Home Where Little Ones May
Open Their Eyes in Comfort
Receiving Attention

BY LAURA BRIDE POWERS.

Over on Harrison street in the 1200 block is a home where babes of the poor may open their eyes to the big, blinky old world in cleanliness and comfort. "Strangers," you say, "that babes should be sent to the wretchedly poor—the poor that hath no shelter for the shivering little lambs of heaven that are not needed to bedevil—and oftentimes not wanted."

"It's all wrong," you say, "this trusting into the world of a human soul for whose reception no provision is made, nor for its care or future development."

And you may even go so far as to deny the right of women to bear children, who have not a fit and decent place in which to bear them and rear them. You may even call this animality, a blot on our social conditions, or a personal crime; but if crime it be, no day goes by but dozens of cases come to light where no provision whatever is made for the coming of the little stranger, no clothing for his little pink body, and no one to tend it as it lies helpless beside its pale and weakly mother.

And—unhappy truth—cases are reported so often as to cease to be a novelty where mothers with hour-old infants are set upon and beaten in their helplessness by the male brutes whose names they established a Maternity Hospital, where it was most needed, in the most prolific part of town, on Harrison street, near Elginth.

It was to meet just such conditions, which, of course, shouldn't be, but are, that a number of good women and a few sympathetic physicians got together and established a Maternity Hospital, where it was most needed, in the most prolific part of town, on Harrison street, near Elginth.

And since that action was taken, some two years ago, they've had enough to do to keep them busy, these kindly physicians and Christian women.

And good work they have done, not only in relieving suffering, but in spreading a knowledge of cleanliness and sanitation in homes where it was never supplied. This is a missionary work that makes the conversion of the heathen look weak and vague.

Now this humane hospital needs funds, and it is how it intends to raise them, and it will, you may be sure, that with such women at the helm:

On Wednesday night an entertainment and reception will be given in the ballroom of the Palace that promises to fill the hospital treasury with a long ton of silver dollars, if you will only do your part.

Observe the talent: There are Margaret Anglin, John Drew, Hal McAllister, Frank Worthing, A. B. Laurence, Mrs. Whiffen, Mrs. John Metcalf, Ella La Fille, Otis Carrington, Carl Crighton and Emyln Lewis.

And after the performance—which will hum from beginning to end—a reception to the artists will be held.

Tickets are on sale at $2 and may be obtained at the news-stand at the Palace, or from any of the following members of the board of directors:

Mrs. L. Lowenberg, Palace Hotel; Mrs. Pelham Ames, 1312 Taylor street; Mrs. H. H. Bancroft, Hotel Dunstun; Mrs. James Black, Alameda; Mrs. John Caserly, 2123 Buchanan; Mrs. James A. Cooper, 2723 Pacific avenue; Mrs. Margaret Deane, 1919 California street; Mrs. H. E. Dutton, 2831 Washington street; Mrs. W. D. Penimore, 2623 Steiner street; Mrs. Harry Nathaniel Gray, St. Dunstan's street; Mrs. W. R. Higgins, 1338 Washington street; Mrs. Albert Houston, 2735 Vallejo street; Mrs. W. H. McCormick, 1718 Larkin street; Mrs. John Metcalf, 22 Presidio avenue; Mrs. G. Poindexter, 1335 Leavenworth street; Mrs. Charles Black, 2224 Sacramento street; Mrs. Gaillard Stoney, 2139 Lyon street; Mrs. C. H. Snyder, 2831 Washington street; Miss K. Wallis, 712 Sutter street; Mrs. J. K. Wilson, 3196 Pacific avenue; Dr. A. B. Spalding, 1073 Bush street.

Some day, just to be sure that your two dollars are being wisely expended, wander down to 1217 Harrison street and look things over.

You'll come out with a few things to think about.

COMPANY ELECTS A CAPTAIN
NOT QUALIFIED FOR PLACE

Ellis-Street Armory is Formally Reopened With Entertainment and Exhibition for Many Guests.

Some time since George T. Ballinger was elected captain of Company A of the First Infantry, National Guard of California, but he failed to qualify and another election was ordered. This was held last week and at that time Ballinger was again elected. This is a novel proposition in National Guard affairs and those interested are waiting to see what the superior officers will do in the matter.

Corporal A. R. Donigan was elected first lieutenant of the company.

To-day the teams of Companies C and D of the Fifth Infantry will meet at the San Rafael range for the deciding shoot of the match for a trophy.

Last Friday evening the Ellis-street armory, which has been renovated since the fire some time ago, was formally opened by four batteries of the First Battalion of Coast Artillery and the Signal Corps. The interior of the building was decorated with flowers and evergreens and flags and presented a very pretty appearance. The members and their invited guests crowded the place and after a tour of inspection of the different apartments the visitors were escorted to the assembly hall, where there was a programme of entertainment, consisting of music, songs and specialties by professional and amateur talent. After the programme the gun team gave an exhibition of how a one-pound Hotchkiss gun is handled in action. The Signal Corps gave an exhibition of flag signaling, and the Sanitary Corps, which had a hospital tent pitched in the drillroom, gave an exhibition of rendering first aid to the wounded and of caring for those who become disabled on the field. The corps had also a telephonic field service in the building and there was an exhibition of the utility of such service. Among the prominent millionaires present was Adjutant General Lauck, Colonel Wilhelm and Colonel Koster. Captain Vanderbit of the Fifth Infantry and nearly his entire command were in evidence.

San Francisco Veterinary College next session will begin July 17, catalogue free. DR. E. J. CREELY, president, 511 Golden Gate ave.
