

Carion Wall Is Mangled in Auto Accident.

shock. Wall's grit had returned by the time he reached the sanatorium where he was lying in bed. He was taken to the entrance of the institution. His broken bones were set, and if the internal injuries are not of serious character Dr. Reynolds thinks he has a fair chance for recovery. Wall and those in his automobile went to Santa Cruz last Friday and were returning from San Jose last night when the accident occurred. Wall, who is known as "the man in the wheel," was driving his machine, and those who were in the car declare he was steering a true course and was on the right side of the road. Muller, they assert, was on the wrong side of the highway and carried no light on his wagon.

KEPT HIS HEAD IN CRISIS.

When Wall discerned the milk wagon in the gloom directly in his path, and saw that a collision could not be averted, he reversed his engine and set his brakes. This presence of mind prevented the automobile from tearing its way through the wrecked milk wagon and probably saved the lives of the men who were in the car from being mangled, if not killed. When Wall was forced by pain to release his hold of the steering wheel, the big machine came around and toppled of its own accord. It was when the automobile swerved that Mrs. Kesner was thrown into the roadway.

Following the accident those who were with Wall can't think of a time that the milk wagon was without a driver, not seeing young Muller, who was lying near by in a dazed state. The milkman, however, recovered quickly from the effects of his journey into the air and his fall. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Muller, who conduct a dairy on the San Leandro and Hayward road, near Seminary avenue.

CHAUFFEUR GOODRUM'S ACCOUNT.

"Wall was at the wheel and was running along at a good clip on the right side of the road. The milk wagon, which was without a light, came upon him so quickly that he could not avoid a collision, although he did shut off the power and set the brake clutch. When the auto struck the horse it stove in the chest of the animal and killed it instantly. I think that a shaft of the wagon must have struck Wall in the left side, for he continued on into the tonneau. My words that I heard him say after he was hit was, 'Look out for me,' meaning Mrs. Kesner, who had been sitting beside him on the left side, but who was flung over into the tonneau by the shock and who fell out of the machine when it swerved in coming to a dead stop. Habernicht was sitting on the swinging seat in the tonneau. I was sitting next to me. When the machine stopped after the crash we found Wall doubled up near the wheel saying, 'Look out for me,' look out for me, and continuing to say, 'I am not hurt, but McBryde came up with his friends and secured a doctor and got an automobile to move Wall, Mrs. Kesner and Mrs. Becker to the sanatorium. The fender of the car was broken and the machine smashed. The strong seat in front probably saved us in the back from being seriously hurt. The horse was killed outright, its chest being crushed in by the fender."

JOKED IN FACE OF DEATH.

Douglas McBryde confirmed Goodrum in his account of the high course displayed by Wall. He says that when he came upon the scene Wall was fully conscious and was concerned for the other members of his party rather than for himself. Though suffering greatly and weakened by the loss of blood, he walked to a waiting machine and passed jokes with his friends, who, with the doctors, took him to the sanatorium.

Wall is the son of the late General J. G. Wall and Mrs. Margaret Wall, and resides with his mother on Lafayette street and Santa Clara avenue, in Alameda. Last year, while driving one of his automobiles on Montgomery street, in San Francisco, he collided with the rear end of a truck. Believing that the teamster was responsible for the smash-up, Wall jumped from his motor car and administered a beating to the driver. He was arrested for battery and was also sued for damages. The case attracted much attention and was finally settled out of court. Wall is a brother-in-law of Robert W. Mott of Alameda and also of Captain Bradley of the ferry steamer Piedmont.

One week ago today Wall's automobile, handled by Chauffeur W. L. Goodrum, ran down J. J. Atkins on a bicycle at the junction of Central and Alameda avenues. Atkins was run over by the front wheels of the car, and when dragged from beneath the body of the auto was found to be severely bruised but not dangerously hurt.

THE LADY WHO WALKS HURT.

Mrs. Kesner is a sister of Mrs. Becker and resides at 578 East Sixteenth street, in East Oakland. She remained at the Alameda Sanatorium today.

About five months ago Mrs. Kesner came near death by the submergence of her car in the water. She was mistaken at her apartments in the Hotel El Monterey, at Pine and Hyde streets, in San Francisco. She was hurled into an automobile by her friends at the Piedmont.

DEPUTY SHERIFF LOSES PRISONER ON WAY TO JAIL.

Mr. Daly Accommodates His Charge, Who Promptly and Effectually Disappears From View.

NAPA, AUG. 7.—

Angelo Berthiasore, an employe at the cement works at Napa, yesterday, accused of having stolen checks and currency from his fellow laborers, escaped today from Deputy Sheriff Daly. Daly arrested Berthiasore at the cement works and was bringing him by buggy to Napa when the prisoner asked to be allowed to step out of the vehicle a moment. Daly consented. When the deputy sheriff looked around his prisoner had disappeared.

A score of men have been searching for Berthiasore all afternoon without result.

MAY HAVE GONE TO CANADA.

The whereabouts of Vice President Theodore Stensland, son of the missing banker, were a mystery to the authorities until this afternoon, when Chief of Police Collins got communications with him by telephone and secured his promise to meet him in conference later.

The Clearing-house committee is spending no effort to bring the missing president to justice. Handwriting experts, it is said, will be put to work at once upon the case to establish the authenticity of the forgery. Belief that Stensland had made his escape into Canada is supported by a report from Darwin Wis, that Sergeant of Police Darwin Son of that city saw the missing banker on a Duluth and Superior car en route to Superior. Another dispatch from Superior from Chief of Police McKenna tended to show that Stensland made his way to Canada by boat from Duluth. Cashier Herring is thought to have reached the line by way of Detroit.

It was learned today that the peculations of the bank's funds began before the year 1901. At the beginning of that year a shortage of $250,000 is said to have existed.

STEELERS REUSED BY PARDEE.

Action of Governor Calls Down the Ire of the Ruef-Maestretti Gang WAR TO A FINISH

All the powerful political machinery that Abe Ruef, Frank Maestretti and other primary election experts could bring to bear has not availed to induce Governor Pardee to pardon Charles Wyman, Adolph Steffens and Joseph Rebstock, the ballot-box stuffers convicted a year ago. Nothing was left undone to bring pressure on the chief executive. Petitions by the truckload were prepared, but the hopes of the prisoners and their loyal friends have gone glimmering. It is two months and more since the Governor was asked to set the convicts free, and his attitude of silence is accepted as a refusal.

The campaign of political vengeance against Pardee is already in progress. Ruef and Maestretti have announced that he shall not have one delegate out of San Francisco for the Republican nomination for Governor. The ultimatum ran thus: "Pardon these three men and we will agree not to hurt you in San Francisco."

Had the Governor turned loose the ballot-box stuffers, it is explained, he would have incurred the disfavor of the administration crowd. Ruef and Maestretti were not free to give such assurance. But they would at least have refrained from an aggressive campaign and have given Pardee and Charlie Spear a fair show in the fight for delegates.

But now the unpliant chief executive is not to have a "look-in," declare the self-acclaimed political powers of the town.

OTHER HELP ENLISTED.

The friends of the prisoners began to move immediately after the great fire. It was admitted that the pardons would bring down severe criticism on the Governor. In the chaotic conditions of the city, it was felt that relief work absorbed the public mind, the time was deemed opportune for the Governor to act without fear of a popular outcry. M. H. de Young was approached and his aid was secured. An evening paper which had also been bitter in its attacks on administration men is said to have acquiesced in a similar arrangement.

The way was thus paved for the Governor to set the trio of election law offenders free at a minimum cost of censure. Such were the methods of the Ruef-Maestretti gang. They proceeded on a false assumption, however, when they figured that Governor Pardee was to be moved by the threat of a "no-roasting" party. Pardee had expended during March and April in circulating petitions on the streets of the city asking for the pardon of Wyman, Steffens and Rebstock. About 40,000 names had been obtained. It is claimed, but what proportion of signers appended their names merely to get rid of the hired solicitor could not be designated, although it is known to have been a large number. The petitions were destroyed in the fire.

Those containing the names of the jurors—six in the Steffens case, nine in the case of Rebstock and twelve in the case of Wyman—were saved. During the extraordinary session of the Legislature Speaker Tom Atkinson circulated a petition in the Assembly and Senator George B. Keane did likewise in the Senate, both obtaining many signatures.

"I didn't like the job," remarked Keane yesterday, "but it was up to me to do it, and I asked all a goodly number complying with my request."

GOVERNOR REMAINS FIRM.

The jury and legislative petitions were quickly presented to the Governor. Personal appeal was made to him repeatedly. The points of the largest contention were that the three men were young, were without vicious motive in their crimes and had been led into the misdeeds through foolishness. The three men had been punished enough, it was contended, and their families were in need of them for support in the trying times following the disaster.

"San Francisco needs all the men she can get to rebuild her homes of the populace and to help to rear the edifices of steel and stone that go to make up a metropolis," was the eloquent argument one lawyer made to the Governor. "If the Republic's stricken city have the services of Rebstock, Steffens and Wyman in the rebuilding of our beloved city. Let us have their help, for San Francisco sorely needs every man she can get."

The Governor's eyes gleamed, and he refused to entertain the force of the argument that San Quentin and Folsom should be emptied that San Francisco might have workmen for rebuilding. But all the efforts to obtain the pardon have apparently gone for naught. Rebstock has in the meantime been released on all pending appeals to the Supreme Court. His wife and children have given up hope of pardons and are now urging Ruef and Maestretti to obtain paroles for them. Maestretti refuses to entertain this proposal, for it would not restore to him the right to vote. He wants them pardoned so they can again be available on a new Governor.

As to Superintendent John A. Hosmer, who prosecuted the stuffers, there is a difference of attitude in the Ruef-Maestretti camp. Some say that when he seeks nomination for the place to which he was appointed the vengeance knife will be applied to him. In the event of his nomination the score would be settled at the polls. Others of the crowd are inclined to deal more liberally with him, holding him blameless inasmuch as he was but the hired attorney of the Merchants' Association when he so successfully assisted in the prosecution of the trio of ballot-box stuffers.

New Premier of Russia Hopes to Win People by Fulfilling Promises STRIKE NOW OVER

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 7.—From a member of the Cabinet the Associated Press learns that the Government regards the storm raised by the dissolution of Parliament as past and that it intends immediately to proceed to carry out the policy of strong-handed reform to which Premier Stolypin committed himself. The cardinal plank of the programme is an attempt to appease the discontented peasantry as far as possible. The Government agrarian programme, which will not differ greatly from the Stuchinsky project, will not only be promulgated, but probably will be placed in effect as a temporary law, the Emperor having the right to issue temporary laws during a recess of Parliament. In other words, it is the intention of the Government to attempt to solve its most difficult problem irrespective of the Parliament, in the belief that it will meet with enough support to make it impossible for the next Parliament to refuse its assent.

Appointments to three vacancies in the Cabinet, Agriculture, Commerce and the Holy Synod, probably will be announced tomorrow. M. Samarin, member of the council of the Emperor, who was offered the last-named post, has finally refused it, thus ending the hope of securing the desired co-operation of the lower house and upper house as well.

Prince Vassilichikov of the famous Russian family and father of the well-known literature of that name, will probably be Minister of Agriculture. A semi-official statement referring to the conclusion deduced abroad from an article in the Rigsia saying it was the intention of the Government to sustain the cabinet by means of a published opinion. It says these conclusions are based upon gross misunderstandings and that no such intention exists.

LABOR OPPOSES LONGWORTH.

Will Try to Keep President's Son-in-Law From Congress.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 7.—Both of Cincinnati's Congressmen, H. P. Goebel and Nicholas Longworth, President Roosevelt's son-in-law, are to be antagonized actively during the coming campaign by the American Federation of Labor by reason of their alleged indifference to labor before the last Congress. This was announced today by Frank Rist, American Federation of Labor organizer and editor.

"We will submit a list of names to the Republicans," said Rist, "and another list to the Democrats. That list will contain the names of men whose names will be put forward by the organized labor. If the nominee of a party comes from that list, we have nothing more to say. If both parties choose from our list, then we will keep the names of the nominees going to help President Samuel Gompers' movement. Neither Longworth's nor Goebel's name appears on our list."

TAMMANY TO INDORSE BRYAN.

Leader Murphy Will Call Meeting to Indorse Nebraskan.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—To indorse William J. Bryan for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1908, Charles E. Murphy will issue a call for a special meeting of the Tammany general committee, to be held next week. Announcement of this intention on the part of the Tammany leader has convinced Democrats that Murphy, contrary to a belief which existed in some quarters, is heart and soul in the Bryan movement. Friends of Bryan decided today to establish permanent Bryan headquarters in New York City and to begin immediately systematically to boom the Nebraskan for the Presidential honors.

Democrats Indorse Nebraskan and Nominate a State Ticket.

WATERLOO, Iowa, Aug. 7.—The Democratic convention today nominated a full State ticket, headed by Claude R. Porter of Appanoose County for Governor, adopted a platform and adjourned sine die tonight. The platform favors a tariff for revenue only, the election of United States Senators by direct vote, and the people demands the enactment of such legislation as will effectually destroy all trusts. A resolution was adopted pledging to William J. Bryan the support of Iowa Democrats for the Presidency in 1908.

Democracy of Idaho Declare for Dubois

OEUR D'ALENE, Idaho, Aug. 7.

After a strenuous two days' convention the Democrats of Idaho placed in nomination a full ticket and adopted a platform in which anti-Mormonism was the keynote. The following nominations were made: United States Senator, Frederick T. Dubois; Member of Congress, Rees Hatbawg; Justice of the Supreme Court, Stewart S. Denning; Governor, C. O. Stockinger; Lieutenant Governor, George C. Chapin; Secretary of State, Floerney Galloway.

Senator Dubois' speech of acceptance was heartily cheered. "I speak with perfect truth and sincerity," he began, "that never in my life was I so proud as I am at this moment. I am indorsed by as splendid a citizenship as exists in any commonwealth in the world in making a fight against a tyranny that, if unchecked, will eventually enable the Mormon church to completely dominate the affairs of the State. My record in the public life of Idaho is a record of a fight against a tyranny that, if unchecked, will eventually enable the Mormon church to completely dominate the affairs of the State. My record in the public life of Idaho is a record of a fight against a tyranny that, if unchecked, will eventually enable the Mormon church to completely dominate the affairs of the State."

He prophesied that within three years no man in the State of Idaho will have the temerity to stand on a public platform and defend the hierarchy of Salt Lake. It is in his opinion, he said, that public opinion will continue to defend and condone it if it will go down to inevitable defeat. It is even now up against it. The issue is squarely placed before you. If you support the constitution of your State? If you will, you will take the test oath. For ten years there was not a Mormon in the State who would subscribe to that oath. If they do now they will not be good Mormons. I hope the enactment of such a statute as we contemplate will make them either leave the church or force the church to cease interfering with political and desist from the practice of polygamy."
