

PLAYS SLEUTH WITH SUCCESS

V. Giovannoni, After Eleven Months, Finds One of Trio That Stole His Gold Coin

SHOWS HIM TO OFFICER

Luigi de Graccia Arrested and Will Be Charged With Grand Larceny by Victim

V. Giovannoni, 29 Hinkley alley, met Policeman de Guire on Kearny street yesterday afternoon and, handing him a card, pointed to a man on the opposite side of the street. The card bore on the back a request to any policeman to arrest any man pointed out by him as having stolen a gold coin from Giovannoni. He was signed by Detectives Ryan and Taylor. De Guire arrested the man pointed out by Giovannoni, and he was locked up at the City Prison. His name is Luigi de Graccia.

Ever since December 24 last Ryan and Taylor have been searching for De Graccia, who is said to be a clever bunko man. On that day it is alleged he met Giovannoni on Broadway and told him he knew of a vegetable garden for sale. Giovannoni procured $450 in gold which he put in a sack and accompanied De Graccia to the Mission road. They went into a saloon and were joined by two other Italians who were introduced to Giovannoni as the owners of the garden.

Giovannoni was induced to take a few drinks and one of the trio stole the sack containing the $450 from his pocket. Giovannoni protested and he was handed a $10 Confederate bill and told to get out. He reported the case to the police.

It is thought that De Graccia had left the city. When searched a card of a hotel at Bakersfield was found in his pockets, also $65 worth of Confederate bills. Ryan and Taylor believe that De Graccia was one of four men who swindled Giovanni Rossi out of $300 during a card game near a cemetery on October 21. Rossi was induced to go with them, as they offered to sell him a vegetable garden. They got him into a saloon and introduced him to the card game. Rossi will be asked to have a look at De Graccia.

CHARLES JACKSON BRUTALLY KICKS HELPLESS WOMAN

Row Over Hat Leads to Fendish Assault That May Result in Death of Mrs. Hicks.

Rosetti Hicks, a cook employed at a restaurant on Mission and Twentieth streets, was the victim of a brutal assault at the hands of Charles Jackson, who, with his wife, resides in the same house with Mrs. Hicks.

The trouble which sent the Hicks woman to the Emergency Hospital for treatment for a broken nose and a fractured skull, had its inception over a new hat that Mrs. Jackson accused Mrs. Hicks of taking. When Mrs. Jackson's husband returned to his home his wife told her side of the trouble. Jackson at once forced his way into the room where Mrs. Hicks lay in bed and without assigning any cause for his abrupt entry he seized her by the feet and pulled her from her bed to the floor, where he kicked her head and face.

His blows broke her nose and fractured her skull. She was sent to the Emergency Hospital by Police Officer J. A. Ryan, where Dr. Pawlicki dressed her nose and placed her in charge of the matron pending observations.

Jackson was arrested and brought to the hospital, where he was identified by the abused woman. He was subsequently booked at the City Hall station on the charge of an assault, with intent to do grievous bodily harm.
