SOCIETY APPLAUDS A DAY OF SPORTS

Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Carolan Entertain Many Friends and the People of the Countryside at Crossways.

SOCIETY AT THE POLO PAVILION

W. S. HOBART F. D. MARTIN C. R. TOBIN AN EXCITING MOMENT ON THE FIELD

SOME OF THE GUESTS DISCUSSING THE POLO RACES AT CROSSWAYS FARM, BURLINGAME, YESTERDAY AND AN INCIDENT OF THE GAME ON THE POLO FIELD IN WHICH SOME CLEVER HORSMANSHIP WAS DISPLAYED BY THE MEMBERS OF THE TWO TEAMS.

The sweet notes of a French horn floated over the artistic polo pavilion at Francis J. Carolan's Crossways Farm, Burlingame, yesterday, when the dragoon-hounds of the San Mateo County hunt were laid on for a dash across country. This music is one of the features of a meet of the hounds in France, and lent a touch of sentiment to the affair down in San Mateo County. Mr. and Mrs. Carolan were playing the parts of Lord and Lady Bountiful to their many friends and to the people of the countryside prior to their departure for Europe. In addition to the picturesque meet of the hounds, there were pony races, polo, a parade of fine ponies and an elaborate luncheon, the latter served under the direction of Manager McLeod of the Burlingame Club. To show the versatility of the sportsmen Mr. Carolan and Mr. Hobart rode in one of the pony races, then changed to cross-country horses and took a number of jumps. They returned in time to take part in an exciting polo game. The field for the hunt was made up of J. Downey Harvey, Miss Genevieve Harvey, Mr. Carolan, Mr. Hobart, Jean Rocqueras, Commander Lopez and Jerry Keating, the huntsman. The hounds and the riders made a circuit of the field, taking three jumps in faultless style, to the delight of the spectators. The line of the drag took the hounds to Millbrae and back to the Tevis place near Burlingame, many intervening jumps being covered. FAIR WOMEN GRACE OCCASION. The day was ideal for high-class sports of the field and brought out the fair women of the Burlingame set in their daintiest gowns. A military band lent an air of buoyancy to the occasion. The race which stood out above the other events on the card was the three-mile event for ponies, the minimum weight being 150 pounds. Rudolph Spreckels' Honoma, chestnut mare by Homer-Noma and ridden by Frank Skinner, made a runaway race of it leading out F. J. Carolan's Beau Brummel and J. O. Tobin's Bobby by an indefinite number of lengths. The trying distance was covered in the good time of 6:18. The mare would have finished in much faster time, but Mr. Skinner took her up in the second mile, bringing her almost to a standstill. The performance was a remarkable one owing to the weight carried. The first race on the programme over a distance of half a mile resulted in an easy victory for Bas Blancs, carrying the copper colors of Charles W. Clark. Mr. Carolan's Montana, ridden by Mr. Marshall, broke in front, but was outfooted the first quarter by Bas Blancs. The Clark mare assumed the lead at the first turn and won easily. Mr. Spreckels' Wonderful propped at the start and was never able to get up with the leaders.

CELLS AGAIN GIVE FREEDOM

Judge Murasky Releases Convicted Attorney Upon His Furnishing $25,000 Bail

MOTHER-IN-LAW MELTS Name of Mrs. Sarah McCurdy and That of Her Daughter Are Affixed to the Bond

George D. Collins has again secured temporary liberty. He walked from the County Jail last night a free man, at least until the 14th instant, when an alternative writ of habeas corpus issued yesterday by Presiding Judge Graham is returnable before Judge Murasky. Mrs. Sarah McCurdy, the mother-in-law of Collins, who it was reported had become tired of the expense occasioned by his seemingly endless battle against the charges of bigamy and perjury, has evidently repented, for she is one of his sureties on the bond of $25,000 on which he gained his release. The other surety is her daughter, Clarice McCurdy, Collins' "Chicago wife."

It took a large part of yesterday afternoon and until well into last night to accomplish Collins' release. He applied to Judge Graham for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that his trial on the second charge of perjury was not warranted by law. Judge Graham in issuing the alternative writ fixed the ball of the prisoner at the sum named and assigned the hearing to Judge Murasky. MURSKY'S NOT BANKRUPT. Collins, who has a sentence of fourteen years hanging over him and was in the County Jail pending appeal, was released shortly after 9 o'clock. When given his freedom he went immediately to the Hotel Terminus, where Clarice and her daughter awaited him. Their affectionate greeting showed why they were willing to risk their property interests to the extent of $25,000 that the attorney convicted of bigamy might not loiter in a dingy cell while preparing his next legal battle. That Mrs. McCurdy and her daughter have not been bankrupted by the past criminal proceedings against the attorney is shown by the fact that they still retain valuable property in the commercial section of the city. The bond approved by Judge Murasky named as securities pieces of property located on Fremont street, Mission and Second and Folsom and Russ streets. Delay occurred in releasing Collins because the property affidavits had to be sworn by the Sheriff, which took several hours.

IN THE FEDERAL COURT. In the United States District Court yesterday District Attorney Langdon filed his answer to the application of Collins for a writ of habeas corpus. Judge de Haven set the hearing for tomorrow at 10 o'clock. The only point in issue appears to be Collins' statement that the second indictment for perjury charges a crime which, if committed at all, had been committed prior to his extradition from British Columbia upon an indictment for another crime of perjury. The answer recites the second indictment for perjury covers a crime committed by Collins on December 12, 1905, during his trial on the indictment upon which he had been extradited. Collins' motive in making a statement obviously at variance with the facts is a mystery. Only one explanation has been suggested, and that is that the perjury mentioned in the first or extradition indictment is charged to be Collins' sworn statement that he never had been married to Charlotte Newman, and that the second perjury charged to have been committed by Collins was on the trial under the extradition indictment, when he swore similarly as to the same fact. Hence, it is believed that Collins may attempt to make the point that there was but one crime, if any, committed, and that on the trial on the second perjury indictment he merely repeated the testimony which formed the basis for the charge in the extradition indictment.

Second Trial of First Collins Case. Judge Burnett of Santa Rosa, sitting in Department 11 of the Superior Court, denied the motion yesterday of George D. Collins to dismiss the first charge of perjury against him. The case was set for second trial on May 7, the defendant taking the usual exception. Saturday next was set for the final settlement of the defendant's bill of exception on his appeal to the District Court of Appeal against his conviction and sentence of fourteen years on the second charge of perjury.

PRESS CLUB GIVES JINKS FOR LADIES Clever Programme Pleases a Large Number of the Gentler Sex.

The doors of the Press Club were thrown open to the fair sex last night, as is the annual custom. More of the ladies took advantage of the opportunity this year than ever before. The pretty rooms of the club were filled with inquisitive femininity eager to see just what one of those institutions that are reputed to keep men away from the bosom of their families looked like at close range. An interesting programme was presented in the jinks room, where John McNaught presided as sire, assisted by T. L. Ford. Following is the roll of those who did things: University of California Glee Club, songs; Roy Folger, songs and stories; Mrs. E. L. Walker, songs; Nat. Landaberger, violin selections, assisted by Vincenzo Ursumando, pianist; Jack Layton, stories; Homer Henley, songs; Mackenzie Gordon, songs; Captain Leale, stories; Fred O'Connell, coin shooting; the Press Club quartet, songs. Jan Kubelik, the violinist, came late in the evening and rendered several selections. The Hawaiian quartet came with leis wreaths around their necks and sang some beautiful melodies of Hawaii. The "Let the world slide, let the world go" spirit of the Press Club motto prevailed throughout the evening. MADAME KUBELIK ARRIVES IN CITY FIRST TRIP TO COAST

Wife of Violinist Is Surprised by the Sights. Regrets She Did Not Bring Babies With Her. Kubelik and his wife, the Countess Csaky, arrived in this city late yesterday afternoon in a delayed train from Los Angeles and are guests at the St. Francis Hotel. The Countess is a charming little woman. Although she has traveled over the world, this is her first visit to the Pacific Coast. When she stepped out of the auto before the St. Francis she was besieged by a crowd of photographers. She quietly acquiesced, and snap shots were fired at her in rapid succession. She was beautifully gowned in a tailor-made dress of gray, and wore a big picture hat covered with brilliant red roses. The Countess said she was delighted to come to San Francisco with her husband, but she could not help regretting that she had not brought her little babies with her. "This," she said, "is the only drawback to my visit to your lovely State of California. I have heard so much about San Francisco that I am naturally delighted to get here. I must say that I am greatly surprised at the beauty and magnificence of the great big buildings that I have passed by on my way up from the harbor stations. My babies were only here I should be the happiest woman in the world."

Kubelik and his wife, in company with a few friends, took a little jaunt up and down Market street, after which they went to a prominent cafe for a supper. Here they were the cynosure of all eyes. The leaders of the orchestra at the cafe at once struck up "Hail to the Chief," which Kubelik acknowledged with a modest bow. The Kubeliks will be the guests of Mayor Schmitz on Monday in an auto ride through the park. Following is the programme for Kubelik's concert today at 2:30 at the Tivoli: Concerto, G minor (Bruch) vespriale, adagio, finale, Kubelik; (a) Barcarolle (Liszt), (b) Nocturne (Chopin), (c) Valse (Chopin), Miss Agnes Gardner-Eyre; (a) Melodie (Tschai-kowsky); (b) Etude, E major (Paganini); (c) Nel cor piu non mi sento (Paganini). Ludwig Schwab, accompanist.

SOUTHERN TENNIS STARS OUTPLAY THE NORTHERNERS Sinsabaugh and Warland Dispose of Griffin and Crawford on the Ventura Courts. VENTURA, April 7.—Northern California today in the finish of the Nordhoff tennis tournament unexpectedly fell down before Southern California. Carl Gardner, champion of San Francisco, and Clarence Griffin, one of the best of the northern tennis players, lost to the southern team, Sinsabaugh and Warland, in the open doubles. Previously Gardner had beaten Sinsabaugh in the singles while Griffin had disposed of Warland. The superior team work of the Southerners turned the trick. The score in their favor, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5.

San Francisco took the singles trophy without much trouble. Gardner and Griffin mowed down the southern experts one after the other without great effort, and in the finals faced one another. Both were weary from their strenuous work. Gardner won the inter-scholastic trophy for singles again fell to Hal Gorham of Los Angeles, while the school doubles went to the team from San Diego High School.

TRANSPORT LAWTON TALKS TO PORT FROM MID-OCEAN Practical Test Is Being Made of the Marconi Wireless Telegraphy System by the Government. The transport Lawton, on her way to Samoa with a relief crew for the Adams, reported all well to this port, though 105 miles off the coast, at 11 o'clock last night. The Government, in order to test the Marconi system, with a view to establishing it on the transport system, arranged with Manager O'Brien, who represents the Marconi Company here, to test the system on the Lawton. The local station will receive messages from the Lawton as long as it can keep in communication with her. At 11 o'clock the Lawton reported that she had got into communication with the Marconi station at Point Arguelo, 250 miles down the coast. At a late hour the messages were coming clearly and distinctly from the Lawton, and there seems to be no reason why the communication cannot be kept up during the entire voyage. The last message received last night was: "Sea smooth; wind light; beautiful night." The Lawton sailed about noon yesterday. WANT AVENUE IMPROVED.—Oakland, April 7.—The East Oakland improvement clubs have united in a request that Councilman Donahue present a project to macadamize Twelfth avenue, from East Twelfth street to East Twenty-second street.

BERMUDA VARIETY CREDITED WITH HAVING SAVED THE LIFE OF MISS BENNETT ACTRESS IS RECOVERING Simple Treatment Restores Her Health After Physicians Had Lost Hope

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE CALL. NEW YORK, April 7.—Miss Johnstone Bennett, the actress, was two weeks ago an emaciated dying consumptive, her life despaired of by many eminent physicians and her constitution a wreck. Today she was seen at her country home near Bloomfield, N. J., apparently near recovery. She attributes her escape from death to the wonderful curative properties of the Bermuda onion. The Bermuda onion was discovered by Mark Golinsky, a scientist, who, after twenty years of experimenting in three continents, claims to have at last evolved a cure for the white plague. After specialists had treated her in vain for a year and she had spent some months in California, Miss Bennett returned East to die in her country home in New Jersey. Golinsky heard she was dying and wired that he could save her. He was sent for at once. His prescription, ludicrous as it may seem, was onions. For the last ten days Miss Bennett has eaten one and a half or two Bermuda onions a day and taken a simple liver and heart stimulant. With remarkable rapidity she grew in strength, her appetite returned and the sunken cheeks and hollow eyes assumed their normal aspect. "I began first with yellow fever in Cuba," said Golinsky, "and found that the onions were a positive preventive, if not a cure. I found that no germs could live near an onion."

TWO FACTIONS STRIVE FOR CARDINAL'S HAT Recall of Storer Brings to Light Rivalry of Prelate's Friends.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE CALL. CALL BUREAU, POST BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C., April 7.—President Roosevelt's sudden termination of the service of Bellamy Storer as American Ambassador to Austria has served to bring out the fact that about a year ago there was a very pretty contest in progress between the two sets of prominent members of the Catholic church in America, with a cardinalate the prize striven for. Mrs. Storer, during a visit to Rome, displayed great activity in urging that, if an additional Cardinal were established in the United States, Archbishop Ireland should be elevated to the dignity. In this she had the active aid of St. John Gaffney of New York, now American Consul General at Dresden, who was not then in an official position. Mrs. Storer's activeness in Rome and Italy and later in Vienna led to some criticism, and as has already been stated was one of the factors in deciding the President to drop Storer from the diplomatic service. Mrs. Storer is a clever woman, and her efforts were watched with no little concern from the United States by persons who also were interested in seeing another red hat bestowed upon the United States, but did not wish to see it worn by Archbishop Ireland. These persons were active in maneuvering to the end that Archbishop Farley of New York should be elevated if the opportunity were forthcoming. By reason of the references which have been made to Mrs. Storer's high admiration for Archbishop Ireland, and the story current here is that Mrs. Storer showed that part of it to distinguished persons in Europe, without showing the remainder, in which the President is believed to be convinced under no circumstances attempt to exercise any influence on a matter affecting the policy of the Vatican. It is learned upon excellent authority that, in this letter, the President wrote that he witnessed with pleasure the advancement of the dignitaries of any church.

ANDREW CARNEGIE KISSES TWO WOMEN IN PUBLIC Ironmaster Demonstrates That He Still Craves the Joys of Osculation. ATLANTA, Ga., April 7.—Andrew Carnegie, new and advanced in years of weighted down with financial deals, or bothered in giving away libraries as to have forgotten the deliciousness of a kiss and a fond embrace. Mrs. T. Elchberg and another lady, who was so bashful as to request the reporter to not use her name in print, were the recipients of old-time Georgia osculations yesterday afternoon at the Carnegie library, in the presence of a large number of people. "You are such a fine-looking lady," said Carnegie, with enthusiasm, "that I am going to kiss you for all the rest here," and with that, before Mrs. Elchberg knew what was happening, he kissed her face and squeezed her. Then Mrs. Elchberg's friend, who was likewise a fine-looking lady, was noticed among the younger beauties.
