

JURY OF MARRIED MEN TO TRY NAN PATTERSON

Of Twelve Talesmen to Hear the Case But One Is Single DEFENDANT AGAIN TO OCCUPY STAND Not Yet Determined What Part Smith Pair Shall Take

NEW YORK, April 19.—The jury which is to decide the fate of Nan Patterson, on trial for the third time on the charge of murdering Caesar Young, was completed at 7:40 o'clock to-night, when Recorder Goff adjourned court until next Monday morning. Miss Patterson is again to face a jury composed almost entirely of married men, only two of the accepted panel of twelve being single, one a bachelor, the other a widower. Most of the jurors are men of middle age and beyond. Many of them have large families, some daughters who are married. It was announced to-night that the defendant will take the stand again and tell her story. It is also said that Miss Patterson is anxious that her sister, Mrs. J. Morgan Smith, should become a witness for the defense, although it has not been determined whether, either by the prosecution or the girl's lawyers, just what part the Smiths shall play. After the adjournment of the court Miss Patterson had a little chat with her father and was then led back to her cell in the Tombs. Her counsel declares that the girl is well pleased with the jury. Throughout the day she had evinced the keenest interest in the examination of the talesmen.

MYSTERY OF A BURGLARY IS ACCIDENTALLY SOLVED

Officers While Searching for a Petty Thief Find Cracksmen and Their Plunder.

BAKERSFIELD, April 19.—The mystery of the bold burglary that occurred at the big Ardizzi-Olcse department store last night, when a quantity of goods valued at $1500 was stolen, was cleared up to-night when Sheriff Kelly and Marshal Davis arrested three Mexicans in a shanty near the Santa Fe tracks and found buried beneath the floor nearly all of the stolen property. The officers went to the shanty on the track of a man who had stolen some cigars, and the discovery of the key to the other robbers was a pure accident. In the capture of the three Mexicans the authorities believe they have put an end to the many burglaries that have occurred at frequent intervals in the city.

Followers of Dowie Decline Medical Aid for Their Daughter and Police Interfere.

PORTLAND, Or., April 19.—The power of the City Attorney and the Police Department were called in today to take a young woman suffering from blood poisoning to the hospital. Several days ago Miss Dorothy Webster, employed in the office of a department store, pierced her arm with a desk spindle. Blood poisoning ensued. The girl's parents are followers of John Alexander Dowie and refused to call a doctor. Members of the firm knew the girl's condition and asked City Physician Zan to attend her. He was ordered from the house. Then the City Attorney was appealed to, and accompanied by several policemen, the doctor forcibly took the girl from the house and placed her in a hospital.

FACTS VERIFY OLD LEGEND

Special Dispatch to The Call.

LONDON, April 19.—Until few persons were aware that there still existed in England a herd of wild white cattle have been the most cherished descendants of the aboriginal bulls and cows that were kept by the ancient Britons. For centuries the white cattle have been the most cherished possession of the family of Earl Ferrers at their famous Chartley estate in Staffordshire. It was first established there in the reign of Henry III. All that remains of the once mighty herd that used to roam through the forests and over the moors surrounding Chartley—less than a dozen shaggy beasts—have just been bought by the Duke of Bedford. Their disposal in this fashion puts the finishing touches to the singular verification of an ancient legend that the birth of black calves in the herd portended death or dire disaster to the family or its possessions. The legend began to be respected in 1322, after the battle of Burton bridge between Edward II and his revolted Barons, with a Ferrers among them. A black calf being born that year at Chartley and the second downfall of the house ensuing—the first had been preceded by a similar occurrence—this was imputed to the black quadruped rather than to the impolitic patriotism of the Earl, and it was ruthlessly slaughtered.

FORTUNES OF ESTATES.

By marriage Chartley passed to the Shirleys, who were oppressed by Cromwell as royalists and later rewarded by Charles II with the revival of the Ferrers barony. The Earl Ferrers of Queen Anne's time had fifteen sons and twelve daughters, which greatly impoverished the patrimony. His grandson, the notorious Lawrence, Earl Ferrers, was executed at Tyburn in 1690 for the murder of his steward. According to superstitious chroniclers every vicissitude in the affairs of the family has been heralded by the birth of a black calf. The present Earl Ferrers showed his contempt for the legend by introducing a black bull into the herd. His object was to combat the decadence resulting from continuous inbreeding by introducing a new variety. In 1903 a herd of black calves were born in the herd. This intentional sully of the whiteness of the breed was followed by what folk who take pride in noble heritages regard as the crowning disaster in the annals of the family—the sale of the entire estate, feudal fortress, historic associations, park, broad acres and all the rest, at auction.

HERD IN GOOD HANDS.

And thus was lost to the family a property which though it had many times changed hands through death, through marriage, or at the sword's point, had never been subjected to the ignominious fate of being bartered for current coin. Now that the herd itself has been sold none of the Earl's former tenants at Chartley believe that his descendants will ever regain possession of the estate. However, the herd has fallen into good hands. Both the Duke and Duchess of Bedford are devoted to dumb animals of all sorts and have the largest private collection in the country. They can be trusted to apply the restorative remedies necessary to perpetuate these interesting relics—the introduction of fresh blood and the rearing of new born calves by foster mothers. Professor Robert Wallace suggests that the off-colored calves of these white cattle, instead of being slaughtered as has heretofore been the custom, should be collected in one park and allowed to breed indiscriminately. "The possibilities are great," he says, "of obtaining profoundly interesting scientific as well as useful practical results from efforts made in that direction. Had a proposition of similar scientific interest to America arisen in that country, the calves in question would no doubt have been bought by the Department of Animal Industry, or such an institution as the State Agricultural College at Ames, Iowa, where 800 cattle of many different breeds are available for experimental and teaching work. Results of profound scientific interest to the whole bucolic world could hardly have failed to develop from the action."

GIFT TO KING BY CARNEGIE

Special Dispatch to The Call.

LONDON, April 19.—Americans who have given the English town of Plymouth a place in their European itineraries for this summer will be interested in a story told by Dr. William J. Holland, director of the Carnegie Institution at Pittsburgh. Dr. Holland is here to superintend the getting up of a replica of the great diplopus which Andrew Carnegie has presented to King Edward and which, at his Majesty's suggestion, is being placed in the natural history branch of the British Museum. In company with Arthur Coggeshall, one of the Carnegie Institution's department heads, Dr. Holland landed at Plymouth from an incoming American liner and decided to spend Sunday in the town. Part of Sunday they gave to a walk about the old seaport, following as far as possible the footsteps of the pilgrims of 1620. One place after another said to have been associated with the historic emigrants they visited, until finally they met a native who offered to show them the actual house in which the band met for the last time before setting out on their famous voyage. Interested, of course, Dr. Holland and his colleague were taken to a building of suitably ancient appearance, while the native related the legends of the last days before the Mayflower's sailing. Dr. Holland, however, went so far as to look up the owner of the building. "And so there's where our ancestors met nearly 300 years back, is it?" he asked. "Not that I know of," replied the owner. "I built that house about forty years ago."

WALL STREET ARE WARNED BY LAWSON

Bostonian Predicts a Panic on Wall Street.

Special Dispatch to The Call.

BOSTON, April 19.—Thomas W. Lawson sent out the following statement to-day: "The first section of the long-promised 'First Great Crime of Amalgamation' will be issued to-morrow. In it I will show we are on the verge of a great panic. In addition to many factors which are fast shaping for a general Wall street hell, I warn the holders of coppers that a quick, sharp break of three or four cents a pound in metal is being engineered. "If the quick, sharp slump comes in Amalgamated—and it will—bear in mind Copper Range and Trinity will be exceptions, as both will hold firm and then shoot ahead. "During the past three weeks the reckless gang in Wall street, headed by No. 26 Broadway, have been having their turn. It is mine now. "As I have 'friends at court' who post me in advance of their movements, I have Range and Trinity and ran along with them on Amalgamated and Smelters, thereby securing more than enough profit to offset my paper losses on Boston coppers I am short of. I let them have my Amalgamated and Smelters on Monday and Tuesday, while blackmailing the 'laborers' are having me covering at a big loss and have added to my short line of fake Boston coppers, Utah and Bingham particularly."

"THOMAS W. LAWSON. "April 19, 1905. "P. S.—I give this notice twenty-four hours in advance simply to show I am not dependent upon any quick snap advertisements for assistance. T. W. L. "P. S. 2.—Bear in mind, I take no stock in the legitimacy of the break in the price of metal. When it comes it will be, in my opinion, artificial, for purposes, and solely for the purpose of rufing the game." T. W. L."

BLUEBEARD HOCH PLACED ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Pleads Not Guilty to the Charge of Having Killed a Former Wife.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Johann Hoch, self-confessed bigamist, was placed on trial in the Criminal Court this afternoon for the murder of Marie Walcker Hoch, one of his wives. Mrs. Amelia Fischer Hoch, defendant's last wife and sister of Mrs. Marie Walcker Hoch, will be one of the principal witnesses for the State. Mrs. Fischer Hoch declares she saw Hoch give some white powder to her sister just before the latter's death. The prosecution, in order to make it possible for a wife to testify, will offer evidence that Mrs. Fischer Hoch was not Hoch's legal wife at the time. Hoch was charged with the murder of Marie Hoch in 1897. He was acquitted on the ground that counsel wanted time to examine the new indictments. Judge Kersten acceded.

STRANGER FOUND DEAD IN HALLWAY OF LODGING-HOUSE

Lifeless Body of Man Supposed to Be Louis Hubner Is Found by a Japanese Servant.

A man, supposed to be Louis Hubner, formerly an employee of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, was found dead in a hallway at the Sainte Marie, a lodging house at 1333 Polk street, yesterday afternoon. The dead man had probably wandered into the house to visit a lady friend whose letters were found in his pockets. By the side of the body was found a partly consumed bottle of carbolic acid. A union book of the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association was in a coat pocket and a medal for bravery, bearing the name of Louis Hubner and dated 1902, given him by the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, was among his effects. The dead man had evidently been playing the races, as two grandstand tickets, dated April 18, and a check for admittance to the paddock were in the pockets of his clothing. Mrs. Oakley, the proprietor of the Sainte Marie, was peculiarly reticent about the affair and would not talk upon the subject, saying that she did not know who the alleged suicide was and that he had never been in her house before. She did not know who the woman residing at the Sainte Marie could be who wrote the young man the letters signing her name "Wad."

FIGHTS GAMELY WITH ROBBERS

Two robbers entered the saloon of Jeremiah Jesmond, at Twenty-second and Harrison streets, last night and after brutally beating the proprietor took $50 from the till and escaped. Jesmond lies at the City and County Hospital badly injured.

The men entered the place about midnight and ordered drinks. When Jesmond started to serve them he heard the order, "Throw up your hands," and when he turned faced a leveled revolver. Jesmond, instead of obeying, jumped over the bar and grappled with the man who held the pistol. The other man drew a revolver and beat Jesmond over the head until he fell senseless. Then the pair opened the till and took $50 in gold and a small amount of silver. Jesmond did not recover consciousness until the robbers had made good their escape. The men were roughly dressed. One of them was clean shaven and the other wore a dark mustache. The latter is the one that struck Jesmond on the head with the revolver. His partner cried, "Kill the——!" At the hospital it was found that Jesmond had possibly a fracture of the skull. He is certain that he can identify the robbers. The police were notified and detectives are now scouring the Mission district in search of the desperadoes.
