BANK RESERVE SHOWS A GAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The Financier says: The official statement of the New York Associated Banks last week was a very encouraging exhibit. Though the cash gain was much below the estimates, which was based upon the traceable movements of money during the week, the decrease in deposits, resulting from contraction in loans, was so great as to cause an important gain in the surplus reserve. It seems surprising when the fact is considered that the estimates showed that the banks had gained heavily of cash, chiefly through the receipts of Australian and Japanese gold and of domestic bullion, amounting to $5,379,560, while the net loss on the interbankment was much more than offset by a gain by the banks from the sub-treasury, that the increase in cash as officially reported should have been only $311,490. Though the Australian gold was not transferred here from San Francisco until Thursday, thereby counting for only about $3,000,000 in the averages, the receipts of cash from other sources were continuous, and they should naturally have been reflected in the statement. It is possible, however, that there were unrecorded losses of cash through transfer of excess internal revenue collections, which would account for the greater part of the discrepancy. The deposits were decreased $12,038,300, causing a reduction in the reserve requirements by $2,009,575, which sum added to the gain in cash made $3,360,975 as the increase in the surplus reserve to $15,957,875, against $17,431,250 a year ago and $5,008,250 at the corresponding date in 1902. Computed upon the basis of deposits, less those of $23,262,700 public funds, the surplus is now $21,773,560. In view of the somewhat buoyant speculation on the Stock Exchange and the negotiations of large amounts of railroad mortgages, the contract of $11,975,800 in loans may be regarded as remarkable. It would seem to show that Stock Exchange requirements did not tend greatly to augment borrowing by commission houses, and that liquidation of loans, as the result of the previous week's unfavorable bank statement, much more than offset new loans for bond negotiations. It may be noted that the loan expansion since August 27 now amounts to $34,956,200, the net cash loss since August 20 to $46,738,400 and the net reduction in the surplus reserve since that date to $42,655,300.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, but Safe and Effectual Cure for It.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloated sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing, headaches, general appetite, nervousness and a feeble played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which cannot be torturing in any way, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harrison the safest and most effective use of each meal a tablet composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and do not contain any opium or other narcotic. They are safe and sure, and can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. R. S. Workman, Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the poisonous discharge from passing backward into the throat reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of stomach without cure, but to-day I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found fresh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, Catarrh of stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

ABLY DISCUSS ISSUES OF NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

Belshaw and Davis Address Voters of Sausalito.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

SAUSALITO, Oct. 15.—The largest and most enthusiastic Republican mass-meeting of the campaign was held here to-night in honor of Charles M. Belshaw, Republican candidate for re-election for joint Senator from Marin and Contra Costa counties. The Sausalito band met Mr. Belshaw at the depot and escorted him to the hall, where a vast audience awaited him, and when he took his seat upon the platform he was heartily cheered.

W. J. Martin, chairman of the evening, called the meeting to order and in a few well chosen words introduced Mr. Belshaw, who spoke in part as follows:

"The present campaign is not materially different from that of four years ago, and I am constrained to believe that the result will be the same. 'The trials and hardships of '93, '94 and '95 should still be fresh in the minds of all and I do not believe there is any desire on the part of our citizens to return to them. We cannot afford to retrograde. We are too well satisfied with progress and prosperity. And this we have had in the fullest measure during the last eight years under Republican administration. Protection to American labor and American industry is still our watchword and under its beneficent influence we shall continue to build up and strengthen our nation. 'A fair day's pay and a chance to earn it' is still guaranteed by the policies of the Republican party. The home market is that for which we contend and we shall not surrender it to foreign nations by a reckless reduction of our protective tariff. History tells us that since the establishment of our Government our years of progress and prosperity have been under the influence of protective tariffs; tariffs enacted for the purpose of protecting our laboring men against the pauper wages of foreign countries. History also tells us that all of our periods of depression and hard times have been during those years when the tariff was on the 'revenue only' basis, or at least it was not constructed with the idea of protecting our industries and laborers. Our Democratic friends have denounced our present tariff as 'robbery.' They assert that on account of the high tariff the people are compelled to pay too much for what they must buy; that a reduction of the tariff would bring about a much needed reduction in the price of commodities and that the people would therefore be the gainers.

"It is a much better state of affairs to have prices high and money to buy with than to have prices cheap and no money. High prices and high wages are the best evidences of general prosperity, and general prosperity is the best indication of the welfare of a country and its people. The prosperity of our United States and the general condition of our people surpass that of any nation on earth. The necessities of our laboring men would be considered luxuries by the laboring people of other lands. And the many luxuries which are enjoyed by our laborers are often not had by the upper and middle classes of Europe. Our universal condition of plenty is the direct result of the protective policy of the Republican party. Our people are aware of this; they are satisfied with their condition, and I do not believe they are going to vote against the party whose policies and administration have made life so pleasant and enjoyable for them.

"Theodore Roosevelt stands to-day the foremost of Americans. His sturdy character and perfect manhood are not admired by the people of his own country, but by the people of the world. No President of these United States has ever attracted the attention of the people of the world generally and gained their admiration and esteem more than has Theodore Roosevelt. He is distinctively a man from the people, and by training and association has eminently fitted himself for the position which he now holds and to which the people will re-elect him on the 8th day of next November."

Hon. John F. Davis followed in a masterful address. He was born and spent his early youth in Marin County and was soon at home with his audience. He first said a good word for Mr. Olmsted, the candidate for the Assembly, and then paid a glowing tribute to the faithfulness and rugged honesty of his friend, Senator Belshaw.

He explained at length how the present unwieldy size of the House of Representatives has compelled the adoption of a working plan under which the form and even the text of all important bills is determined in the caucus of the predominant party and how a constituency is handicapped unless it is represented by one who can on account of his affiliation with the party in power go into such a caucus and there take part in the formation of the bill itself. He showed how of late years diligent Democratic members have been reduced to appealing to United States Senators to back their amendments, when acceptable to the majority, on to the bill in the Senate, and thus accomplishing what little they can; that if in the future the membership of the House shall be reduced to something like its former size, then the House can resume its mission as a deliberative body, and minority members again have some influence in debate on the floor, but until that time a minority member on the floor is simply a voice crying in the wilderness, for the deliberation takes place in the caucus, and the vote on the floor is a ratification of the caucus deliberation.

"If you are a non-partisan, therefore, but believe that this administration has done so well that the Republicans will control the next House, then you should vote for a Republican in Congress, for he can be present in person at the political council board and more effectively help shape legislation in favor of your local interests than the most brilliant Democrat, who may not enter. If you are a Republican and believe in the maintenance of the principles and policies of your party, and in sustaining the hands of your President, then it is political idiocy to vote for any Democrat for Representative, no matter how able, for if the Democrats gain control of the House, they can, under the present system, clog and block the wheels of every beneficent policy contemplated by the Republican party."

"The argument on national matters was a straightforward discussion of policies and events, and the appeal was not to Republicans, but was addressed to those Democrats who had voted for McKinley on the one hand, and to those Democrats who had followed Bryan and still believed that his policies are right on the other.

"Why has this campaign thus far been so quiet? Simply because the Democrats have been unable to agree among themselves upon anything that can be given the semblance of an issue. Those things that could be made an issue they cannot agree upon, and the few things upon which they can agree cannot be tortured into an issue. That is the uncontroverted fact. Roosevelt and his party are of one mind—they agree—they represent a definite policy upon everything. On the main questions that can arise Parker and his party are not in accord. The Democratic party is, for example, rent in twain on the all-important question of finance.

"Let me for the moment address myself to those of you who voted for McKinley on account of your opinions on the question of sound money. You remember the famous debate in the committee on resolutions at the St. Louis convention. The views upon that subject there expressed represented 'everything from Bedlam to Belmont.'"

"So hopelessly was the party divided that finally, after the most strenuous debate of the session, after demonstrating to the country by the length of time devoted to the subject their appreciation of its vital importance and finding they could not agree, the promoters of the candidacy of their eventual nominee, realizing they were in a hopeless minority, stuck their heads in the sand, and, leaving all else of their anatomy exposed, in desperation resolved that there was no issue on the subject at all—the majority of the committee, with the mental reservation that free silver was simply in abeyance on account of a temporary increase in the physical production of gold, and the minority with the mental reservation that the gold standard was 'irrevocably fixed.' The gentleman who placed their candidate in nomination, answering the taunts that the views of his candidate were unknown on the financial question, and that he had given no sign, boldly proclaimed that 'strategy is not sin.' Let us assume that it is not sin.

"The fact that it was used at all showed its necessity, and its necessity conclusively disclosed the fact of the irreconcilable conflict of opinion on a great, all-important public question. The subsequent telegram was predicated upon an open acknowledgment of the existence of this fact. That intense situation still exists. The mere declaration of men in the desperation of physical exhaustion that it does not exist amounts to nothing. Judge Parker states in his letter of acceptance that 'he believes' the gold standard is 'irrevocably fixed,' and the next day Mr. Bryan 'has nothing to take back.' Senator Newlands at the Alhambra Theater in San Francisco proclaims that 'free silver is simply in abeyance,' and Mr. Tobin of the Hibernia Bank, chairman of the meeting, suddenly stops applauding and looks in a pained way toward 'the faces of those whom in late years we have not had the pleasure of seeing with us.' It's not funny. It's as serious to you now as it was to those desperate debaters in the committee on resolutions. Suppose Mr. Parker should be elected and these should come during his term a temporary money stringency from any cause, the whole controversy of that committee-room would be precipitated upon us in a moment, with all its old-time fury. Would Parker then be true, or would he, in the face of a militant majority of his party, again weakly believe that 'strategy is not sin'?"

Other speakers were S. H. Olmstead, candidate for the Assembly, and L. C. Pistolesi, candidate for Supervisor. The Corte Madera McKinley-Belshaw Club, sixty strong, journeyed to Sausalito to hear the speakers.

Scaly scalps

Nine people out of every ten have trouble with their heads. Many of them suffer from a species of eczema, which forms a dry scale upon the skin of the scalp, popularly known as dandruff.

If this condition be neglected the hair follicle loses all its vitality, the hair becomes brittle and falls out and baldness is the inevitable result.

Coke Dandruff Cure has proved to be the only reliable cure for this annoying condition. It positively removes, with one or two applications, every trace of dandruff. Faithfully used it will cure every diseased condition of the scalp (except constitutional blood disorders), and will produce a luxuriant, glossy growth of hair after all other remedies have failed.

This is a strong statement and one which we would not dare to make if we were not in possession of thousands of grateful letters from people in every walk of life, who have proved, to their intense gratification, the wonderful powers of Coke Dandruff Cure.

If you are annoyed with any scalp trouble whatsoever, get a bottle to-day. Your druggist will tell you the same story of uninterrupted triumph. Coke Dandruff Cure contains absolutely nothing of an injurious nature and may be used on the heads of the most delicate.
