

COLLINS MAKES BITTER ATTACK

District Attorney Byington and Judges Lawlor and Lennon Subjects of Venom CITATION NOT ISSUED

Contempt Proceedings Continued to Enable the Affiant to Submit Authorities

When Attorney George D. Collins appeared in Judge Lawlor's court yesterday morning to learn the Judge's decision on the affidavit asking that District Attorney Byington be cited for contempt for flaying Jurors Hickman, Hartley and Hunt, he was somewhat disappointed.

The Judge said he had carefully read the affidavit, but he was not prepared to issue a citation on the alleged facts therein. He did not think that it came within the purview of the statute referred to by Collins.

Collins asked for time to cite authorities on the subject, and he was given till this morning.

The District Attorney is continuing his investigation as to the conduct of Jurors Hickman, Hartley and Hunt. Yesterday he had an interview with Juror Paul Kingdon.

Collins made a lengthy statement for publication yesterday, in which he bitterly attacked Judges Lawlor and Lennon and District Attorney Byington. He alleged that the majority of the jurors were at first for an acquittal, but a determined effort was made to change their votes, which was successful. He concludes by promising that his conduct will be vindicated and his innocence established. He declares that he will swear out warrants for the arrest of Jurors Kingdon and Cohn for perjury.

SOUTH END FOLK EXULT OVER LOSS OF PEST.

HE GETS SIX MONTHS

Reward of Stealing Yacht and Beaching It When Tired of Cruising on Bay.

BY JAMES C. CRAWFORD.

With mainsail belied and pennant a-tatter the swift yacht Spray was beached at Anderson's wharf, South San Francisco, after her master, A. W. Hall, had spent three days in futile endeavor to ascertain her whereabouts. Her nose was deeply imbedded in the mud, indicating that she had beached ashore, head-on, and under full sail pressure. Investigation led to the disclosure that her anchor and the chain attached thereto were missing.

The Spray had disappeared from the spot where she was discovered and simultaneously there faded from public view one Fred Miller, a thriftless youth, whose pseudonym of "the village out-p" was earned by his penchant for playing mischievous pranks at the expense of his neighbors in the South End, many of whom substituted the noun "pest" for that of "cut-up" when they voiced his sobriquet. It was only reasonable therefore that when Skipper Hall learned Master Miller's disappearance he opined that boy and boat had departed together, nor was at remarkable that his opinion was shared by every person who had fallen victim to the lad's love of practical joking.

"Without wishing any ill luck to you, cap'n," said one of his hearers, "I won't be sorry if he runs her on a rock 'n' is drowned. 'T' he's a durned noisance."

While the captain did not express approval of that wish, his demeanor made it evident that he could gladly hail Master Miller's demise by any means that would not involve the wrecking of the Spray.

After the yacht was found no difficulty was encountered in effecting the arrest of Master Miller on Captain Hall's complaint of malicious mischief, for the young man's usual haunts were well known to all who desired his removal from the vicinage. When arraigned before Police Judge Mogan he had no defense to offer save a remark that the anchor and chain were accidentally lost and neither willfully cast away nor stolen by him, as the prosecution had surmised. He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and a large delegation from South San Francisco openly exulted.

It was corridor gossip that during his three days' voyage on the yacht Master Miller visited almost every port on the bay and whittled away his sailing hours by lying upon his back and loudly singing the refrain of a popular nautical song, which real mariners never sing, the opening line of which is, "Sailin', sailin', over the boundin' main." Rumor had it also that he beached the boat because his limited knowledge of seamanship prevented him getting ashore by any other means so promising of safety.

Charles A. Smith, a sand steamer, obstructed passenger car traffic on Bay street for twenty-six consecutive minutes by keeping his wagon at a standstill on the track, despite the pleading and objections of an ever-increasing army of conductors and gripmen, whose respective vehicles were compelled to stop and thus waste their time schedule.

In defense of his conduct Mr. Smith told Judge Cabaniss that one of the wheels of his wagon stuck between a rail and a rock and that when he requested and chafing passengers to assist in releasing the obstacle they showered vituperation upon him.

R. Thompson, a car inspector for the United Railroads, testified that the only abusive language indulged in was by Mr. Smith himself in having said to Hans Peterson, a gripman, "I'll knock some of the corners off that square head of yours."

For obstructing the street cars Mr. Smith was fined $10 and an additional charge of peace disturbance was dismissed.

Mrs. M. Morgenstern, a buxom matron residing at 110 Olive street, tearfully told Judge Conlan that Edward Ford, a smart and stalwart young man whom she had "tried to mother," proved an ingrate by stealing her purse, containing $11, and also her baby's savings bank.

"Why did you do it?" his Honor asked the defendant.

"Because I asked her for money and she wouldn't let me have it," was the surly reply.

"What right did you have to expect her to give you money?" the Judge pursued. "I'd rather not go into that question," was the answer.

testifying in the case against her husband, who is a contracting carpenter at 172 Raush street and was accused by J. Cornfield, journeyman carpenter, of having defrauded him out of honestly earned wages to the amount of $15, and, incidentally, of having disturbed the peace by refusing to pay said sum.

Mrs. Cohen's unqualified pleading was in advocacy of her husband's cause, of course, and ran the gamut of forensic variety, ranging from most scathing invective to tender appeal. Nor was she discriminative in her selection of persons to address. When the Judge avoided her eyes she transferred it to Clerk Gray, then to Stenographer Long, then to the immaculate countenance of Bailiff Hickey, and finally to the tittering assemblage of chair-warmers. Her vocal organism was unimpaired when the case was disposed of, and she was talking when the succeeding case was well under way.

Mr. Cohen agreed to pay the $15.

Filippo Martinez and Tony Albata, natives of Manila, P. I., were given a year's imprisonment by Judge Conlan, before whom it was proved that they systematically pilfered small articles from various small dealers in holiday goods during the recent rush.

Mary Diamond, shoplifter, was given twenty-five days by Judge Fritz. She stole gloves from the Emporium.

John Wilson, middle-aged, decently garbed and bearded like a bear (whatever that may be), menacingly brandished a revolver in George Spiro's restaurant, 12 Hayes street, for which he was arrested and booked for assault with a deadly weapon. After hearing the testimony, however, Judge Mogan ordered that the complaint be amended to read, "exhibiting a deadly weapon in a rude and threatening manner," and the revised charge will be heard next Friday.

A combination of Mr. Spiro's clumsiness and Mr. Wilson's whiskers was alleged to have led to the pistol play. Mr. Wilson had ordered eggs, soft-scrambled, and Mr. Spiro took the order and also delivered it, but in the process of delivery his foot slipped, or his show was joggled, the result being that the dish of mixed-up eggs was deposited upon Mr. Wilson's facial appendage. Instead of upon the table. Endeavoring to claw the yellow mass from his nestling place, but actually digging it more deeply therein, Mr. Wilson angrily demanded of Mr.

Spiro what in thunder—or something else—he meant by his awkwardness, nor would he stay long enough to listen to apologetic explanation. Eventually the store of Mr. Spiro's patience became exhausted, and he, too, waxed angry.

Mr. Wilson avers he did not draw his shooting iron until his head had been violently tapped, or his chin struck by one of Mr. Spiro's hands, but Mr. Spiro declares he had never so much as spoken harshly, much less committed assault, when he was both astonished and frightened by Mr. Wilson's sudden display of firearms.

Mr. Wilson's whiskers had been renovated when he appeared in court.

Dominick Presto was one of a group of Italians who stood at Green and Dupont streets and jeered at Patrolman R. Morton as he was passing by, and when Dominick was arrested and escorted to a patrol box he expressed his contempt for his captor by deliberately expectorating upon the sidewalk, after he had defyingly warned that to do so was law-defying. His defiance will be heard next Saturday by Judge Mogan.

Patrolman Morton's work in pursuing the authors of recent tragedies in the Latin Quarter has made him extremely unbeloved by the criminal element of that district.

The shooting created considerable excitement. The officers had arrested half a dozen Mexicans and half-breeds fighting and were taking them to jail, when they tried to make their escape. The officers opened fire and the fleeing prisoners surrendered.

Inane Man Dies From Exposure. STOCKTON, Dec. 27.—The body found in a field near Terminus yesterday has been identified as that of Jesse Peck, an escapee from the Stockton State Hospital. Peck was committed to the hospital from San Francisco April 30, 1904, and escaped on the 22d inst. It is supposed that he died from exposure while wandering about.

Walley and who claimed to be a former business man of Seattle, Wash., was found this afternoon on the floor of a room in a local hotel. ## TRAIN ROBBERS ARE BAFFLED

Masked Men Flag Engineer to Stop North Coast Limited but Signals Are Unheeded

HOLD UP A PEDESTRIAN

Citizen Passing Along Road Later Is Tied to a Tree and Relieved of His Coin

Special Dispatch to The Call.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 27.—Two masked men attempted to hold up the North Coast limited near Ravensdale, forty-five miles out of Seattle, Tuesday night. They flagged the engineer to stop, but he paid no heed to their signals. Within a half hour afterward a resident of Buckley, going along the road near the spot where the train was flagged, was overpowered and tied to a tree. The robbers then searched his pockets and secured $400.

Officers are in pursuit with a posse and bloodhounds. They have a good description of the robbers, who are believed to be the men who held up the North Coast limited outside of North Yakima early in the month and robbed the safe in the express car.

OREGON STATE COMMISSION DEMANDS PORTION OF FUNDS

Claims Pro Rata Share of Money in Possession of Lewis and Clark Exposition Corporation.

PORTLAND, Dec. 27.—The Oregon State commission has formally notified the Lewis and Clark Exposition Corporation that it will hold the officers and directors of the fair responsible for the distribution of money, which it has been announced may amount to about $1,000,000. The official communication states that the commission claims a pro rata share of the funds now in the possession of the corporation after all liabilities have been settled. The Oregon commission also demands an accounting of the money which has been expended by the corporation. The communication states that the commission is acting under the directions of the Attorney General of the State of Oregon.

The officials of the corporation say that the action of the Oregon State commission is absolutely without precedent and that they know of no similar occurrence in the history of expositions. In returning the surplus money to the stockholders they say they are only following a precedent which was established years ago by other expositions.

The one exception to the general rule was the Chicago Fair, when the surplus was divided between the stockholders and the city pro rata. But the officials say that there was a previous agreement to this effect, which they allege was spent on the expenses of Lewis and Clark Corporation and the State commission.

SCHOONER CHARLES NELSON ENCOUNTERS A HEAVY GALE

Vessel Is Considerably Damaged Off Cape Flattery and Puts Into Port Townsend in Distress.

PORT TOWNSEND, Dec. 27.—The steam schooner Charles Nelson, in the lumber trade, was wrecked off Tacoma and San Francisco, put into port in distress to-day, having run into a heavy gale off Cape Flattery. The deck cargo had shifted, her fresh water supply was exhausted and the engine room flooded. The vessel was towed to port by the British ship Scottish Locks, with coal, from Cardiff for Bremerton, reached port this morning, 142 days out. Sunday, when thirty miles off Cape Beale, August Kollan, a sailor, was knocked off his feet while standing on the deck, and fell, breaking his neck.

Cruelty Charge Is Dismissed. PETALUMA, Dec. 27.—Charles Ascherman, who operates a large poultry raising and dressing business, was charged with operating a bone mill for grinding horse meat and bone, was tried to-day before Judge Green on a charge of cruelty to animals. It was shown that the horses which were shipped by the Arcade Packing Co. to Seattle, were kept in a dying condition when they came here and that Ascherman had given them attention. The case was dismissed. The Petaluma and Santa Rosa Railway company will hereafter refuse to ship old horses on their steamers.

New Water Company Incorporates. BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 27.—Articles of incorporation of the Kern-Rand Company were filed yesterday with the county clerk. The capitalization is $25,000. The deceased was a native of Tennessee, 46 years of age and leaves a wife and two children.

NEARLY WRECKED HOME OF JUDGE

Quantity of Dynamite Is Exploded Near House of Justice Baldwin in Eureka

STABLE BADLY DAMAGED

Victim of Outrage Has Been Ill for Some Time and Is Still in Feeble Condition

Special Dispatch to The Call.

EUREKA, Dec. 27.—An attempt was made late last night to wreck the residence of Justice of the Peace C. E. Baldwin in this city. Dynamite was the deadly agent used by the miscreants. The explosive was placed in the rear of Judge Baldwin's home, near a stable, and was exploded by some means not yet discovered. A portion of the end of the stable was blown out and a hole was torn in the ground. Judge Baldwin has been sick for some time and his condition is still critical.

FIGHT TO RETAIN CONTROL OF WILMINGTON WATER FRONT

Articles of Incorporation of Town Are Filed at Sacramento to Prevent Possible Annexation.

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 27.—The fight to retain control of the water front of Wilmington, Los Angeles County, took a rather sensational turn when Senator William H. Savage reached San Francisco this morning on a special train from Tracy, bringing articles of incorporation of the town of Wilmington, which he filed with Secretary of State C. E. Curry.

Senator Savage left Los Angeles last night at 6 o'clock and reached Tracy at 6:10 this morning. He had previously ordered a special train to be in readiness for him at the latter place in order to reach Secretary Curry's office ahead of a rival who was supposed to be armed with papers showing that Wilmington, including its water front, has been annexed to Long Beach. Up to noon Savage's rival had not reached this city, so far as could be ascertained, and the papers of annexation had been filed in the office of the Secretary of State.

A bitter fight has been waged, it appears, between the people of Wilmington and Long Beach, the former retaining strenuously the attempt of the latter to absorb it.

SHIPWRECKED SAILOR LIVES FOR THREE WEEKS ON CLAMS

Norwegian Leads a Crusoe-Like Existence on Pease Island, Near Port Simpson.

VICTORIA, B. C., Dec. 27.—News was brought by the steamship Tees from Northern British Columbia of the Crusoe-like adventure of S. A. Lundberg, a Norwegian, who was cast away a month ago from a sloop in which he was voyaging from Portland Canal to Kitimat. The sloop was wrecked on Pease Island, near Port Simpson, and the sailor spent three weeks on the island, living on clams. He hoisted distress signals on a tree by day and built fires by night, endeavoring vainly to attract attention, and finally, built a raft, on which he reached Port Wilson, fifteen miles away, after a most arduous voyage, in which he narrowly escaped being washed from his raft. He was finally picked up by the Tees and taken to Hartley Bay.

The Tees also brought news of a large part of Mount Sen, at Grapple Island, falling in a lake at New Falls. Some miners who arrived by the steamship just passed the scene of the landslide, which they say caused waves like walls of water. They believe volcanic action caused a portion of the mountain to slide into the lake.

CONVICT FINLEY SENTENCED TO BE HANGED AT FOLSOM

Attorneys Will Appeal Case to the Supreme Court, Alleging That the Prisoner Is Insane.

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 27.—J. W. Finley, one of the Folsom prison convicts, serving a life term for highway robbery, who was convicted of conspiracy and an attempt to escape, was to-day sentenced by Judge Hart to be hanged at Folsom. The date of the execution was not fixed. The case will no doubt be appealed to the Supreme Court, the attorney for Finley claiming he is insane, although a commission of six physicians made a report that he was only shamming insanity when he acted queerly in the courtroom.

New Steamer Line to San Francisco. PORTLAND, Dec. 27.—The Evening Telegram to-day states that the Northern Pacific Railroad Company plans, on the completion of the North Bank road into Portland, to put on two immense passenger and freight steamers between this city and San Francisco. The company is considering the advisability of having the vessels constructed in San Francisco in preference to having them built in the East.

Workmen Killed by a Cavein. LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27.—Two laborers, a Russian and an Italian, were killed to-day by a cave-in of a clay bank at an East Los Angeles brickyard. Another Italian was probably fatally injured. The men were engaged in shoveling clay away from a high bank when the earth slid down upon them.

"BIDS" AND "OFFERS" TRADING OPPOSED

Chicago Board of Trade Drives Brokers From Its Building.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—The Board of Trade to-day frowned upon the trading in "bids" and "offers," which have been adopted as substitutes for "puts" and "calls" since those privileges were abolished. The trading in "bids" and "offers" has been conducted in the smoking-room of the Board of Trade building after the close of the regular market. To-day when a crowd of brokers attempted to enter the room they found their way barred by a number of ushers, who informed them that the real estate committee of the board had decided that there will be no more trading in "bids and offers" in the Board of Trade building.

A large crowd of brokers immediately adjourned to the rear of the building, where the trading was commenced in and around the rear door of the first floor. The ushers again compelled them to move and finally they hastened across the street and rented a vacant room within a few minutes' walk of the Board of Trade and resumed trading.
