ships between this country and the principal South American ports.

Captain W. Bates of Denver read a long paper on the rise and fall of merchant marine.
