DISAPPOINTED TO WRITE AGAIN IN HER NIGHT

Mrs. Turner Farley Fails to Win as Many Races as Hoped For During Season

NOT IN BEST OF LUCK

Plucky English Woman Is Not Discouraged, However, and Will Try Again

Special Dispatch to The Call.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Mrs. Turner Farley, the plucky English yachtswoman, who got hereself to build her a racing craft for the fifty-two-foot race in the waters, is much disappointed because she has failed to realize her expectations of being able to hoist more winning flags at the close of the season than any of her competitors. The class furnished the keenest racing of the season, and although Mrs. Farley's boat, the Sonya, was beaten in most of the contests, the margin between her and the winning boat was always a small one and she always had the worst of the luck. Mrs. Farley's confidence in the Yankee designer is not a shared one, however, for Mrs. Farley's Sonya next year, she hopes, with better results. As a yacht is seldom tuned up to her best form the first season, it is not improbable that she may come out on top of her class next year.

In her racing career Mrs. Farley has built several yachts for English women and they invariably showed a clean pair of heels to their competitors of British design. But in building for the fifty-two-foot class the Yankee designer was not so successful. In her design of which hereself has always shown himself supreme. With such shakles imposed on his genius it is not to be wondered at that he failed to repeat his earlier triumphs. The Duke of Devonshire, however, is not so sure of the trick next year and with the same boat.

AMBITIOUS CHICAGO GIRL FINDS MALMESBURY SLOW

Countess of Suffolk Seeks a Country Seat in One of England's Hunting Shires.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—It appears that the Countess of Suffolk is not particularly fascinated with the country residence which her husband has provided for her at Malmesbury, in Wiltshire. She wants to go into the Midlands and with this object in view she is looking out for a suitable place in either Warwickshire or Derby. For the last two or three years American women have helped to popularize these particular counties, with the result that at the present time it is not easy to get a house in either of the counties. The Countess of Suffolk, who, like most of her wealthy countrywomen, has a penchant for doing things on a big scale.

The Midlands has always been noted for the magnificence of its hunting parties and the Countess desires to be in with the best of them. Wiltshire was until a few years ago a popular hunting county, but its glories have faded since Mrs. Frank Mackay, Mrs. Lucy, Mrs. Ambrose and Mrs. E. B. Hall Kene commenced to patronize the Midlands. Up to the present moment the only place that could appear to the Countess of Suffolk is a lovely house called "Rockside," in the neighborhood of Buxton. It is on the estate of the Duke of Devonshire and has been for some years carried on as a hydrophatic establishment. If the local authorities allow certain structural alterations to be made to bring the house up to the standards of the present day, the Countess's ideas of the place at once and convert it into a family residence. The grounds are extensive. There is plenty of shooting and fishing. What is mostly needed is stabling accommodation.

BLUE EYES BAR BROWN DRESSES THIS SEASON

Each Costume, Parisian Couturiers Agree, Must Represent Symphony of Colors.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—The fashion this fall has veered round to directoire styles. The chic Parisienne favors tight fitting glossy satin gowns veiled by soft, clinging draperies of mousseline de soie caught in by directoire yokes.

Every such costume is supposed to represent a symphony of color, and artists of society are besieged with applications from their fair friends for strange effects in blended dead tints. The couturiers have seized the new passion for color harmonies, and peremptorily refuse to work for clients who insist on the edict prescribing that every detail of a costume must take into consideration the color of the eyes.

Blue eyes, for example, are held to make brown unthinkable as the dominating element of a robe.

Ask the man who knows. The American Cigar, made by Regensburg, is the best.

Reformation in Ball Gowns.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Dancing men are hailing with delight an impending reformation in ball gowns. They are now to be fashioned minus trains, and to be absolutely correct, should scarcely touch the ground when the wearer is in the throes of the waltz or lanciers. There is no doubt that the long train has often inspired the nervous man with such terror that he has frequently chosen the part of a wallflower rather than incur the frightful risk of getting his feet tangled up in the superfluous drapery and perhaps coming a nasty cropper on the waxed floor. The innovation is a very practical and sensible one and will go far to put a stop to the complaint everywhere heard that there are not enough dancing men to go round.

Talismanic Gems the Fad.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—Talismanic gems are the fad of the hour. Society, which has been reveling in occultism in the last few weeks, is now wearing mystically engraved amulets to ward off evil influences. Mounted in platinum and gold the jewels are being set in fantastic designs as rings, pendants, bracelets and necklaces.

The Auto in Warfare.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—The Kaiser has come to the conclusion that the motor must succeed the horse as a vehicle of locomotion in war. At next year's maneuvers all commanding officers will be seated in automobiles instead of on horseback. Appropriations for the war automobiles will be made, and generals' cars will be required to become their own chauffeurs.

All men are gamblers—even the plodding farmer takes big chances with nature and the seasons.

REMOVAL AND ADVANCEMENT

Sale of Waists and Silk Petticoats

The Waist Department is going to move. The present quarters are too small. We find it hard to properly display the stock. Customers complain of the crowded aisle. We have fitted up an annex with an entrance near the stairs on the first floor. It is big—three times as large as the present place. It is light, conveniently arranged and will be the handsomest and largest waist department in the West. This removal sale is planned to reduce the stock before moving, to clean out broken lines and get the stock in shape for its new home. We mention only a few of the bargain items:

$1.50 Cheviot Waists 98c Mostly white, some with embroidered fronts, others more on the tailored order. Enough lines have been put in to insure a good size assortment. This is a bargain gem.	$7.50 Silk Waists $4.95 The principal feature is a Mes-saline Waist in pink, lavender, gray, champagne and white. They are new—in the house only a few days. Many others, but more limited lines, are included in this reduction.	$8.50 Lace Waists $5.50 A very generous assortment in Lace Nets made over India Silk. The lace patterns are new, rich and exclusive. Some styles call for short sleeves, others long. This is a very rare chance.
$4.50 Woolen Waists $2.95 The assortment is too big to permit even a start at description here. There are all colors and sizes. The designs and trimming ideas are new, stylish and most pleasing.	$3.50 Woolen Waists $2.25 Voile, Albatross and Flannels—All colors. There are waists in neat tailored effects and many in trimmed styles. This is a waist bargain worthy your most careful consideration.	$7.50 Petticoats $4.50 A collection of thoroughly made and very reliable Taffeta Skirts. The color list includes several changeable combinations and such desirable colors as brown, green, red, navy, gun metal, tan and gray.

Closing Out Sale of Dolls

We are going out of the doll business. We have no room to properly display and handle them. The stock has been brought down to the new annex—entrance on the first floor. Prices are marked in keeping with the necessity. Here's a chance to save on your Christmas doll buying. They are all high-class goods, imported by us direct, and at the regular prices were rare bargains.

Doll Shoes Free

A pair of doll shoes will be given free to every child who comes to-morrow accompanied by parents.

Dressed Dolls Nicely dressed, good bodies, bisque heads, good quality hair, laughing eyes and peppy teeth. 25c and 50c dolls 25c 75c dolls 50c $1.00 and $1.25 dolls 75c $1.50 and $1.75 dolls $1.00 $2.00 and $2.25 dolls $1.50 $2.50 dolls $2.00 $3.00 dolls $2.25 $4.50 dolls $3.25	Undressed Dolls Kid bodies, cork stuffed, bisque heads, sewed wigs, sleeping eyes. 50c dolls 35c 75c and 85c dolls 50c $1.00 and $1.25 dolls 75c $1.50 and $1.75 dolls $1.00 $2.50 dolls $1.50 $3.00 dolls $1.75 $3.50 dolls $2.00

Waras Americans in Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—So many Americans in Paris are victims of swindlers that H. C. Cox, vice consul, urges caution. He writes:

"It may be useful to American tourists in Paris to warn them against confidence men who profess to be fellow countrymen in distress. It would seem unnecessary to issue this warning to intelligent tourists were it not a fact it is just this class who are imposed upon.

"The boulevards adjoining the Place de l'Opera, Rue de la Paix and avenue seem to be the favorite haunts of these adven-turers. It is only fair to our people to say that when these rascals use the name of the United States consulate as having called home in their behalf the assertion almost invariably is false."

Swiss Wives the Older.

GENEVA, Nov. 11.—The publication of marriage statistics brings out the curious fact that among the married couples in Switzerland to-day there are 820 in which the wife is older than her husband, while in 2352 cases out of these the man is the junior by sixteen years and more.

Football in Olden Days.

Appropos of the agitation now going on in America for making football painless, an antiquarian gives the rather surprising information that so long ago as the reign of Edward III a statute was enacted forbidding the game on account of its brutality. Henry VIII and Elizabeth both legislated against it, the latter punishing indulgence in it by imprisonment, but the game did not die despite the fact that it was under the ban of the law. That Shakespeare was familiar with it is shown by a passage in "King Lear" in which Kent says to Oswald, "nor tripped neither, you base football players, which kept alive until the athletic frenzy of the nineteenth century took possession of the country."

George Meredith Injured.

George Meredith's readers have special reason to feel regret over his recent severe fall, as the last time he was taken to the hospital by his illness had been engaged in fresh literary work, which he has now had to lay aside entirely. Decidedly, the luck seems to be against Mr. Meredith. Greatly enfeebled by his severe illness of last year the veteran author only recently began to enjoy something like his usual health, and now he is again laid up indefinitely.

Getting about in the brazen air of Surrey makes all the difference to the hermit of Box Hill, and for several months Mr. Meredith has driven out every morning in a donkey-cart, on old man servant being in attendance. Last Friday, in the act of getting into his small vehicle, Mr. Meredith stepped with his right foot twisted under him in such a way that both bones of the leg were broken. The limb was set as soon as a surgeon could be summoned and Mr. Meredith bore the operation well, but at his age—seventy-six—his condition necessarily causes some anxiety.

Husband Killed When Seeking Reconciliation

Wife Shoots Repentant Man and Then Regrets Her Hasty Deed.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—Engelen les Bains has been the scene of a domestic tragedy which is not without a poignant note. Mme. Amyot became weary of being continually abused by her husband and left him with the intention of seeking a divorce.

M. Amyot, who resided in Paris, learned of his wife's new address, and sought her out with a view to effecting a reconciliation. But Mme. Amyot, who was afraid of him, locked the door. "Open in the name of the law! It is the police commissary!" shouted the husband. His wife replied that she would only open the door to the police commissary in person.

With one violent push M. Amyot broke open the door. His wife stood before him and fired two revolver shots at him. One of the bullets entered his left eye. He was taken to the hospital in a dying condition. The wife, realizing that she had killed her husband, burst into tears. She made a pathetic appeal to the police not to arrest her, but to allow her to watch by her husband's bedside until he died. Her request was granted.

Former American Belle Who Married Sir Charles Ross Is Popular in Britain

Special Dispatch to The Call.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Lady Ross, who as Miss Ellison was one of the belles of Louisville, Ky., is this week helping her husband, Sir Charles Ross, to entertain royalty in the person of Prince Arthur of Connaught at Balmogowan, their fine old seat in Ross-shire, Scotland. Sir Charles is a good deal of what I have heard an American friend call a "high roller." It was due to the fact that he had been dining "hot wisely but too well" that he fell down the stairs of the Automobile Club last summer and had to lay up for repairs for several weeks, which caused Lady Ross to cancel all her social engagements for the time being. She is his second wife. Sir Charles did not get along well with the first and the marriage was dissolved. Miss Ellison married him with her eyes open and thus far has given no evidence that she has repented of her bargain, and on his part he did not lay himself open to the charge of marrying a charitable enterprise, but what she gives away for bazaars and things of that sort is generally reserved for Mrs. Adair's affairs. She always stipulates, too, that her name must not appear on bazaar stalls or programmes of entertainments. "What I can afford to give away," she wrote a week ago to a lady who was interesting herself in a starving widow with six children living in the East End of London, "I give without any desire to have my name appear in the newspapers. The calls on me are sufficient without inviting further publicity." Carnegie, by the way, is accumulating at Skibo a grove of interesting trees, each planted by a celebrity. The latest is by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

War Minister Sails in Aft.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—Ballooning still continues to interest the public. M. Etteux, Minister of War, made a trip this week in the Lebaduy airship, accompanied by his aide-de-camp. The ascent lasted half an hour, during which time a reconnaissance of the forts around Toul was made. The distance covered was about seven kilometers. A captive hydrogen balloon, used in connection with wireless telegraphy experiments between Paris and Belfast, burst at the latter place when at a height of 300 meters. It fell within thirty meters of the observation station. No one was injured.
