Denis O'Sullivan renders Popular Irish Melodies Before Throng at Grand

IS WARMLY RECEIVED

Miss Albertson Shows Great Advancement in Her Work and Is Charming in Part

Denis O'Sullivan came back to a loyal constituency last night at the Grand Opera-house as Shaul the Post in "Arrah na Pogue." A royal welcome went over the footlights from a crowd that filled almost every seat in the house. There was afterward plenty of enthusiasm, yet—

It was partly the performance, "Arrah na Pogue," with its music and kaleidoscopic scenes, needs swift playing to make it pleasurable. That it did have last night. There were no gaps, but the beat was slow. Even Mr. O'Sullivan himself failed of his usual superb swing. One began to discover the enchanting "Arrah" old-fashioned, to hanker after a Shaw's Hibernian wickedness in "John Bull and His Obedient Island," to wonder if Boucicault really ever wrote it.

One must not have time to wonder. Time is fatal to the Boucicault drama. Its fun and sentimentalism, love and law, must be dealt out as Pollock deals out a "Traviata," and then it may convince. But the company was new, the performance the first of the season, and in this light every excuse can be made for the leisurely tempo. Further, the company is not exceptionally good one, and will doubtless be speedily able to give worthy account of itself.

Not at his best, though Mr. O'Sullivan achieved almost his usual magnificently good touch in the trial scene, was the comedian last night. He was, in fact, visible effort, suffering probably from a touch of our San Francisco climate. That, too, will doubtless be soon remedied, and half at least of an Irish play with Denis O'Sullivan in it is Denis O'Sullivan's singing, one hopes it will be very soon.

Human and magnetic as ever, and quite the best of the current Irish comedians, one still finds Mr. O'Sullivan. There is big heart and big grip in the work, and a fine, sincere art, too. His comedy is Irish in the best sense of the word—sunny, happy-go-lucky, genial. And when it comes to the "Year in the Green," one quite appreciates the lyric danger to "England's cruel red," when the song is sung with the passion of patriotism that Mr. O'Sullivan gets into it. He was, as usual, generous with songs, including "The Low Backed Car," "Kitty of the Cows," "The Leprechaun," "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," "The Emigrant," "Savouring Dheallh" among his list. He was at his best in the "Year in the Green."

Miss Lillian Albertson, a young woman who made a very successful debut at the Grand Opera-house some three years ago, shows large progress in her Arrah. Delightfully pretty, thoughtful and graceful in her Arrah, Miss Albertson has not yet achieved simplicity, though coming very near it at times. She still remembers herself, is a little conscious of smile, glance and gesture. Her costume even, a little comic operatic, has a certain quality.

But to have done what Miss Albertson has done in so short a time is to have done all, and more, than could have been expected. Alice Lonnon was the Fanny Power, and though it is not Miss Lonnon's kind of role, she graced it. Maggie Francis-Leavy was the old Irish woman, Katy, and one doesn't need a better.

One of the best performances in the evening was the capital O'Grady of P. S. Barrett. It was to the life the spirited, generous, simple-minded hotspur of a colonel that Boucicault pictured. Charles Wynate was a good Beamish McCool, and Fred W. Allen, as the Yankee Doodle boy, had all the dignity and distinction required.

There should be plenty of enjoyment in "Arrah na Pogue" this week when they get the speed up.

BLANCHE PARTINGTON.

Orpheum.

There was fun at the Orpheum last night, roaring, riotous fun—whole bunches of it. It all came through O'Brien and Havel—Mr. O'Brien and Miss Havel. If you please, a little "typical" in the presentation. A little sketch called "Ticks and Clicks."

The name doesn't have much of a part. There are no "ticks" and fewer "clicks"; the fun comes through the rollicking mirth of this pair of comers. You don't know that they are acting—you really don't; but for fifteen minutes you watch them play while the "boss" recovers from a headache of the night before, and you really feel guilty of having fooled the head of the office yourself.

First, Mr. O'Brien dusts the room. There is nothing funny in the dusting of the room, you would think, but before O'Brien makes two sweeps with the feather duster you are convulsed with laughter and your neighbor is pounding you on the back in his screaming glee. Then comes Miss Havel, "typical." She essays to talk over the telephone to her lover. The telephone is a dummy and Mr. O'Brien answers. "Hello, dear, is that you?" "Yes, who is that?" "This is 'tootsie,' who did you think it was?" "I didn't know. I thought it might be the mag who sings the hash down Annie's." He is caught, and in trying to escape the wrath of "tootsie" he dances a clog on his ear. The two play and dance and "roughhouse"; you hold your sides in a fearful endeavor to keep from bursting; the curtain falls; Miss Havel is accepting whole flower gardens; you try to become sober before the next act is finished.

The rest of the Orpheum bill is excellent, too. Emil Hoch, Jane Elton and company appear in a French play, a trifle risqué, but not vulgar. The Millman Trio perform wonderful feats on the tight wire, one of the young ladies dancing a skirt dance in a dizzying fashion.

It was unfortunate that Violet Dale suffered from a severe cold, which forbade her using her voice in her clever imitations. At that she gave a graphic picture of Mrs. Leslie Carter in "Du Barry."

The old features were good. Jacob's dogs were the curtain-raiser. Josephine Atinsley was a graceful though not especially sweet-voiced comedienne. The Yankee Doodle boys have improved over last week and the Howard Brothers are as clever banjoists as ever. "Stolen by Gypsies"—the name describes the pictures—completes the programme.

MAN LOST HIS LIFE ON THE DESERT BECAUSE HE REFUSED TO LEAVE HIS DYING HORSE

FIGHT AGAINST FATE

Crawls Beneath a Bush and Fires His Revolver in Order to Attract Notice

Special Dispatch to The Call.

BRAWLEY, Aug. 20.—Almost naked, unable to speak or recognize his friends, Harry Howard, who had been missing on the desert since Friday, was found at noon to-day under the scant shade of a small bush. Three minutes after the party came upon him, and while they were trying to fender him assistance, he died.

All that his rescuers could do was to lash his body to a horse and return to town with it. The spot where Howard was found was less than two miles from a camp, at which there is an abundance of water, but the rolling nature of the country prevented Howard from finding his way to it.

Accompanied by William Fast, Howard left the water company's construction camp No. 8, near Pelican Lake, on Thursday. They went on horseback in the direction of Carrizo Creek in search of some lost horses. On the desert Howard's horse was overcome by the heat. Fast returned for water, but Howard refused to leave his dying horse. In returning to camp, Fast lost his way and wandered about on the desert until late Friday night.

A searching party started out Saturday to look for Howard, but failed to find any trace of him. To-day a second party was made up and they found the dying man within two miles of camp.

When Howard had tried in vain to summon aid when he found himself unable to go farther was indicated by the presence of a score or more of empty revolver shells which dotted the hot sand around the bush. In his wanderings he had thrown away his clothing, garment by garment, and when too weak to walk, had sought the shade of the small bush and there, by firing his revolver, tried to summon assistance.

ESTIMATES MADE UPON THE OREGON HOP CROP

Believed That the Yield for the Year Will Exceed Eighty-Six Thousand Bales.

PORTLAND, Aug. 20.—Based upon reports received from the hop-producing counties of Oregon, it is estimated that the 1905 hop crop of this State will amount to 86,850 bales. This estimate is based on present conditions. Unfavorable weather between now and the time of picking may reduce the output.

Even the most sanguine men in the hop trade do not deny that the crop this year has been damaged by the long drought and insect pests, but opinions differ widely as to the amount of damage.

STRIKING TELEGRAPHERS SEEK OLD JOBS IN VAIN

Only One in Ten Relinquished by Northern Pacific and Majority Are Hunting Work Elsewhere.

MISSOULA, Mont., Aug. 20.—Now that the telegraphers' strike has been called off, the men have been applying to Superintendent Gibson of the Rocky Mountain division of the Northern Pacific for their old positions. Very few have been reinstated, the proportion being less than one in ten. The majority of the men who went out on strike have left here to secure positions on other lines.

All trains are still running behind time and it is believed it will be several days before traffic will be in its normal condition.

BOOKER WASHINGTON TELLS OF DINNER WITH WANAMAKER

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 20.—President Booker T. Washington addressed a letter, under New York date, to the Age Herald of this city concerning his recent visit to John Wanamaker at Saratoga. He says:

"I did not escort any female member of Mr. Wanamaker's family to or out of the dining-room. I did dine with Mr. Wanamaker and members of his family at a hotel at his request—for the purpose of talking on business—but at the same time was a guest myself at a colored hotel at Saratoga."

Restoring Mason and Dixon's Line.

The resurvey of the historic Mason and Dixon line has been completed by the corps employed jointly by the States of Pennsylvania and Maryland.

When the Legislatures of the two States decided not to allow the famous boundary line to disappear so far as visible signs of its location were concerned they undertook a work that proved very difficult and tedious. The surveyors were obliged to cut a path through the mountains, and they found many of the old markers and crown stones displaced.

In Adams County one stone was used as a doorstep in a dwelling, another in a church; some were doing duty in bake ovens and others were lying miles from their original places. All were recovered, although not without vigorous objection on the part of the persons who were using them.

The work of re-establishing the line was very carefully done, and the old stone posts set along its course after Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon carried it out in 1783 were reset in solid cement bases, and iron posts were substituted in places where the old posts have disappeared.—N. Y. Mail.

Ten Persons Killed and More Than a Score Injured in Butte Disaster

PASSENGERS MANGLED

Motorman Crosses Track Just as Flying Switch of Freight Cars Is Made

BUTTE, Mont., Aug. 20.—Ten persons were killed and more than a score were injured, some fatally, here to-night as the result of a freight car dashing into a crowded open trolley car at the crossing of the street car and Great Northern Railroad tracks on Utah street.

Passengers on the car—men, women and children—were returning from Columbia Gardens. The motorman, as usual, stopped his car before reaching the railroad crossing. At that moment a Butte, Anaconda and Pacific yard engine was making a flying switch of loaded freight cars across Utah street. The motorman, thinking everything was clear, started across the railroad track, when the trolley car was struck by the freight car, thrown twenty-five feet and crumpled into kindling wood. The freight car piling on top of the mangled passengers.

Among the killed was Maggie Harrington of Butte. The following are among the injured: John Harvey of Spokane, taken from wreck, leg broken, severely bruised; Miss Shaw, young lady at Florence hotel, Butte, dying; Bridget Murray, Mrs. Mendel and Ed. Masters, all of Butte.

One unknown man was killed and between twenty and thirty persons injured. Two of the injured are said to have died at the hospital. The railway and hospital officials decline to give out the names of the injured.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 20.—At Mount Sicker mining camp this morning Fred Beech, a miner, deliberately shot and killed Joseph Eiderman, the proprietor of the Mount Breton Hotel and a prominent business man. The murderer escaped to the hills and has not yet been captured. The trouble was over a woman. Both had been drinking.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

You Get Up

In the morning tired, languid, and frequently with a headache, that is almost unbearable. You have been nervous, restless and sleepless night after night, and gloomy and irritable during the day. This nervous exhaustion affects the heart, lungs and other organs that depend upon the nerves for motive power. Then the stomach fails to digest the food; the heart action is weak, and circulation poor, and the kidneys and liver inactive.

What you need is not a stomach, head, kidney or liver medicine, but Dr. Miles' Nervine to soothe and feed the nerves and build nerve tissue.

"My wife was subject to severe mental strain, which resulted in nervous prostration. The first symptoms were uncontrollable crying and delirious spells, which increased to such an extent that for over a year she would have a spell every day of from four to six hours duration. She required the constant attention of her physician and attendants. She suffered great pain and anguish. The best physicians attending her could give no relief, and she almost became almost completely blind. As a last resort I began giving her Dr. Miles' Nervine and Tonic, and noticed that her spells next day were not so severe, and they gradually disappeared altogether. She has had no recurrence of the spells, and is gaining in health and strength."

J. P. OVERHOLSER, Sterling, Ill.
Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails he will refund your money.
